BY EDWARD BARRY.

Months of planning and preparation are over, thousands of details have been ironed out, the weather man has promised a made-to-order evening, and THE TRIBUNE is ready to present proudly its 15th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldiers' field tonight.

Nearly 8,000 persons—soloists, chorus singers, bandsmen and bandswomen, orchestral players, baton twirlers, show people—are awaiting the cue for their part in the evening long program of pageantry and melody. They come from every part of the Chicago area. They include soldiers, sailors, war workers, and housewives. They range in age from 7 or less to 70 or more.

Eiffel Tower in Fireworks.

The festival management, almost at the last minute, completed arrangements to mark the imminent American occupation of Paris by adding a flaming image of the Eiffel tower, complete with American flag, to the ambitious fireworks display which also is scheduled to include a representation of an invasion operation, pictures of Gen. Eisenhower, Gen. MacArthur, and Adm. Nimitz, and thousands of bombs and star shells.

"Come early!" is the warning from festival headquarters. One of the most promising of the more than 20 features which will pack the evening—the presentation by the "Oklahoma!" company of the best liked songs from the biggest musical success since "Show Boat"—will go on promptly at 7:30.

Long, Full Program.

But if you can't possibly make it until 8, there still will be a crowded program of nearly two and one-half hours to see and hear. The festival chorus and orchestra will perform John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Faith" with the composer present.

The winners of "Sweet Adeline" contest, which was open to any Adeline in any war plant in the Chicago area, will ride into the field. The one Adeline who will be chosen queen is to be crowned with a floral wreath by Harry Armstrong, composer of "Sweet Adeline." The whole audience will serenade her with the song.

Match Lighting Rites.

The evening then will move melodiously along with appearances by the widely known tenor, Chief Specialist John Carter, a children's chorus, a trombone choir, the Chicago All-Girl Piano Symphony orchestra, and the Festival Negro chorus, to the next big spectacle, the famous match lighting ceremony.

The stands will be blacked out, and at a signal from the announcer, every one in the audience will light a match. The ceremony never fails to draw "Os" and "Ahs" from the watchers.

The "Hallelujah" chorus, a part of every Chicago Festival program, will be movingly sung by the festival chorus of 2,000. Then will come the great field pageant in which 40 army, navy, and civilian bands will march into the arena and mass in the field for the performance of "America," which will immediately precede the fireworks display.

2 CIO Unions Bolt Hillman Vote Machine

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 18 [Special].—Protesting that "American citizenship can't be put in a union," two local committees of Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee, backed by their unions, have bolted the organization engaged in raising a 6 million dollar election fund to help keep President Roosevelt in power.

This revolt is the first break disclosed in the labor organization's political program, but it was predicted that the Utah action, which is backed by local miners who resent Hillman's methods, will spread to other mine, mill, and smelter workers of the west.

Resignations of the local PAC committees, which followed edicts that they vote Democratic or resign, were accompanied by assertions that the members are convinced that Hillman's fund raising machine "is trying to get control of the Democratic party."

Wish to Remain Free.

"We hereby tender our resignation," they said, "as we wish to be, and remain, free Americans with the right to cast our votes as our forefathers intended—free from pressure of any one man or group of men."

The action was taken by the PAC committees of the CIO Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers' unions in the nearby mining towns of Bauer and Tooele. It was backed unanimously by the rank and file membership of the two locals, about 750 men.

The local union PAC committees are composed of three men each and are designated by the state PAC organization. It was to the state PAC president, Frank Marble, in Salt Lake City, that the bolting committees sent their resignations.

Resent Dictator Methods.

The letter from PAC committee of local 872 of the miners' union at Tooele said in part:

"We believe in man's free agency to vote as he sees fit. We do not believe in being dictated to by one man or any group of men. This is the right of any American citizen as specified in the Constitution of the United States.

"We are thoroly convinced, from all apparent signs, that the CIO political action committee is trying to get control of the Democratic party. In every meeting that has been attended by state or divisional leaders of the CIO-PAC the minutes show that every candidate they have indorsed has been of the Democratic party.

"In view of the above mentioned facts and the attitude displayed by members of the state CIO-PAC at the meeting held July 25 at the Tooele city hall, where we were told that all members must vote Democratic or resign, we hereby tender our resignation."

Demands Vote Freedom.

Vaughn Haslam, president of the PAC committee of local 65 of the miners' union at Bauer, spoke for his committee:

"It is for the freedom of speech and the right to vote as we see fit that our boys are fighting today. Union members also are fighting at home to increase production so we will not have these rights taken from us.

"We feel that in taking this action it frees us to work and vote thruout the state for the candidates we feel will best represent us."

[Believe Hillman will be unable to sway Indiana labor vote. Story on page 9.]

ARMY SUBDUES WAR PRISONER REVOLT IN WEST

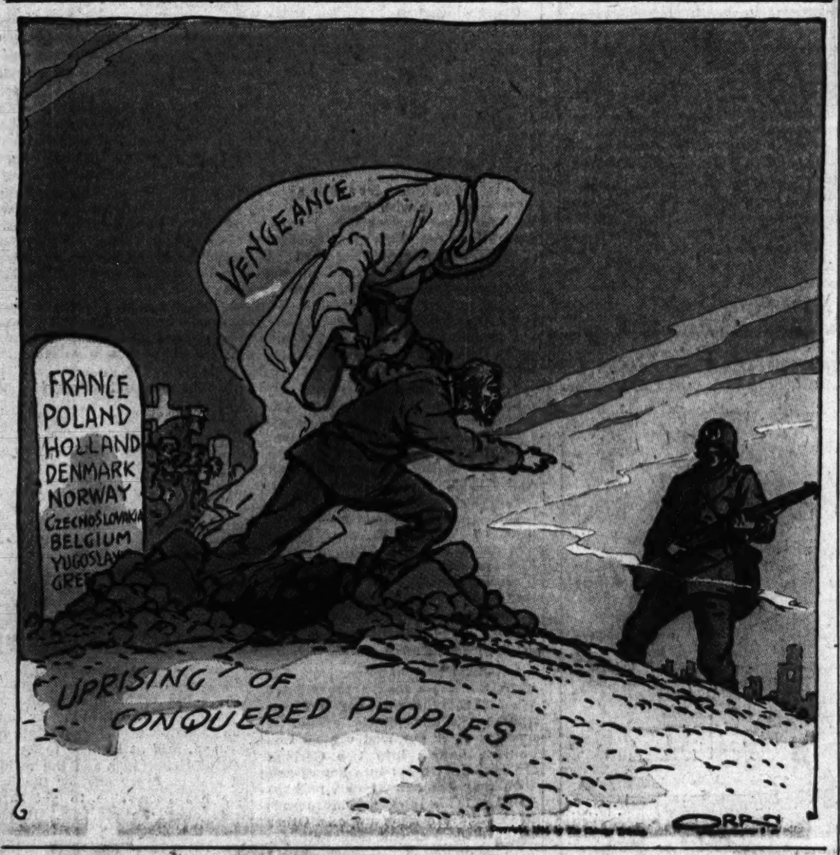
Seattle, Wash., Aug. 18 (AP).—United States troops, swinging night sticks, subdued a minor revolt at Fort Lawton July 10 by Italian prisoners who objected to being sent to Hawaiian work camps, a Seattle port of embarkation spokesman disclosed.

Some of the Italians suffered minor injuries, but none was hospitalized, and all were put aboard a ship for Hawaii.

"The prisoners still were under the impression that the axis was winning the war," the official said, "and believed Hawaii to be under constant attack."

The prisoners involved, army officers said, were in a category different from members of the Italian service unit at Fort Lawton who were attacked by Negro soldiers in an incident this week.

BACK FROM THEIR GRAVES THEY BRING DEATH



Home Owners Fight Invasion by U. S. Plan

Charging that federal and Chicago housing officials by erection of war workers' homes would ruin "the finest Negro residential development in the United States," Negro property owners of the West Chesterfield community on Chicago's south side petitioned federal court yesterday for vacation of an order condemning lots in their area. Judge Michael Igoe set the petition for hearing by Judge Elwyn R. Shaw on Sept. 12.

The action came after Judge Shaw on July 20 signed the order, presented by government attorneys, under which lots would be condemned for the erection of 250 homes for Negro war workers which are to be sold to private owners after the war.

Held Example of Race Initiative.

The West Chesterfield community, located between 91st and 95th streets and State st., and South Park way, now contains 71 homes erected in the last five years and ranging in cost from $6,000 to $44,000. The community is declared to be the only one of its kind in the United States and a demonstration to the world that Negroes can, on their own initiative and without public or charity financing, overcome the economic handicaps of their race and develop a home community comparable with any white neighborhood.

Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the Chicago housing authority, said the war worker homes, which she claimed would average $6,000 in cost, would not equal the finest homes in the community, but would compare favorably with the average. However, property owners pointed out that, under the Lanham act, by which federal officials will finance the project, the average cost of houses is limited to $3,000 and no one house can cost more than $3,950.

Community Backs Petition.

The petition, filed in behalf of seven property owners, is supported, Atty. Aaron Payne said, by almost the entire community, which includes doctors, lawyers, dentists, school teachers, and civil service employes.

The property owners point out they agree with the Chicago housing authority that new homes for Negroes are needed urgently, but contend a 400 acre area is available just south of 95th st., between South Park and Harvard avs., on which there are no dwellings now and where as many as 5,000 dwelling units can be erected without detriment to existing property values. In addition, it is asserted an 800 acre plot is vacant north of the selected project location.

The property owners point specifically to an area between State st., and Michigan av., south of 95th st., bordering on a Negro playground.

Point to Other Projects.

They also declare that two housing projects for Negro workers, consisting of 2,600 dwelling units, are being completed on the south side. These units and the lapse of at least 190 days required for the erection of the proposed 250 additional units will eliminate much of the need for housing for war workers, it is argued.

Among the protesting property owners is Albert Lee Pryor, a seaman in the United States navy now stationed in San Diego, who has written to Judge Shaw, pointing out that the government housing official's offer of $640 for his lot is far below the $1,079.42 he has invested in it.

"I don't want to sell my land because it was my life's ambition to build my home after serving my country in the armed forces," Pryor wrote to Judge Shaw.

PLANE LOSSES LESS THAN ANTICIPATED; 294,000 TO LOSE JOBS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—America's losses in heavy bombers have been so much less than anticipated that production is being cut back gradually and 294,000 workers will be laid off in the aircraft industry by next July, Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of air staff, said today.

At the vast Ford Willow Run plant in Detroit a reduction of 50 per cent will be effective by December.

Testifying before the senate national defense committee on disposal of surplus war property, he said that more than 1,900,000 aircraft workers are now employed, and that "we figure approximately 100,000 will be cut out by the first of the year."

He said that while Willow Run employment will be reduced to roughly 15,000 by December, "we want to keep something" there in order to adjust production plans "if we're wrong."

Hail Montreal Ex-Mayor in Homecoming

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 18 (AP).—Camillien Houde returned tonight to the city which in former years had witnessed his greatest triumphs and his darkest moments.

Camillien Houde.

He came back to his native Montreal four years after his internment for urging citizens not to participate in national registration and five years after he had welcomed the king and queen in one of the most brilliant social functions of his eight years as mayor.

The concourse of Central station was jammed with spectators, mingling with outgoing passengers, to catch a glimpse of the man who had served as mayor of Montreal, and who, until the recent Quebec elections, had remained thruout internment technically the representative of Montreal-St. Mary riding in the provincial legislature.

Cheered by Crowd.

The former mayor had boarded the train at St. Hyacinthe, Que., after being met at Sherbrooke, Que., the day before by his wife and three daughters. He was released from an internment camp near Fredericton early this week.

The crowd cheered as Houde stepped into the concourse, and surged around him as he was led to a microphone.

"Such a reception is not only proof of your friendship and esteem," he said, "but it is also a warning to present authorities that they must feel public opinion as it is."

In an interview before his train reached Montreal, Houde said "I have no immediate plans for myself, but for the nation—yes. . . I am waiting for events which could bring a great change."

Such events he listed as the end of the war, a federal election or developments in the provincial political field.

Silent on Mayoralty.

Of his four years' internment he said:

"I spent four years in an internment camp for the nation only. I was always cheerful, so as to give a good example to others. I couldn't appear demoralized before those poor people whose families are abroad and whose only news is death notices."

He said he had "no idea" whether he would run again for the Montreal mayoralty in municipal elections next December.

"I will go where the population needs me most," he said. He would not amplify the remark.

DRIVE ENEMY TOWARD SEINE TRAP; PATTON'S TANKS BAR ROAD TO PARIS

Raid on Big Base Fires Battleship Strasbourg.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 18 (AP).—American 7th army troops smashed 20 miles inland behind the great French naval base of Toulon today, threatening a wide outflanking movement along the main highway leading to the Rhone valley.

Toulon also was threatened by a coastal drive that smashed into the vicinity of Solliès-Pont, only 6 miles northeast of the stronghold.

[The British radio quoted one of its correspondents as saying that "Toulon is going to fall and fall very soon. The Germans have thrown up a hastily built screen of mobile guns and infantry to give protection to the rest of their men as they pulled out of the city."]

Veterans of Africa, Italy, and Sicily under Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch punched inland to the vicinity of Brignoles, 20 miles north of Toulon. The city is on the main highway leading to Marseilles and Aix-en-Provence and ultimately to the Rhone valley.

[A German radio military commentator said the first major allied thrusts into the interior probably would be along the road leading to Aix-en-Provence in a general western direction aimed at outflanking Toulon.]

Spearhead Divisions Named.

The three infantry divisions that spearheaded the invasion were identified as the 3d, 36th, and 45th. The 3d is under Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel of Washington, D. C., the 36th "Texas" is commanded by Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist of Minneapolis, and the 45th "Oklahoma" is directed by Maj. Gen. W. W. Eagles of Indiana.

Joined with these are the largest air borne forces ever sent into action in this theater, commanded aground by Maj. Gen. Robert P. Fredrick.

American planes struck behind the German lines in the Rhone valley, intent on choking lines of retreat or reinforcement, and other American bombers caused fires and explosions on the French battleship Strasbourg in Toulon harbor, where it was being used by the Nazis as a coastal fortress.

The Strasbourg, a 26,500 ton warship launched in 1936, was partly submerged by the French when they scuttled their fleet at Toulon in 1941.

Cruiser Also Hit.

Crewmen of B-25 Mitchells said they scored several direct hits on the 702 foot warship and also hit the French cruiser La Galissonniere, a destroyer, and a submarine.

Farther to the east other elements of the 7th army drove against slight opposition three miles west and southwest of captured Draguignan, the road center 16 miles west-northwest of Frejus.

Headquarters announced the capture of the second Nazi general in two days, and said he professed amazement at the news of the Normandy and Brittany campaigns in the north and the German reverses near East Prussia.

Headquarters said that the known American assault casualties for the southern French invasion were only 300, and said 7,000 German prisoners had been taken in a count still far from complete.

Resistance Still Minor.

German defenses crumbled in many sectors and the Nazis had mustered no big scale resistance. There was no indication of what the Nazi command might be able to do to reinforce its fading units.

"Embracing more than 500 square miles, the beachhead area is believed to be the largest created in a combined operation in less than

BULGARS WEIGH PEACE MOVE, SOFIA REPORTS

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Sofia radio said tonight that the Bulgarian parliament had begun debate on Premier Ivan Bagrianov's "peace" speech, and quoted two deputies as endorsing major features of the address.

One deputy, said the broadcast heard by United States government monitors, called upon Bagrianov to "act quickly" after asserting that "this speech was a revelation and expression of the Bulgarian nation's desire and firm determination to get out of the war."

[Unconfirmed reports from Cairo transmitted from London said Bulgarian emissaries already were dealing with allied representatives in a neutral country for peace. One report said Stoicho Moshanov, former speaker of the Bulgarian parliament and an anti-German, had arrived in Ankara on what might be a peace mission.]

Report People Hail Move.

There was no word on whether Bagrianov's speech, in which he said his government was "determined to remove all obstacles" in the way of peace, had drawn any adverse comment.

Another deputy, identified as Nikola Mushanov, political veteran who has held various posts in past cabinets, approved of the government's declaration in substance.

The Turkish radio in a broadcast to Bulgaria tonight, also heard by government monitors, said the Sofia population were hailing Bagrianov as "the savior of Bulgaria."

Hint Finns Seek Armistice.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 18 (AP).—Sources closely following the Finnish situation said tonight that intensive secret activity by the Mannerheim government indicated concrete steps toward an armistice with Russia may be in the making, perhaps within two weeks.

Speculating on the political activity on the basis of information seeping thru Finnish censorship, these sources reasoned Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim, Finland's new president, was busy on a move toward pulling out of the war. He was reported to have obtained assurances from each cabinet member that they would support Mannerheim's efforts to extricate Finland from the war.

Pilot-Guided Flying Bomb Hits London, Nazis Claim

LONDON, Aug. 19 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Berlin radio made this statement today: "A new and larger type of flying bomb carrying a pilot hit London Friday. The pilot took the bomb over its target and then bailed out at the last minute, just before the crash."

Americans 12 Miles from Capital, Say Germans.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 19 [Saturday]—(AP).—The bulk of the German 15th army from the north French "rocket coast" has been thrown into an 11th hour attempt to avert a Normandy debacle and has gone down to a defeat that may spell an allied victory in the battle for France, it was disclosed officially last night.

Mighty allied forces were driving the beaten 15th and 7th armies toward a trap against the all but bridgeless Seine river, and Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's tanks smashing to the vicinity of Paris—only 12 miles away by German accounts—had blocked off their retreat toward the French capital.

Gen. Eisenhower summoned his field commanders to an urgent conference as the surging allied lines developed a great enveloping drive west of Paris, where a senior British officer disclosed the Germans had hurriedly sent about half their crack 15th army.

More Allies in Action.

Americans, British, Canadians, Poles, Dutch, and Belgians—the last two disclosed for the first time to be in action—were in hot pursuit of the estimated 40,000 to 100,000 enemy troops of 16 divisions who had squeezed from the Normandy pocket with most of their tanks and were in full retreat toward Rouen. The Nazis also were under ceaseless aerial assault.

The surprise news that the 15th army, which on D-day was the main German army in France, had been committed to the Normandy cauldron, came from a staff officer at 21st army group headquarters. He likened its fate to that of the broken 7th army.

The officer said the Nazis' offensive power was spent, that they are capable only of rearguard action, and that in winning the battle of Normandy the allies will have won the battle of France.

Army Mauled in Two Weeks.

Half of the 15th army, it is estimated, was thrown into Normandy in the last two weeks and has been badly mauled.

[The allied radio at Algiers said 400,000 Germans had been put out of action in northern France and 60,000 more were surrounded in the ports of Brittany.]

The German command, said the British officer, sent the 15th into action "in pieces and too late." He said the enemy was forced to make this move because of Patton's drive to the Orleans gap south of Paris, thru which the Germans were reenforcing Normandy.

Supreme headquarters announced it was "unable to confirm" reports that American forces were near Versailles, seven miles southwest of Paris.

Yanks Expand Bridgehead.

It reported, however, that American forces had widened their bridgehead over the Eure river both northeast and southeast of Dreux, only 20 miles from the Seine. It may have been this drive which apparently prompted the Germans to check their rush toward Paris and veer north toward Rouen.

Supreme headquarters said the Falaise-Argentan gap now had been narrowed to two miles, altho a front line broadcast had reported it snapped shut entirely around Trun, southeast of Falaise.

[CBS Correspondent Bill Downs, broadcasting from the front, described the allied aerial attack on enemy vehicles on roads near Trun as "one of the most destructive" blows thus far delivered from the air. Latest estimates, he said, were that more than 2,300 German trucks, buses, automobiles, carts, and wagons were destroyed in addition to 150 enemy tanks.]

Already those Germans who could get thru the gap had to straggle out southeast from Argentan, then move northeast toward the Seine. Before them was another probable trap.

The sea was on the north, American armored might was on the south, the British and Canadians with their allies were plunging in from the west, and the Seine, with all but one bridge blasted, lay ahead of the Nazis.

Allied air fleets were out in great strength to pound the enemy on both sides of the Seine.

The Germans were backing into a "Dunkerque" of their own at the Seine and, like the British in June, 1940, were summoning a motley fleet to try to get their forces across the wide river to Rouen.

Allied planes destroyed at least 23 of the 500 or more barges waiting to ferry the Germans across, along with 33 armored and 612 other vehicles trying to get them to the river.

An Associated Press correspondent said Patton's forces, blocking off this harried army on the south, were "driving forward on the last lap toward Paris" from Chartres.

Patrols in Vicinity of Paris.

American patrols ranged in sight of the Eiffel tower thru the vicinity of Paris, he reported.

The German air force attempted to strike with its old fury against this menace around Dreux, but 50 enemy fighters were knocked down.

German broadcasts said the Americans were 18 miles from Paris at one unspecified point and were attacking Rambouillet, 23 miles west of the capital and Etampes, 28 miles southwest.]

Once more supreme headquarters covered its movements with a blanket of secrecy, the usual signal that armor is traveling fast again, but the capture of Authon, only 30 miles south of Paris, was confirmed.

While the big American forces were lashing out to the north and east, on their southern flank they captured Vendome, 43 miles southeast of Le Mans.

To the west of this new enveloping movement, the Argentan-Falaise neck of the Normandy trap was reported shut by a junction of Canadians from the north with Americans from the south at Trun, 10 miles southeast of Falaise.

But already the pocket had dwindled to such insignificance that big British and Canadian forces were released and were driving straight east after the enemy, hurdling one river barrier after another. At one point they were no more than 55 miles from Rouen.

Drive for Mouth of Seine.

The British, pouring across the Dives river, lashed out four to six miles east of fallen Troarn, seven miles east of Caen, in a drive along the coast toward the mouth of the Seine.

Farther south, and in the vanguard of the eastward push were the Poles, who struck out 15 miles east of Falaise and seized Les Champeaux, about 55 miles southwest of Rouen.

Between the British and the Poles, other allied forces swept up Mezidon, 14 miles southeast of Caen.

Behind these forces other Polish units closed to Chambois, six miles northeast of Argentan.

[The Germans said American armor of the 3d army had swung north to Gace and Laigle, astride the main road east from Argentan to Dreux, which would sever all remaining highways out of the pocket.]

In Brittany the citadel of St. Malo on the north coast surrendered with its remaining garrison of 560 and its commander, Col. Andreas von Aulock, who had declared he would fight to the death.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Of France, yesterday's broadcast German war bulletin said:

"The protruding front bend west of the Orne river in Normandy was taken back behind the river. The enemy attempted with strong forces to push into this movement east and northeast of Falaise, coming from a northern direction. The enemy forces, however, were checked after fierce fighting. Enemy turning movements were smashed by our counter-thrusts in the Argentan area. The narrow pass between Falaise and Argentan has thus been enlarged.

"A fierce battle still is being waged for Chartres.

"Violent fighting was raging also in Orleans all day long against American troops who occupied the town.

"The garrison of St. Malo succumbed to enemy superiority after heavy enemy fire silenced all their heavy arms. The garrison of St. Malo at the last was able to defend itself only with small arms. Soldiers of all armed forces, including the commander, Col. Von Aulock, have resisted the onslaught of the strongest enemy forces in almost three weeks of heroic fighting, inflicting on the enemy considerable casualties. Their struggle will go down into the annals of history."

SNIPERS RETARD ALLIED CAPTURE OF ALL FLORENCE

ROME, Aug. 18 (AP).—German snipers still were active in the northwest and northeast suburbs of Florence today, delaying complete allied occupation of the city.

The situation in northern Florence was reported officially to have improved since yesterday, when German tanks were believed to have penetrated the area.

Minor patrol clashes and artillery duels comprised virtually all the activity on the remainder of the Italian front. The Germans abandoned Rosano, 1⅛ miles south of Pontassieve in the upper Tiber valley, and apparently pulled out of other outposts farther east.

ALLIES NAB 95% OF NAZI SPIES IN LIBERATED ITALY

ROME, Aug. 17 [Delayed]—(AP).—Allied authorities today announced 95 per cent of the Italian spies and saboteurs sent by the Germans to liberated Italy have been rounded up.

The announcement said their arrest had been made easier by "the cynical disregard displayed by the Germans" for the lives and safety of those whom they employed.

Sixteen of those arrested have been executed, many have been sentenced to death, and a large number are awaiting trial.

Robots Attack London, but Cause No Deaths

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP).—Flying bombs penetrated home defenses of southern England and the London area today and caused damage but no fatalities. Fighters and anti-aircraft guns brought down some of the robots. R. A. F. Lancasters attacked a new robot underground supply depot at L'Isle Adam, about 15 miles north of Paris.

LANDING GEAR PLANS STOLEN.

Plans for a new type airplane landing gear, a .38 caliber revolver, two electric razors and a portable drill, with a total value of $1,000, were stolen from the automobile of Joseph Wilhoit, 6424 Kimbark av., while it was parked at 127 E. Cermak rd., he told police last night.

FINDS A CHICAGO GIRL AIDING U. S. ARMY IN FRANCE

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES NEAR ORLEANS, France, Aug. 15 [Delayed].—As American armored columns many miles long rolled in triumph down roads lined with deliriously happy French toward the city of Joan of Arc fame, the day was filled with amazing incidents. Perhaps the most amazing was meeting a former Chicago girl who now wears a makeshift G. I. uniform, somewhat like a modern "Joan," and accompanies a reconnaissance outfit as interpreter.

She is Monica Storrs, 25, formerly of East Delaware pl., Chicago, who has just been freed from prison where she had served 21 days for pro-French activity. After her release from the Germans, she joined the reconnaissance unit led by 2d Lt. Robert Downs of Harrisburg, Pa., just before it did a little job—shooting up German trucks, killing several of the enemy, and firing an ammunition dump. Downs' men said she was very cool during the brush with the Nazi forces.

More Chicagoans in Outfit.

Other Chicagoans in Downs' party—which brought back five prisoners—were Pvt. Richard Swanson, 1927 W. 34th pl., and Pvt. William Willard, 4336 S. Spaulding av. They, with Corp. Robert McCrory of Appleton, Wis., said they had killed or wounded four Jerries. Total casualties were a bullet hole in the radiator of an armored car.

Miss Storrs, incidentally, just before taking off today for another possible encounter with Germans, said demurely that Lt. Downs had promised to have her home early tonight.

Another correspondent and I joined the armored force in the afternoon and accompanied them until about dusk. Their march was one of the most triumphal we have yet seen in France. [Since this dispatch was written the Americans have won Orleans.]

Race to Greet Americans.

Much of the way we saw French people walking or running or bicycling down side roads, lanes, and thru the fields to reach the main road to welcome "Les Americains." And a royal welcome it was.

French flags were brought from hiding. American flags were made in a twinkling—with none caring whether they put in 12 or 48 stars. Flowers pelted the vehicles and a profusion of wine, apples, or tomatoes was handed to the occupants.

Some towns even strung hastily made welcome signs.

Yanks Catch Some Germans.

Finally, about 12 miles from Orleans the party took a sober turn. We were told there were several Nazi guns, tanks, and vehicles ahead. A moment later our lead vehicle was pouring bullets into two German trucks. Both burst into flames and then four American tanks, perhaps half a mile ahead, poured murderous fire along the edge of a woods. Other tanks flushed the undergrowth for possible enemy.

Finally Don Grant, a Des Moines, Ia., reporter and I climbed atop one of our foremost tanks. Suddenly it opened fire on a cluster of trees. Then a second tank opened fire and a lone German came out of the woods, his hands in the air. He soon was joined by a second, then they picked up a wounded man and walked slowly to us.

The Germans said their mission had been to fight the French resistance movement which, as Lt. Downs already had told us, was very strong in this area.

Other Chicagoans moved toward a clump and caught three more Germans, one of them also wounded.

Women Lose Hair as French Celebrate

CHARTRES, France, Aug. 16 [Delayed]—(AP).—French mobs, celebrating the end of four years of Nazi rule, ran mad with freedom today. Townsfolk beat up collaborationists, clipped the heads of 30 women who had consorted with German troops, and fought enemy snipers. Five patriots were killed fighting the last hundred Germans to flee.

The men, women and children of this city of 25,000 surged all day around the gates of the prefecture. Each new German prisoner was greeted with jeers and derisive "heil Hitlers." The prisoners appeared dazed and in fear. Periodically the French broke into "La Marseillaise."

A small courtyard was covered with the hair of sheared women collaborators. Each new suspect was dragged in and put in a chair. Her head was clipped by a barber. "He makes no charge," laughed a girl onlooker.

Most of the women remained silent but an 18 year old girl ran behind a door and sobbed, "I have not been with Germans."

"She lies," said a woman with a rifle slung over her shoulder. Men led the girl thru the streets so all could see her.

ST. RAPHAEL, Southern France, Aug. 18 (AP).—The heads of 25 girls were clipped by a barber in front of the town hall today as punishment for having been too friendly with the Germans.

While jeering townspeople and embarrassed American soldiers crowded about, the girls were plunked one by one into the chair. They had been sentenced by a seven man committee of liberation.

An old woman hit one of the girls on the head with a basket as she was made to walk thru a lane of people after the hair cutting, but otherwise the crowd did not touch the girls. One woman with golden brown tresses crossed her knees and tilted her head coyly as the clippers slid over her skull, but the others wept and buried their heads in their hands.

WAR BLESSING: BRITISH ASSURED OF 3 MEALS A DAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Nutritionally, Britain has never been better fed in its history than it is in war time, Tom Johnston, secretary of state for Scotland, said at Dundee today.

Despite shortages and the rationing system, every one for the first time has been able to get three meals daily, he asserted. It was tragic that it took a war to ensure that those needing them most—children and infants—got priorities on fruit juices and other protective foods, he said.

GERMANS THROW GIANT TANKS IN FRENCH BATTLE

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Germans have thrown a huge new, heavily armored tank into action on the Russian and northern French fronts, but first reports denied it was a "super weapon."

One of the new monsters, weighing over 65 tons and with 6 inch armor plate, was taken by the British on the Orne river front. The tank was a victim of a mechanical breakdown and never had fired a shot in battle.

Christened the Pantiger by its captors, the tank combines the best features of the heavy Nazi Tiger and Panther tanks. The Pantiger, 23 feet long and more than 11 feet wide, has an extra wheel on each side of its tracks and a huge, clumsy looking turret.

three days during this war," allied headquarters said.

Unhampered on the beaches, the allies were building up their forces and supplies with surprising speed.

"The roads are clogged with army traffic in unending streams," reported Herbert L. Matthews, New York Times correspondent for the combined American press.

"We are pouring in troops and material at a rate probably faster than in any other amphibious operation. This campaign is geared for speed and tremendous power, although it had to begin on exceedingly narrow beachheads."

Beachhead Size a Secret.

Headquarters was silent on the exact size of the beachhead. The latest official report was that it extended 50 miles air line from east to west, and front dispatches placed allied units more than 30 miles inland.

French and American units had driven to four miles from Cannes on the east, where they captured La Napoule, a coastal village. Allied headquarters made no comment on a German report that the invaders had driven into Cannes.

Elements of only two German divisions, the 242d and the 148th, have been identified as opposing the 7th army.

Against these Gen. Patch threw three of the toughest American divisions in the European war zone.

Joined with these was the largest French army to see action since 1940, including infantry, armored divisions, special assault units, and Commandos.

Big Bridges Bombed.

Continuing their attempts to isolate the whole battle area, American bombers hammered two large highway bridges over the Rhone river, one 70 miles and the other 85 miles north of Marseille.

A naval bulletin announced that aircraft carriers were being used in the operations, with both British and American planes operating from them, giving protection to allied warships as well as bombing and strafing enemy positions.

A civil affairs division has begun operation on the beachhead in southern France in coöperation with local French civil officials, headquarters announced.

"Initial steps have already been taken to bring in food and supplies, principally from the United States and North Africa," headquarters reported.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Germany's broadcast war bulletin said yesterday:

"The enemy enlarged and reënforced his bridgehead between Toulon and Cannes. Our rearguards and barrage formations warded off enemy armored reconnoitering forces probing in a northern direction. Several attempts made by the enemy to land fresh troops west of Toulon collapsed."

INVASION CHIEF PATCH NAMED FOR PROMOTION

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt today nominated for promotion to lieutenant general Alexander M. Patch Jr., commander of the 7th American army invading southern France. Patch now holds the temporary rank of major general. And his present permanent rank is colonel of infantry.

The President also nominated Capt. John L. McCrea, U. S. N., of Marlette, Mich., who was his naval aide from January, 1942, to February, 1943, to be a rear admiral. McCrea left his White House assignment to become the first skipper of the battleship Iowa.

The President also nominated Brig. Gen. James G. Christiansen of Portland, Ore., chief of staff of the army ground forces, for promotion to major general. Brig. Gen. William Frazer Tompkins of Richmond, Va., chief of the army's special post-war planning division, also was nominated to be a major general.

SAFE AND $42 STOLEN.

Joseph McMahon, operator of a gasoline station at 7600 S. Ashland av., told police last night that burglars broke into his station Thursday night and stole a 20 inch by 10 inch safe containing $42 and an assortment of tools.

WAR SURROUNDS FAMED ANGERS, BUT SPARES CITY

Yanks and Nazis Face Each Other at River.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANGERS, France, Aug. 18.—A sniper's bullet pinged past three soldiers erecting the Stars and Stripes atop a big building. In the courtyard, a jeep disgorged eight German prisoners.

Except for such rare scenes as these, and the occasional boom of a field gun, or the clatter of an ancient auto bearing patriot fighters of the French forces of the interior [FFI], Angers might be a lovely old town far behind the lines. Yet this capital of the ancient duchy of Anjou, which gave England its Plantagenet kings, is in the front lines.

Angers lies athwart the River Maine near its confluence with the Loire. The Americans hold the north bank and, except for our patrols, the Germans hold the other side, Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley being content for a time to rest the right flank of his 12th army group on the Loire.

Nazis Pushed Over River.

The outskirts of Angers were a battleground a week ago Tuesday when an American tank column battered the German defenders across the river.

At that time we smashed what was left of the big marine barracks on the northern edge of the town. This base and its air field earlier had been prime allied bomber targets. Nothing is left now but debris.

The bridges over the Maine within the town and the Loire have been broken by our bombs, which also smashed a few buildings, but caused little damage to the city. However, the bombers did cause great dismay among the inhabitants, who feared the raiders might hit Angers' most famous edifice, the great castle built by Fulk the Third in 1228.

For days the citizens have been coming in to this great feudal stronghold, the reputed birthplace of King Rene. They wanted to see the extent of the damage. They found bombs had riddled the interior courtyard and hit a huge drum tower.

Battlements Stand Firm.

But the massive battlements had withstood the bombing better than many a modern bomb shelter and, in general, damage to the castle was not great.

Today across the ancient drawbridge spanning a 100 foot moat we saw soldiers from the Blue Ridge country trundling a captured Italian gun to join masses of other captured German equipment.

Sometimes the Nazis across the river send raiding parties across to forage.

American activity in this sector consists of patrols and sporadic artillery fire to let the Germans know we intend to remain here. Occasionally, the Americans round up a German patrol on this side of the river.

Little of War to be Seen.

The FFI has been most active in this area and FFI soldiers report their colleagues are killed whenever captured by the Germans.

But the average resident now sees little of the war. The American drive has been to the east and life in this sleepy French provincial city goes on much as it did before the war.

Shops and cafes are running full blast and restaurants serve excellent meals. Beauty shops are open. Perfumers and milliners offer many wares. France's women, despite the war, use every artifice to enhance their beauty, an attraction not unnoticed by the American soldiers.

6,000 WARPLANES BLAST NAZIS IN FOUR COUNTRIES

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP).—Six thousand allied war planes blasted the Germans today from the west and south in eight attacks spread over four European countries and tonight R. A. F. bombers raided Bremen and Sterkrade in the Ruhr and Berlin.

United States bombers from the Mediterranean area hammered the Ploesti and Campina oil fields in Romania.

Six air fields and a plane engine works northeast of Paris were pounded by two formations of up to 750 American heavy bombers from Britain. In their third operation Flying Fortresses swung over to Holland and Belgium, battering bottlenecks on transport routes.

Despite sustained attacks against the Germans' inland air fields, Nazi fighters contested today's assaults with unusual ferocity. The allied raiders shot down 35 German planes and destroyed at least 51 on the ground. Allied losses were 21 fighters and two bombers.

Yank Who Bagged 6 Nazis in One Fight Decorated

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP).—Maj. George E. Preddy of Greensboro, N. C., Mustang fighter, was awarded the distinguished service cross today for shooting down six German planes in the Hamburg area Aug. 6, setting a new American record for one action in this theater. Preddy has 24½ victories aloft and has destroyed five planes aground.

U. S. General Questions Prisoner

HITLER'S PAPER SAYS NAZIS MAY GIVE UP FRANCE

Elastic Defense Seen as New Strategy.

Broadcasts by German radios, monitored in New York and London yesterday, provided this information:

Hitler's personal newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, said the German army would pull out of France wherever necessary to "maintain operational freedom" and to keep the forces in being until miracle weapons could "change the whole aspect of the war. This final goal is more important than holding on to French towns and departments."

The Transocean military commentator, Ludwig Sertorius, said that "the strategy of German defense will be changed, or already has been changed," as a result of rapid allied advances between the middle Seine and middle Loire.

Elastic Defense Seen.

"As during the various phases of the eastern campaign, elastic defense in deep space now seems also applicable in the west," he said. "Mobility of the enemy will be counteracted by mobility of defense. In this defense there will be no striving rapidly to use available reserves, but rather to keep them back and concentrate them for counterblows when the opportune moment arrives."

A German foreign office spokesman said Pierre Laval, the Vichy chief of government, would soon join Benito Mussolini as a guest of Hitler in Germany. He added that the removal of the Vichy government to a safer place was being considered and a decision would be announced today.

DNB, in a report heard by Reuters, said, "Americans have brought up reinforcements to the Brest sector and a new onslaught on that port is imminent."

Predicts Big Red Blow.

Lt. Col. Alfred von Olberg, another German military commentator, said of the Russian front:

"All the present operations are overshadowed by plans now being hatched by the Russian command for the extension of its summer offensive. There is no doubt at all that a new and still greater soviet summer offensive will be breaking at any time."

Measures were announced for extending total war mobilization to the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, formerly Czechoslovakia.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Pvt. Charles Miles carries parasol he found while on duty in Normandy.

DNB German News agency said:

"There will be a ban on horse-racing and the closing down of a number of newspapers. No newspaper will be published on Mondays.

"All businesses not engaged in war work will be closed. All persons not vitally necessary in the legal profession are to be put on vital war work."

AUSTRALIA TO VOTE TODAY ON STATE RIGHTS

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 18 (AP).—Australian voters will be called upon tomorrow to decide whether the government of Prime Minister John Curtin should be given additional power for five years after the war to handle post-war problems.

When the war started the commonwealth government passed the national security act giving it wide powers, many of which in peace time would be within the jurisdiction of state governments. The measure terminates when the war ends.

The commonwealth government and many of the state governments feel that the wide powers of the central government should be continued in the post-war period. The election will determine just how far these powers will go. Involved is the extent of government jurisdiction over transport, price fixing, national health, markets, public works, employment, and production of some essential commodities.

GABBING CAUSED FEAR OF HOAX IN RIVIERA LANDING

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Aug. 18. — One of the amazing features of the invasion of southern France is that it is going so well in the first stages despite being preceded by more breaches of security than ever attended other operations in this theater. The Riviera show has been called the worst kept secret of the war.

In fact, so flagrant were the violations of security that many believed for a time that the whole plan was a gigantic hoax, would never come off, and that the loose talk was deliberately being encouraged by our military authorities to worry the Germans while we struck elsewhere. This belief was enhanced by reports that the attack on southern France was on again, off again a half dozen times since the Normandy invasion.

Everybody Talks.

But late in July it was apparent that the Riviera landing was definitely to occur and that the allied army, navy, and air force units were committed beyond recall. And yet the security leaks continued. American, British, and French military personnel and Red Cross workers and Italian civilians and churchmen talked of the invasion freely.

A churchman in Rome early in August asked his flock to pray for the success of the coming attack in the Riviera sector.

War correspondents frequently are given advance information on operations and for that reason are as a class more security minded than others. We were aghast therefore at the way military secrets were being bruited on street corners and in cafes, bars, and hotel lobbies thruout Italy and the manner in which speculation as to the dates, exact locations, and strength of forces was going unchecked.

The Gabbing Goes On.

Several correspondents reported these brayings to the military leaders and were assured that the offenders would be disciplined or cautioned. But the indiscriminate gabbing went on.

Here are some instances of how secrecy was being destroyed:

On July 20, in Livorno [Leghorn], I was standing in a crowd of doughboys and Italian civilians when an American Red Cross worker blared out, "I've got to leave here pretty soon and get to Naples by Aug. 1 because I'm going to be in the invasion of southern France a few weeks after that."

A soldier in Naples was heard naming the American divisions which would participate in the attack, and one of his buddies added to that by naming some of the warships which would be in the show. Both were correct.

Bets on Exact Hour.

An allied officer was reported to have wagered early in August that D-day was Aug. 15 and H-hour 8 a. m. He said that was his own opinion, but hitting the day and hour on the head like that certainly was startling and suspect, particularly as most of our Mediterranean operations have begun at night.

There were frequent remarks that the invasion coast was east of Toulon and in the vicinity of Cannes. One correspondent went into a Rome book shop two weeks ago to buy a guide to southern France. Hoping to conceal his purpose, he sandwiched that transaction between the purchase of guides to other countries.

The book shop proprietor grinned at him and said, "You are being more careful than the American officers. They come in and ask for maps of southern France and talk of Toulon and Cannes."

"What's the Difference?"

Some of the uninhibited conversationalists, when approached by more security sensitive persons, replied, "What's the difference? The Germans knew we were coming across the channel and that didn't hurt that operation."

The analogy is not accurate. The allies for two years made no secret of their intention to invade northern France, there were official utterances on the subject and the area was the logical place for opening a big front. But there had not been authoritative remarks concerning southern France and the latter show involved high strategic consideration.

The leakage of information regarding the Riviera offensive was a far cry from the virtually complete security which attended the invasion of North Africa in November, 1942, and it is stil' a marvel why the Germans were not prepared for us the morning of Aug. 15.

RUSSIANS TAKE CITY, CIRCLE 3 NAZI DIVISIONS

Widen Bridgehead West of Vistula.

LONDON, Aug. 19 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian troops yesterday overwhelmed a Vistula river stronghold 110 miles below Warsaw after a three day street fight and trapped three German divisions of possibly 30,000 men. Another soviet army massed on the German East Prussian frontier threatened momentarily to spill onto German soil for the first time.

Schirwindt, border town, and other villages in German East Prussia were reported by soviet naval flyers to be in flames, and Berlin said the Russians had hurled more than 150,000 men into this battle on an 80 mile front.

The captured Vistula river stronghold is Sandomierz. Twenty-one more localities were seized in that area and the three German divisions were trapped just north of the city.

Vistula Bridgehead Widened.

Premier Stalin, in an order of the day addressed to Marshal Ivan S. Konev, commander of the 1st Ukraine army, disclosed that the Russians since Aug. 3, when they crossed the Vistula, had advanced up to 31 miles and widened their western bridgehead to a length of 75 miles.

Axis broadcasts said soviet troops on the Romanian front had attempted to cross the lower Dnestr river, suggesting the Russians might be preparing an offensive toward the Ploesti oil fields.

The Russian daily bulletin said Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian army had gone over to the offensive in some sectors just east of Praga, east bank suburb of Warsaw, after repulsing German counter-attacks.

Nazis Tell of Heavy Fight.

Moscow was silent about the East Prussian front, but Berlin said heavy fighting was going on with the "center of gravity" at Virbalis, western Lithuanian town three miles from the border on the Kaunas-Koenigsberg highway. Berlin acknowledged the loss of Vilkaviskis, 12 miles from the border, whose recapture had been claimed recently. Virbalis and Vilkaviskis lie below the point where the Russians are reported to have reached the East Prussian border on Thursday.

In Estonia units of Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's 3d Baltic army crossed the channel linking Lakes Pskov and Peipus, seized a six mile wide strip of territory on the west side and drove nine miles inland in a push toward Tartu, Estonia's second city, with a population of 60,000. Another Russian force advanced to within 15½ miles of Tartu and, Moscow said, killed 1,000 Nazis.

In Latvia another soviet army captured 30 localities.

West of the Lithuanian town of Siaulial, the Russians admitted German forces drove "a slight wedge" into Russian lines.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN.

Berlin's broadcast war report yesterday said:

"In eastern Romania, troops frustrated Soviet attacks aimed at crossing the lower Dnestr river.

"In the forefield of the Carpathians out of Sanok and northwest of Krosno, heavy fighting has started again.

"Repeated Soviet thrusts in the Vistula bridgehead west of Baranow were foiled.

"The Soviets continued their attacks on both sides of Vilkaviskis, which was again lost.

"On the Latvian front, enemy attempt to break thru north of Birsen collapsed.

"In Estonia, numerous enemy attacks were either warded off or intercepted. In the area between Lake Pskov and Lake Peipus, fierce fighting developed with the Soviets who crossed to the western side.

"Forty enemy planes were downed in an attempted attack by Soviet bombers at Kirkenes."

ALLIED BOMBERS HELP PATRIOTS' ARMY IN WARSAW

ROME, Aug. 18 (AP).—Allied bombers from southern Italy have been dropping supplies, weapons, and ammunitions to the Polish patriot army of Gen. Bor, which is fighting the Germans in besieged Warsaw, it was disclosed today.

[Gen. Bor's position in his fight for Warsaw appeared to have improved, for he reported to the exiled Polish government in London that the intensity of fighting in the old city district had diminished. A Prussian infantry platoon was said to have surrendered and the 494th German battalion was said to have lost half its strength. Bor said the German attacks were mainly at the center of the city.]

Warsaw Radio Back on Air.

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—The British radio today said that for the first time since the German occupation of Poland, transmissions were heard yesterday from a broadcasting station "operated by Poles in Warsaw."

K. OF C. DEMANDS FULL FREEDOM OF POLISH PEOPLE

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 17 (AP).—The supreme council of the Knights of Columbus at the final session of their international convention today adopted a resolution concerning the liberty and welfare of the Polish people and making a plea for that nation's post-war independence. Noting "there are efforts being made to again partition Poland," the resolution said: "It is unthinkable that the Polish people who struck the first blows of this war against tyranny should fail to gain by their courage and suffering the full liberty and freedom which they cherish so passionately and in accord with all the democratic people of the world."

FRENCH PATRIOTS SEIZE 300 NAZIS AND BORDER CITY

Maquis Rule Swiss Frontier Area.

THE SWISS-FRENCH FRONTIER AT ANNEMASSE, Aug. 18 (AP).—Three hundred Germans of Annemasse capitulated to French partisans and 120 others fled to internment in neutral Switzerland after a sharp three hour battle today.

The victory gave the Maquis full control of the Haute [upper] Savoie frontier along the south shore of Lake Geneva from St. Gingolph, westward to a point just outside Bellegarde, and inland to a depth of almost 75 miles. The exuberant population, approximately 5,000, paraded the streets singing the "Marseillaise."

Stone German Prisoners.

Amid shouts of "Vive de Gaulle," the tricolor was hoisted on every house. Excited women tossed stones at German prisoners.

The Maquis, well armed, started moving into Annemasse at 6 a. m. They chased the Nazi frontier guards into Swiss Moillesulaz for internment and then, at 6:30, attacked the remaining Germans who had barricated themselves in the Hotel Pax in the center of the town.

The Nazis, harassed by snipers thruout the night, gave up when expected reënforcements from Annecy were unable to break thru the Partisan lines.

Besiege Gestapo Members.

About 75 Gestapo men were the only Germans remaining to be mopped up. The Maquis surrounded their house and demanded their surrender.

French activity also has expanded in the Doubs and Jura regions. A number of Germans were killed at Cure. In Jura men from 18 to 45 have been called up in a general mobilization. In the Doubs sector the resistance forces seized trucks and automobiles in preparation for an offensive.

A bulletin from Brig. Gen. Joseph Koenig, chief of the French forces of the interior, said his troops were "waging open war in the Creuse department." The department's capital, Gueret, 75 miles west of Vichy, was surrounded and the German garrison of 550 men forced to surrender, the report said.

JAPS FLEEING INDIA SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Aug. 18 (AP).—Allied forces took a heavy toll today of Japanese remnants retreating from Manipur along the Tiddim road, below the Burmese-Indian border. Three hundred Japanese dead and wounded were counted in one five mile section of the Tiddim road.

The Japanese also were forced back on the Sittaung trail, 18 miles east of Tamu by allied ground troops. Fighters and bombers ranged virtually the entire length of the Chindwin river, ripping Japanese installations and sinking or damaging 50 enemy river craft. The north Burma drive on Pinbaw edged forward as units of the 36th Indian division pushed on from captured Thaikwagon.

Without loss, allied fliers also raked the Mogaung-Mandalay railway in north Burma and strafed Japanese planes on the ground at Lashio.

JURY HOLDS KILLING JUSTIFIED.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the death of George S. Hightower, 22, Negro, of 6015 Indiana av., who was shot and killed Aug. 8 by Herschel Crowe, 52, Negro, of 6153 Michigan av., when he tried to rob Crowe in front of 210 E. 61st st.

40 PLANES FLY TO AIRPORT FOR MILITIA ROUNDUP

Test mobilization of all units of the Illinois Reserve Militia air corps brought 140 members and 40 planes to the National Guard hangar, 5400 W. 63d st., yesterday for three days of instruction, inspection and review.

Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, state adjutant general, arrived by plane from Springfield and was greeted by Lt. Col. John A Casey, commanding officer of the corps. Gen. Boyle will inspect and review the eight squadrons of the corps tomorrow afternoon. During their stay at the airport the corps members will attend classes in operation and maintenance subjects.

The corps membership includes doctors, restaurateurs, hotel managers, air line pilots, brokers, clerks, merchants, firemen, statisticians and newspaper men. They serve without pay except when on active duty and give one day a week to state service.

NIMITZ PUSHES AIR ATTRITION DRIVE ON JAPS

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 18 (AP).—Pressing the air attrition campaign against Japanese bases north of American held Guam, Tinian and Saipan in the Marianas, army Liberators hit Iwo Island in the Volcano group Wednesday, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported today.

Other planes peppered Nipponese positions in the Marianas and Caroline Island groups.

American fighters strafed and bombed gun positions and air strips on Rota and Pagan Islands, in the Marianas.

Army bombers struck Dublon in Truk atoll, Caroline Islands, also on Wednesday.

HEAR PATRIOTS IN 10 AREAS GET ORDER TO STRIKE

LONDON, Aug. 18 [Reuter].—Gen. Cochet, French commander of the forces of the French interior for the southern zone, tonight issued an order to the FFI of 10 departments to go into immediate action against the Germans, said the Algiers radio. The departments are Isere, Savoie, Haute Savoie, Drome, Hautes Alpes, Basses Alpes, Vaucluse, Bouches du Rhone, Gard, and Alpes Maritimes. Cochet, who is military delegate for the southern theater of operations, told the FFI to harass the enemy's movements, ambush his detachments, get hold of his food trucks, and destroy his convoys.

YANK AIR FIELDS JAPANESE GOAL IN CHINA: LANZA

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

The most important fighting in China has taken place in the Siang river valley, particularly near the city of Hengyang. The Siang, which is navigable, flows north and enters the Yangtze river at Yochow 150 miles from Hengyang. The river is paralleled by a road and a railroad, which pass by Yochow and follow on down the Yangtze to Hankow.

The valley of the Siang averages 80 miles in width. It is productive farm country and normally exports large quantities of food products. Changsha, nearly 80 miles north of Hengyang, is in the center of the valley. In former years the Japanese annually raided this valley as far as Changsha.

Swept on to Hengyang.

This year the annual raid started as usual in May, and reached Changsha as before. Instead of them going back, the Japs kept on and reached Hengyang on June 26. Here they found the Chinese 10th army waiting for them.

The Japs temporarily by-passed these troops, and went 40 miles farther to the south. They then proceeded to bring up troops to attack the Chinese. On each side of the Siang river they established garrisons on all roads at the towns nearest the adjoining hills. These succeeded in stopping Chinese raiding parties trying to reach the valley.

But Americans reached the valley thru the 14th air force. This active organization lost no time in attacking Japanese traffic going up the Siang river in boats, or over the road in trucks.

The result has been that it took the Japanese until Aug. 4 to assemble enough troops around Hengyang to undertake an assault. In the meantime they blockaded the place. This situation, too, was remedied for the Chinese by the 14th air force. It brought and dropped from the air, ammunition, food, and some reinforcements. Then, somehow, an American group got into Hengyang to give the Chinese a hand.

Japs Strike Aug. 4.

Chinese troops outside of Hengyang tried to break in, while those inside tried to break out. None succeeded.

When the Japs were ready, they attacked Hengyang, Aug. 4 to 7, inclusive, a nd on Aug 8, the Chinese commander radioed a message to the Chungking capital which read: "Enemy smashing into city this morning. Our men have been killed virtually to the last man. In spite of this I have decided to hold out."

After the commander's signature appeared those of all four of his division generals.

If the troops had been killed "virtually to the last man" how did it happen that all the generals were safe? The Japanese report said the five generals later surrendered and 13,300 Chinese soldiers with them. The Japs found 4,100 dead on the ground, which number is exclusive of any previously buried by the Chinese themselves.

Way Open for Advance.

The capture of Hengyang opens the way for a further Japanese advance. Whether they will go on, or not, is their secret.

In the meantime an entirely new Japanese expedition has been launched at the southeast corner of China, just north from Hainan Island. This was launched on Aug. 4. There is little information about this yet.

It is probable, however, that this latest expedition, as well as that around Hengyang, has the common mission of capturing air fields of the 14th air force. This command is a thorn in the side of Japan. If its fields can be taken, and the Americans pushed farther back into the interior of China, the Japanese will suffer less from bombings of occupied China, shipping in the China sea, and Japan itself.

If this idea is correct, further Japanese expeditions into unoccupied China are to be expected.

CHINESE DISPERSE NEW JAP TROOPS ON WAY TO RAIL BASE

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Japanese have brought up two new divisions in an effort to close a vise on Chinese forces attacking toward Hengyang from the southwest, the Chinese announced today. Heavy fighting is raging in the entire area of the enemy-held rail junction in northern Hunan province. Street fighting was in progress in Leiyang, south of Hengyang, and the Chinese dispersed with heavy casualties a group of Japanese reënforcements bound for Leiyang, the high command said.

Other Chinese forces drove against Kingmen, Japanese strong point 55 miles northeast of Ichang, Hupeh province, and one of the connecting links in the enemy's overland supply route between Hankow and Ichang. In western Yunnan province Chinese units fighting to clear the Burma road encountered bitter Japanese resistance in their campaign for Tengchung, Lungling, and Mangshih, another high command war bulletin said.

Chicago Pilot Decorated for Air Smash at Rabaul

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (AP).—Lt. Robert E. Schricker, 6441 N. Artesian av., Chicago, has been awarded a second bronze oak leaf cluster to the air medal. He was co-pilot in a flight over Rabaul, New Britain, last November. His squadron shot down four of 35 Japanese planes that attacked.

AMERICANS RAID JAP BASES ON AMBOINA, CERAM

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 19 [Saturday]—(AP).—Smashing raids in force at Japanese airdromes in the Banda Sea, with concentrated attacks on the strongpoints at Amboina and Ceram Islands, were announced today by Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.

Liberators and Mitchells Thursday bomb-combed key island objectives west of New Guinea in a day of aerial activity stretching more than 1,000 miles from the Philippines to Timor.

Escorted heavy bombers in force pounded the Liang airdrome on Amboina and Haroekoe airfield on Ceram—the latter is about 300 miles southwest of American held Noemfoor. They destroyed an unestimated number of grounded aircraft, starting fires and explosions.

Lightning fighters pursued 15 fleeing Japanese Zeros, shooting down nine. Two Lightnings were lost in all operations.

Liberators, supported by Mitchells, rocked the Namlea airdrome on Boeroe Island, west of Ceram, destroying four parked planes.

Patrol planes bombed Kaoe township on Halmahera and sank a supply-laden sailing vessel to the south. Other patrol planes scored three hits on a merchantman in Davao gulf, Mindanao Island, Philippines.

Units of the allied force on Biak Island, off northern Dutch New Guinea, landed at Wardo, on the island's west coast, to pursue mopping-up operations of Japanese remnants.

MYSTERY FLASH IN SKY EXCITES MIDWEST AREA

From Chicago to western Ohio, citizens were excited yesterday by a flaming object in the sky, variously described as a ball of fire, a huge silver flash, and an explosion followed by a huge plume of smoke. Some jittery observers thought it was the oft threatened German V-2 weapon. All agreed the phenomenon occurred between 8:15 and 8:30 a. m.

Astronomers suggested the celestial rocket might have been a meteor, but they declined to commit themselves until its path has been charted and the stories of witnesses correlated. Meteors travel at speeds from 10 to 40 miles a second, and sometimes are accompanied by explosions and smoke trails. Friction thru the air causes the burning.

Possibly Meteor Fragment.

Miss Maude Bennot, director of Adler planetarium, said the object might have been a fragment from the Perseid shower of meteors, thru which the earth passed last week.

In Joliet, Vic Stouffer, a newspaper photographer, said he saw something flashing thru the sky, traveling from east to west about the speed of a falling star. Another newspaper photographer, A. R. Walter of Peoria, reported the object had a trail like vapor from a high flying airplane.

Two Chicagoans also had glimpses of the strange sight. George Counts of Palos Heights saw it at 79th st. and Damen av., and thought the object seemed to fall at 87th st. Clarence Longfield, 1048 S. Mason av., reported seeing a ball of fire from 103d st. and Cicero av.

Seen in Four States.

There were many reports of the phenomenon in western Ohio, all parts of Indiana, and northern Kentucky, according to the Associated Press. In western Indiana witnesses said the object seemed to fall in eastern Illinois. In Louisville, Ky., many persons said it appeared to be coming up one of the main downtown streets.

State Trooper Elmer Paul of Indianapolis described it as a huge silver flash, too big for an airplane, high in the sky and shooting downward in a straight line.

Pig Held Answer.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 18 (AP).—A pig had probably the best answer to what happened to the meteor which swept over the midwest today. Miss Patricia Ann Belton of nearby Acton reported seeing the meteor apparently land in a field near her home. She said she ran to the spot and found a 150 pound pig leaning against a fence. Miss Belton said the pig appeared scorched and had a small hole in its shoulder. She said she saw no trace of the meteor.

THE GOLD SHAVING BOWL.

Attention, men! If you're interested in something new in the way of shaving accessories, your attention is called to a beautiful shaving bowl. It's gold, pure gold and solid. More than 40 tons of gold ore were required to supply the precious metal used in the bowl. The unique mug was made for a men's goods house by goldsmiths employed by C. D. Peacock, jewelers; the job took 60 days. Its retail price is $1,875—plus tax. Soap is not included. It is expected that the bowl will be used as a master model for far less expensive replicas.

GANDHI FEARS ONLY FORCE CAN SET INDIA FREE

NEW DELHI, Aug. 18 (AP).—Field Marshal Wavell, viceroy of India, has rejected Mohandas K. Gandhi's request for a conference to discuss immediate independence, it was announced today, and the nationalist leader said the only way to rid India of British power was to "develop enough strength to wrest it from them." Gandhi has offered full nationalist support for India's war effort in exchange for immediate independence.

The viceroy said nothing could be gained by such a conference now. "It is clear as crystal that the British government does not propose to give up the power it possesses over 400,000,000 Indians unless the latter develop enough strength to wrest it from it," Gandhi said at Wardha. "I shall never lose hope that India will do so by purely moral means." Commenting on a coming meeting with the Moslem leader, Mahomed Ali Jinnah, Gandhi said an "agreement between us can induce a revision of the firm refusal of the British government" to grant independence.

1,300 WARBLE 'ADELINE' AND HEAR COMPOSER

Luncheon Guests Ballot on Festival Queen.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Every one sang "Sweet Adeline" at the eighth annual Chicago Music Festival luncheon yesterday in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel. First the 1,300 music lovers who packed the room for the prelude to tonight's 15th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldiers' Field warbled the love song without dropping a single high note.

Then Harry Armstrong of New York, composer and a guest of honor, sang it. His solo came after Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, invited him to tell the story of his song. Armstrong recalled the piano days of his youth when he took lickings from every kid in the neighborhood because he had to save his hands for the piano.

His punishment ended, he said, when an Irishman gave him secret boxing instruction, which ended his punishment at the hands of his fellows and led him to the boxing camp, where he wrote "Sweet Adeline."

Final Inspiration from Patti.

It was no instant hit and succeeded only after its lyrics had been rewritten several times with the final revision inspired by the sight of Adelina Patti's name on a theater marquee. Armstrong made one claim for his song. Said he: "It's versatile. You can sing it without moving your feet. You can sing it alone. You can sing it in duet or quartet. You can sing it standing up or falling down." Mrs. Armstrong was with him yesterday. Her name is Addie.

The final interpretation of the tune and the one Americans know best, perhaps, came from the Four Misfits, otherwise Ellis Perkins, Joe Murrin, Art Bellan, and Pete Buckley. They sang it the barber shop way.

Vote for "Queen Adeline."

From the song title came the final event of the luncheon program. It was the parade of 10 competitors actually named Adeline and all employed in Chicago area war plants in their last bid for the title "Queen Adeline." The finalists from 47 original entrants, they came on the stage against a fanfare of pipe organ music while the audience marked ballots for the girl who will be tonight's festival "Queen" attended by a court of the nine runners-up. The winner's name will be withheld until tonight.

Memories of last year's festival were recalled with the appearance in solo and duet of the two winners, Donald Grambsch, 17, of Milwaukee, and Miss Lois Schauer, 19, Chicago stenographer.

Grambsch sang the "Home Road," by John Alden Carpenter, after which Henry Weber introduced the composer. In a short address Carpenter called music the indispensable art, the great release for human emotions in war or peace, youth or age.

The Chicago composer also heard his "Polonaise Americaine" played on the piano by the nimble fingers of Johnny Covelli, 7.

Star of "Oklahoma" Sings.

Betty Jane Watson, star of "Oklahoma," sang one of her songs in preview of musical selections from the show, which will be sung by the entire cast at tonight's event in Soldiers' field. Other musical events were provided by Lt. Verna Nelson of the WAC, singing "The Star Spangled Banner," the children's chorus, directed by John G. Reick, and a comedy act by Marie Zendt, Lola Fletcher, and Rose Du Moulin. Frank Bennett and Carl Craven led the group singing. The organist was Helen Westbrook.

Kaj H. Aagaard, Evanston, a member of the Cook county highway police, drew an ovation from the crowd at the conclusion of the program when he sang Malotte's "Lord's Prayer." Aagaard was accompanied by Miss Westbrook at the organ.

Special guests included the judges at the Festival tonight—Chief Specialist John Carter, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera; Fausto Cleva, artistic director of the Chicago Opera company, and Bianca Saroya, opera singer.

9 MORE ACCUSED OF HAVING BOGUS A-12 GAS COUPONS

Nine additional gasoline station owners were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday after their arrest by secret service agents on charges of possessing counterfeit A-12 gasoline ration coupons. This brought to 15 the number of persons seized in the last four days for black market gasoline operations, Asst. U. S. Atty. Jack Welfeld said.

Seven of those arrested yesterday were held to the federal grand jury after entering pleas of guilty to the charges. They were: Arthur Reda, 35, owner of a station at Arthington st. and Pulaski rd., alleged to have had coupons for 12,000 gallons; Charles Loitz, 59, 8159 Dobson av., 1,000 gallons; Joseph C. Bartos, 30, 4358 Diversey av., 3,000 gallons; Alfred W. Johnson, 29, 2001 Belmont av., 3,000 gallons; Morey L. Tayne, 47, 3154 Devon av., 8,000 gallons; Frank Nocita, 22, 1840 N. Central Park av., 4,000 gallons, and Meyer Riceman, 48, 3561 Belmont av., 15,000 gallons.

Two others Albert Winquist, 39, 2601 N. Laramie av., and William Barksdale, Negro, 37, 4400 Wabash av., entered pleas of not guilty to charges of possessing coupons for 900 and 1000 gallons respectively. Their cases were continued until Aug. 29. All were released in $1,500 bond.

BOY HURT IN FALL DOWNSTAIRS.

Kenneth Harrison, 4, a Negro, tumbled 15 feet from the back stairs of his home at 606 N. Wells st., to a garage roof yesterday. He was taken to County hospital where it was said he may have a skull fracture.

Thrilled Young Woman.

One of the most thrilled young women to take part in the festival tonight will be Miss Anna Mae Fiedler, 3722 Palmer st., 17 year old dramatic soprano. Last summer Miss Fiedler, who was graduated from Kelvin Park High school this spring, was runner-up to Miss Lois Schauer, chosen the "best woman singer" at the festival vocal finals in Soldiers' field.

Tonight Miss Fiedler will sing a duet with Chief Specialist John Carter from the Great Lakes Naval Training center, who is the festival soloist.

Ninety-six singers from localities outside Cook county where no local preliminary contests were held vied at afternoon and night sessions in the Drake hotel yesterday.

Winners of the first three places in eight voice divisions were:

DRAMATIC SOPRANO — Margie Patricia Anderson, Hammond; Kathryn Oaks, Waukesha, Wis., and Mrs. Rosnia Maro, Milwaukee.

CONTRALTO—Maebelle Griffin, Whiting; Jeanne Marlis Nehring, Milwaukee, and Mary Frances Gillespie, Johnston City, Ill.

MEZZO SOPRANO—Helen Wagoner, Glen Ellyn; Kathleen Marie Sullivant, Salem, Ill., and Marion Elaine Benedict, East Chicago.

WASHINGTON HAS 5 TO 1 EMPLOYE RATIO IN STATE

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 18 [Special].—Illinois has 119,855 civilian employes in the executive department of the federal government—almost five times the 25,059 employed by the Illinois state government, the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois reported today.

The federation's compilation was based on a report of the United States civil service commission and records of the Illinois civil service commission as of March 31, 1944.

Only four states and the Washington, D. C., metropolitan area have more federal employes than Illinois out of total of 2,837,010 executive department jobholders. They are California, New York, Pennsylvania, and Texas.

The federation said the largest number of Illinois federal employes —56,862— is in the war department. The postoffice department is next with 22,958, and the treasury department third with 10,951. The navy has 7,109, agriculture, 3,156; office of price administration, 3,024, and the veterans' administration, 2,826. The rest are divided among 41 other agencies, boards, bureaus, commissions, and corporations, the report said.

Strike Ends at Plant Making Engines for B-29s

A one day strike of 69 hammer men, heater men, and helpers employed in the forge division of the Dodge-Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, where engines for B-29 bombers are manufactured, was ended last night. The strikers returned to work on the night shift. They had struck in protest against the discharge of a helper in the department.

DENY POLITICAL SYSTEM RULES JUVENILE HOME

The only "political" jobs at the Juvenile Detention home are the union help, such as scrub women, janitors, and engineers, according to Clayton F. Smith, president of the board of county commissioners. He made the statement in commenting on the report of the City Club of Chicago, which stated the juvenile home employed a Democratic political patronage system.

Smith claimed the superintendent, Francis Scully, had a "free hand" in maintaining the organization and said he has only to tell the board who he wants hired or fired. He added that approximately 60 per cent of the employes are civil service.

Scully admitted the City Club report reflected conditions at the home as of March, when the survey was made. "Most of the objections in the report have been corrected," he said.

Scully admitted he would advocate the merit system after the war when returning veterans had a chance to qualify; that he would like to have a maintenance staff, including a carpenter, painter, and plumber; and the entire building needed to be redecorated. He said there were now 130 employes whereas a staff of 145 was needed.

"I don't know whether I could fire any one or not," he said.

WOMAN INJURED PUSHING BOY OUT OF AUTO'S PATH

Struck down as she pushed a grocery delivery boy from the path of an automobile, Mrs. Josephine Stier, 42, of 904 Newport av., was taken to American hospital last night where she was said to have suffered a possible brain concussion. Town Hall police did not hold the driver, Andrew J. Pinter, 58, of 521 Menomonee st. Witnesses said the grocery boy, Eugene North, 13, of 3347 Sheffield av., was pulling a wagon full of groceries across Newport av. at Clark st., oblivious to the oncoming car. Mrs. Stier stepped into the street, pushed the boy to safety, and then was hit and thrown 10 feet. The wagon was demolished.

ALL TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES PREPARED FOR MUSIC FESTIVAL

Every means of public transportation will be used to carry the audience to Soldiers' field tonight for the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival.

Bus service will include some special coaches on each line direct to the field and special shuttle routes from Randolph st. and Michigan av. and from Roosevelt rd. and Wabash av. All No. 26 buses on Jackson blvd. will run to the festival. Passengers from the north may transfer to No. 26 buses at the southwest corner of Jackson blvd. and Michigan av. and those from the south at the southeast corner of Balbo dr. and Michigan av. After the festival, buses will load on 14th blvd.

Persons using the elevated or subway should alight at Roosevelt rd., where they may transfer to bus or street car. Surface cars in Cermak rd. also reach the field. Illinois Central riders are advised to get off at 18th st.

Parking areas are located south of 16th st. between Columbus and Leif Erikson drs., east of the field between 14th blvd. and 16th dr. and near the Chicago Natural History museum and on Northerly Island.

I. C. C. CONTINUES AURORA TRAIN CUT HEARING

Members of the Sunset club, composed of commuters from stations west of Wheaton on the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad, testified yesterday at an Illinois Commerce commission hearing that a proposed reduction in the number of trains stopping at their stations would be a great hardship to them. Further testimony will be heard on Sept. 12. Another group of commuters who protested earlier had agreed with the road on a less drastic service cut, but this was not satisfactory to the Sunset club, and a new hearing was granted. The protesting riders are represented by Atty. Henry Nichols.

VET BACK IN U. S. GETS LEAVE AND TRAPS HIS WIFE

Charges of adultery and contributing to the delinquency of minors against Mrs. Thelma Exman, 34, and Clarence Eldridge, 36, both of 1121 E. 42d pl., were continued to Tuesday by Judge Irwin B. Ciorfene in Women's court yesterday. Both were released on bonds of $500 each.

The woman's husband, Pvt. Roy Exman, 38, recently back from overseas, said he obtained a furlough to come to Chicago because of things he had heard. Thursday evening he led Hyde Park police to his wife's apartment, causing the arrest of Mrs. Exman and Eldridge. In the apartment at the time were three of the Exmans' five children, Juanita, 12; Joan, 8, and Barbara, 7. Dolores, 17, and Richard, 15, are with relatives in Dayton, O.

Mrs. Exman and Eldridge denied wrongdoing. Eldridge, who said he occupied another apartment in the same building where Mrs. Exman lives, is estranged from his wife.

Escapes from Dairy Farm at State Training School

Medal Winner Gives Thanks for Blood

His Life Saved

Pvt. Richard K. Sorenson of Anoka, Minn., one of only two living enlisted marines who have won the congressional medal of honor, visited the Red Cross blood bank at 5 N. Wabash av. yesterday to thank blood donors for contributing to the blood plasma supply which he told them "saved my life and that of many of my buddies who have been wounded."

Sorenson was accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sorenson of Anoka. He is 19 years old and enlisted about a year ago while he was a junior at Anoka High school. During the battle of Namur a hand grenade was thrown at his patrol by a Jap. It landed on the ground nearby, and Sorenson quickly threw himself to the ground, covering the grenade to save the lives of his comrades. The grenade exploded and seriously wounded Sorenson.

"My life was saved," Sorenson told the donors, "only because people like you thruout the nation are so unselfishly giving your precious blood." Sorenson also paid the highest tribute to the navy corpsmen who administered the blood plasma to him at "just the right time." He was presented the congressional medal July 19 by order of Adm. Nimitz.

CAPTIVE OF JAPS WRITES: 'DOING FINE—SO FAR'

Parents Get Card of Robert Herbeck.

James Herbeck, 6442 S. Washtenaw av., received a post card message yesterday that his son, Robert, 25, a corporal in an air force ground crew, is in Japanese prison camp No. 4 in the Philippines and "doing fine so far."

Robert Herbeck.

John Herbeck of THE TRIBUNE circulation department and the boy's uncle, said that Robert was captured by the Japanese at Hickam field. The parents were notified by the war department in October, 1942, that their son was a prisoner.

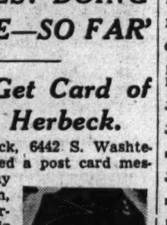
Later they heard that he was in the hospital and last Christmas received a post card saying he had recovered. Since that time messages to Robert have brought no reply. Packages sent him have been returned.

The message yesterday, a form card signed by Robert, said: "Am doing fine so far. Take care of yourself and the kids. Say hello to all the Herbecks and friends. Hope to see you all soon."

Pvt. Lester C. [Chuck] Shelhamer, 21, of 5413 W. Race av., was wounded in action in France July 30, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Shelhamer, learned yesterday. Pvt. Shelhamer attended Austin High school and Wright junior college and entered the army in February, 1943. A brother, Lt. Russell, 26, is at Camp Barkeley, Tex.

Lester Shelhamer.

Mrs. Margaret Kennelly, 8040 Langley av., yesterday was awaiting further details of the death of her son, Sgt. Martin R. Kennelly, 21, who was killed in action in France. The young hero was a nephew of Martin H. Kennelly, business man and chairman of the Chicago drive of the American Red Cross War fund for 1944. Sgt. Kennelly was commander of the tank, "Be Back Soon," which was shot up three times early in the Normandy invasion, but always returned to action. In addition to his mother, he leaves three brothers, John, Thomas, and William, and a sister, Annette. John is at sea in the navy.



Sgt. Martin R. Kennelly.

Sgt. Harry Degenhart, 28, of 1814 Pratt av., a gunner on a Flying Fortress, was killed in action over Germany July 12, his widow, Winifred, has been notified by the war department. He entered the service Thanksgiving day, 1942, and went overseas last May. An official army telegram earlier had reported him missing in action. Besides the widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Degenhart, 5843 Newark av., survive.

Pvt. Walter Frederick Murphy Jr., 28, of 1611 S. 2d av., Maywood, serving with an infantry medical detachment, altho an expert swimmer, was drowned in Italy July 5; a war department telegram has notified his father. No details were given. Pvt. Murphy was a graduate of Proviso Township High school and attended Wheaton and Elmhurst colleges. He was on the Anzio beachhead and in the fighting when Rome was taken. Besides his father, a brother, Sgt. Nelson E. Murphy, now in the Pacific area, and a sister, Mrs. Edna Myers of Glen Ellyn, survive.

Lt. Paul W. Wood Jr., 21, of 205 S. 4th st., Libertyville, a veteran of 10 missions over Europe and credited with shooting down four planes in combat, has been missing in action over Germany since June 29, his parents have been notified. Lt. Wood, who held the air medal, enlisted in September, 1942, received his wings in Georgia in October, 1943, and had been overseas since January.

Pvt. Adolph Santelli, 19, of 4001 Van Buren st., a marine wounded on Saipan as reported in the casualty list in THE TRIBUNE Thursday, had a visit from his cousin, Alfred Santelli, a sailor, of 3917 Flournoy st., in a navy hospital in Hawaii recently. In a letter received by his sister, Ann, yesterday, Alfred told how he had found Adolph after receiving word that the latter had been wounded.

F.D.R. SWAPS HIS MILITARY TOGA FOR POLITICIAN'S

Lashes 'Fool Question;' Sees Truman.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—In a lightning change from the role of commander in chief to candidate for a fourth term, President Roosevelt today denounced as a fool question a query on the political implications of his recent Pacific tour and then went into a campaign strategy huddle with his running mate, Sen. Truman [D., Mo.].

Making no effort to conceal his irritation, Mr. Roosevelt charged that the question, concerning the contention advanced in some quarters that his trip was political, had been planted by one of the press associations or one of their members. This charge brought a smile to the faces of many attending Mr. Roosevelt's first press conference since July 11, because it is commonly known that the chief executive has regularly planted questions at his news conferences for more than 11 years.

A Campaign Year.

The question was put to Mr. Roosevelt at a recent conference aboard his train while he was en route to the White House. At this morning's conference the President was asked if he cared to amplify his answer that there was no politics in his trip and that those who found any politics in it knew more about it than he did.

The chief executive said that the press association representative who asked the question did so with a great deal of reluctance for the simple reason that it was a fool question and that he knew it was a fool question. Mr. Roosevelt said the question was planted because this is a campaign year.

Another question with political implications also nettled the chief executive. Questioned about reports that he had invited Wendell Willkie, 1940 Republican candidate, who has not offered to support the 1944 ticket, to the White House to discuss international affairs, Mr. Roosevelt denied an invitation had been extended.

A Personal Matter.

He said he did not know anything about it, that it sounded like a silly New York story, and that he was not in the White House just to answer silly stories made up by newspapers. Pressed as to whether he would like to see Willkie, he said that was purely a personal matter and he did not like to discuss it.

Shortly after the press conference the President's self-effacing running mate entered the executive office for a luncheon conference. The luncheon marked the senator's first meeting with the President since last March. They put their heads together in a survey of the political situation which occupied them for two hours.

As he left the White House Truman announced he will make a formal acceptance speech at Lamar, Mo., his birthplace, on the last day of August. It also was decided that he will make a Labor day speech in Detroit, Mich., CIO stronghold.

U. S. ABANDONS HARTZEL TRIAL AFTER REVERSAL

Elmer Hartzel, 52, whose conviction on a charge of sedition was reversed by the United States Supreme court in June after he had spent two years in jail, was freed yesterday by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe. The indictment was dismissed on the motion of Asst. United States Atty. William J. Connor who said the government had no further evidence against him.

Hartzel was found guilty in Igoe's court of publishing and circulating pamphlets intended to injure the morale of soldiers and sailors, and was sentenced to serve five years in prison. In its opinion upholding freedom of speech and of the press, the Supreme court held there was insufficient evidence, altho branding his pamphlets as containing "scurrilous ideas."

Similar charges against Newell Mecartney, an attorney, and Elmer W. Soller, who shared an office where Soller mimeographed Hartzell's writings, were dismissed some time ago.

Atty. Ode L. Rankin said he would confer with Hartzel early next week regarding redress from the government for the two years Hartzel had spent in jail while unable to make a $5,000 bond. Rankin added that he didn't believe there was a law permitting such redress but that there was an instance when congress appropriated redress in a similar situation.

COPY OF TRIBUNE OF 1898 DONATED IN PAPER DRIVE

The waste paper drive in Chicago turned up echoes of other wars and old and yellowed copies of THE TRIBUNE at the Carroll Iron and Metal company, 1442 Carroll av., William Levinson of the company reported yesterday. Donations included a 12 page TRIBUNE under the date of May 2, 1898. Across its front page was a banner line memorializing "Commodore Dewey, Hero of the Battle of Manila." It also carried casualty lists. In another batch of papers Levinson found a copy of THE TRIBUNE dated Nov. 11, 1918, which was Armistice day in World War I. "Great War Ends" was the top heading.

WORLD WAR I. VETS 'IGNORED' AT SHIP RITES

New Deal's Grudge Is Believed Reason.

Six national officers of the First Marine Aviation Force Veterans association were ignored at a ship launching honoring their World War I. commander and their place of honor given to the movie star, Tyrone Power, Louis F. Peifer, 5623 W. Lake st., a member of the association, disclosed here yesterday.

Treatment of the six officials at the launching of the U. S. S. Alfred A. Cunningham in New York on Aug. 3 was outlined in a letter sent to Peifer and other members of the association by James E. Nicholson, national adjutant.

Opposes New Deal.

"The only reason I can give for Peifer said," is that our national commander, H. L. Tallman of Albany, Ga., made very clear in his first letter to the membership his opposition to the New Deal and his determination to help end regimentation when the war is over."

Nicholson had petitioned the late Secretary of the Navy Knox early this year to honor Col. Cunningham, who commanded the First Marine Aircraft group in France and was called the "father of marine aviation," by naming a naval vessel for him. Later, he said, Acting Secretary James Forrestal advised a destroyer would be named for the marine officer and set the launching date.

At the request of naval officials, the adjutant said, the association limited its representation to himself, Comdr. Tallman, and four past commanders. His correspondence with navy officials made clear, Nicholson wrote, that the association was solely responsible for the honor accorded their World War I. commanding officer.

No Place Provided.

Col. C. F. Schilt was selected to represent the marine corps at the launching, a selection which Nicholson approved, but he was accompanied by Lt. Tyrone Power, the former film star, and other officers. Col. Cunningham's widow was sponsor at the launching.

"We found that no place was provided for us and no acknowledgment whatsoever accorded our efforts in making the U. S. S. Alfred A. Cunningham a ship of the United States navy," Nicholson wrote.

In his letter to association members which, Peifer believes, caused the New Deal ire, Tallman declared:

"Make the charge that groups of visionaries are plotting to change our form of government and the statement probably will be challenged. You will be told that it's absurd for anybody to say the Constitution is endangered or that we are not going to continue to have a 'democracy within a republic' and treasure representative government, free elections, Fourth of July celebrations, and our cherished way of life.

"But don't be fooled even now when we read of 'necessary delay' which can be expected in returning government to the people when finally the war lies behind us.

"Just as soon as this war ends, I want my government back."

4 City Employes Injured in Dump Truck Accident

Four city garbage truck employes were injured yesterday when the dump body upended and struck an overhead structure near Polk st. and Campbell av. Daniel Nono, 50, of 1239 S. California av., and Michael Partipilo, 44, of 2114 Ohio st., both with head injuries, and Guiseppi Molliconi of 922 S. Campbell av. and Carlo Filippo of 901 S. Claremont av., each possibly internally injured, were taken to County hospital.

PRESIDENT CURT, VOICE TIRED AS HE FACES PRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—Some 200 Washington correspondents who today filed into the oval White House executive office for the first news conference in six weeks, were more interested in President Roosevelt than in what he had to say.

The chief executive's health was regarded as far more important than his statements that study should be given to a plan under which young men would give a year to some sort of federal training, not necessarily military, and that he plans to see Prime Minister Churchill for another conference s-o-o-n, spelling out the word.

The newsmen found the chief executive tanned by his five week Pacific tour and possibly somewhat thinner. Tired lines about the President's face were somewhat covered by the tan and in general it was felt his appearance had improved.

Voice Tired and Heavy.

However, the President's customary geniality was not displayed and his voice was tired and heavy. A thick cough indicated that the chief executive's mellifluous tones may be temporarily damped by a cold.

Twice reporters called upon the President to speak louder, please. He raised his voice once for a phrase and then let it fall back to an uninteresting monotone. Most questions were answered rather curtly.

The only time the President became expansive during his conference was in discussing youth training. He said he thought some advantageous employment should be made of the tremendous housing and training facilities in army camps.

He suggested that a million youths a year, between the ages of 17 and 23, could undergo a 12 month training course. He estimated there are facilities for five million men and that the housing equipment has a life of 25 years

Other possible uses for the housing facilities are for housing ailing and needy veterans and for vocational training of veterans, he said. The plan to have each youth give a year of his life to the government is certainly worth study and the advantages of training in health and discipline should be considered, he added.

Physical and Mental.

Benefits would be both physical and mental, he said, citing improvements in the makeup of thousands of youths who trained in the civilian conservation corps. Muscle building resulting from ditch-digging is a good thing for some, he said.

The chief executive said such training would teach youths the special art of living together in groups, and also teach them cleanliness and discipline. He remarked that discipline is rather a good thing for the nation; that it is not to be sneezed at.

Such a program also might make for an improvement in law and order, he added, saying we are not such a law abiding people, tho we are not so bad on order.

Mr. Roosevelt said that a general understanding has been reached with Great Britain and Russia on the occupation of Germany.

45TH V. F. W. PARLEY OPENS MONDAY; MANY NOTABLES WILL SPEAK

Speakers of national importance, including Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and Rear Adm. E. C. White of the navy surgeon general's office, will address the 45th national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, opening Monday in the Morrison hotel.

United States Sen. Chapman Revercomb [R., W. Va.], will address the meeting Wednesday on behalf of Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee. Sen. Harry S. Truman [Mo.], Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, also will speak that day. The encampment will conclude Thursday.

The ladies' auxiliary of the organization, headed by Mrs. Amelia Kane of Pittsburgh, will meet at the same time in Hotel Sherman. Its members have announced they plan to give 200 pints of blood to the Red Cross.

INTRODUCE BILL TO GUARD TRADE SECRETS IN WPB

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—WPB Chairman Nelson today asked congress to provide stiff penalties for any one who discloses any of the vast amount of confidential information industry has given to government agencies. Chairman Sumners [D., Tex.] of the house judiciary committee promptly introduced the legislation Nelson proposed.

"We are very anxious that this information shall not be used for purposes other than war production," Nelson wrote Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.].

Nelson told Rayburn that laws now on the books hold no protection for a businessman who imparts trade secrets to the war production board, for example, against disclosure of those same facts to perhaps a competitor. The only bars raised are against revealing information of a military character.

The bill provides a $1,000 fine and a year in jail for any government employe or former employe "who shall knowingly divulge or use in any manner any information which was submitted in confidence to the war production board."

50 REBELLIOUS MACHINISTS PUT ON DRAFT ROLL

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 18 [Special].—More than 50 San Francisco machinists under 38 years of age have been certified to state selective service headquarters at Sacramento for possible military draft for limited service as a result of their defiance of government orders following the navy's seizure of five uptown machine shops here Monday.

Some of the mechanics, all of whom are members of lodge 68 of the International Association of Machinists [AFL], were deferred originally for occupational reasons. Some are classified 4-F.

The machinists were on strike or had refused to work overtime in the seized plants.

TEXAN FLAUNTS F.D.R.'S LACK OF PARTY LOYALTY

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt's party loyalty was made an issue today in the controversy between factions of Texas Democrats over whether Presidential elector-delegates will vote for the Roosevelt-Truman ticket or vote for some other Democrat.

A. H. Rowan of Fort Worth, one of the electors, questioned Roosevelt's record in a letter to Myron G. Blalock, Texas national committeeman.

Blalock had written to ask Rowan if it were true that Rowan supported the Republican nominee in 1940.

"Before I answer that question," Rowan wrote, "there are some questions I want to ask you."

Cites F. D. R. Voting Record.

He then cited Roosevelt's support of Theddore Roosevelt for President, Sen. Norris for reelection, Mayor La Guardia of New York for election, and selection of Henry Wallace for Vice President, and asked Blalock if the committeeman had challenged the President on supporting Republicans.

Rowan also asked Blalock if he protested the participation of Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO political action committee, in the national Democratic convention in Chicago. Hillman is not a Democrat, but a member of the American Labor tarty, Rowan wrote.

At Austin, Tex., Blalock said today in an interview it had become apparent, "at last," that some of Texas' Democratic Presidential electors plan to sabotage the party's national ticket.

Some Plan "Sabotage."

"It's a fine come-off when we Texas Democrats have to find out from Mississippi what are the secret plans of Texas Democratic electors."

"We have at last learned that at least some of them plan to sabotage the Democratic ticket."

Blalock was referring to a disclosure by Judge Rich C. Russell of MacGee, a Mississippi Presidential elector, that E. B. Germany of Dallas, a Texas elector-at-large, had written him a letter suggesting that Mississippi, Texas, and Louisiana electors might pledge themselves to a common program.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT BY ELECTORS.

It is hard to make out whether the fourth termers approve or disapprove of the method by which the President and Vice President of the United States are elected. The termers haven't denounced it as something of the horse and buggy days. They have not put the abolition of it on their list of imperative social gains to be attained. Yet, seeking soldier and sailor votes, they tried illegally to change it. Mr. Roosevelt was angry when congress recognized the constitutional limitations of its own power. He said the congressmen were perpetrating a fraud on the people.

In fact, Mr. Roosevelt was trying to nullify the Constitution which delegates to the state legislatures exclusively the authority to provide how the Presidential electors shall be chosen. Nullifying is an easier way, if you can do it, than amending a provision you happen for a purpose or an occasion not to like. Having failed in an unlawful act the fourth termers say that their opponents did not want the men and women in the services to vote. They may think, with Hitler, that lies are believable if they are big enough. Still they do not say that they do not like the electoral system. They wanted to use it, but abuse it. The states have provided legal ballots for the troops.

The electors were not intended to remove the choice of the chief executive from the people, but to bring it as close to them as possible. When James Wilson proposed his method to the delegates writing the Constitution in their convention in Philadelphia, the election of the President directly by the people was recognized as desirable by some and as impractical by nearly all. Before it would seem practical the country would have to be knit together by things then out of the knowledge of the delegates, by trains, telegraph wires, roads, faster mails, and by more and more widely circulated newspapers. Then national party organizations and campaigns, candidates and wide spread information regarding them would become possible and thruout the country voters could go to the polls with some idea of what they were doing. As an alternative to the selection of a President by congress, as the French president is selected, the election of electors specially appointed or chosen as the state legislatures should direct, seemed to be, as Mr. Wilson said, deriving the chief executive from the people.

The system may be of the horse and buggy age, but we seem to have been fairly well satisfied with the method ever since it was instituted as the only one available in a new and undeveloped country. It detracts from the influence of the more populous sections should the largest states ever find a reason for presenting an almost solid front. Ninety-six electoral votes have little or no relation to population. They represent states just as United States senators do, regardless of size and number of people. The system also decentralizes the management of the election. The tendency might be to put the supervision in the hands of a federal election commission. That might be an instrument of power, as Mr. Roosevelt said of some of his own new federal agencies, dangerous in the hands of a man wishing to misuse it.

The electoral vote and the vote of the people may not give the same results. Cleveland won at the polls and Harrison had a majority of the electors. The difference was slight, but it meant defeat for the Democrat and success for the Republican. Congress has the authority to decide contests and thru a special commission decided in favor of Hayes, Republican, in four contested states over Tilden, Democrat, who nevertheless remained the choice in the popular vote.

The method does not fairly represent the division of sentiment in a closely contested state as it might if the two electors representing the senators were chosen in the state at large and the other electors representing members of the house of representatives were chosen and instructed by the congressional districts. In 1940 Mr. Roosevelt took all New York's 47 electors with a margin of less than 500,000 in a vote of over 6 million, and, as another instance, the 29 electors of Illinois went to him on a margin of 100,000 in a vote of over 4 million. If the vote had been by congressional districts the electors would have been divided.

Probably the chief reason we hear no objection to the system from the fourth termers who tried to bootleg the soldier vote is to be found in the fact that it minimizes the consequences of restricting voters' rights. States which discourage voting nevertheless cast their full electoral vote. South Carolina cast 95,470 votes for Mr. Roosevelt in 1940—there were 1,727 Republican votes. These 95,470 South Carolinians were represented by eight electoral votes. The four states of South Carolina, Mississippi, Georgia, and Texas gave Mr. Roosevelt 1,369,082 votes at the polls and 52 electoral votes. Ohio gave Mr. Roosevelt 1,733,139 votes at the polls and just half, 26, the electoral vote of these four southern states. The 1,586,773 Ohioans who voted the Republican ticket had no votes at all for President when the actual election took place.

Such consequences should endear the horse and buggy days to the fourth termers. So long as the south is what it chooses to be politically, the tenant in the White House, if he sports the name Democrat, will have an advantage in hand at the outset. The fourth termers didn't like to be deprived of their bootleg votes and they make the best of their disappointment in a campaign of misrepresentation, but they are not asking that the system of electing by electors be abolished. All they wanted was a little nullification.

POLICE UNIONS.

When an AFL union undertook a few months ago to organize policemen in this area, Police Commissioner Allman wisely forbade members of the Chicago department to join any union.

Joliet officials permitted the organization to go ahead and are now regretting their mistake. The Joliet police chief contends that the union leaders are demanding a veto power over his promotion orders and assignments to shifts and beats, matters which, as he says, are clearly of an administrative nature and outside the purview of any proper negotiations between labor and management.

The organization of any public employes in unions is a dubious question and one on which unions themselves, in order to get a foothold, have made many concessions from their usual practice. Most unions of federal employes and most police and firemen's locals concede that they should not strike. This is a concession which should be made a general prohibition by all governmental employers. The interruption of any public work by strikes is intolerable and should result in the discipline of any employes who cause it.

Beyond and above any of these considerations the organization of policemen into unions involves special problems so grave that it should be prohibited under any circumstances. Municipal police are just as much a military force as the army and navy. They are a disciplined body organized for impartial enforcement of the law and for preservation of the peace. Labor unions, unfortunately, are frequent offenders against public order. A police force that is organized into a union and affiliated with other unions abandons its impartiality and cannot perform the duties for which it was created.

IT'S ROOSEVELT'S JOB.

Lt. Gen. Wainwright has reported, thru the International Red Cross, from his prison camp in Formosa on the condition of the men abandoned with him in the Philippines and taken prisoner on Bataan and Corregidor.

Their diet is deficient in proteins and fats. They need more canned food and warm clothing. One Red Cross food parcel a month is needed to maintain the health of each prisoner. So far the only Red Cross or other supplies that have reached the prisoners have been those carried by the Swedish diplomatic ship that evacuated American interned civilians.

Chairman O'Connor of the American Red Cross says that the needs of the prisoners are fully understood and that the Red Cross is pressing efforts to clear supplies to them thru a Russian port. Russian ships, because Stalin has not joined in the war against Japan, can pass the Japanese blockade, but the Russians have refused to permit a Japanese ship to enter Vladivostok to pick up the supplies.

This is not a matter for the Red Cross, but for Mr. Roosevelt. A large proportion of the weapons with which the Russians are pressing their offensive against the Germans have been forged in American munitions plants. Russia is under tremendous obligation to the United States for the lend-lease aid that stemmed and turned back the Nazi invasion. Roosevelt has refrained from pressing that obligation because he is under similarly great obligations to the Communists in his fourth term campaign.

If he fails to use pressure on Russia to get the needed food shipments thru it will be because he places his own political fortunes ahead of the relief from suffering of the heroes of Bataan and Corregidor.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S GAG ORDERS.

Because of the war department's attempt to make ridiculous the prohibitions against government sponsored propaganda to soldiers in the election campaign, the senate has been forced to pass a series of amendments to the soldier voting law, in which those prohibitions are contained.

The original sections of the law were perfectly clear, as Sen. Taft, their sponsor, says. They were designed to block the use of public funds for fourth term propaganda directed to men in service. The navy had no difficulty in discerning the purpose of the legislation and in interpreting it sensibly, Sen. Taft told the senate. The war department undertook to make the regulation ridiculous by a fantastic interpretation of its words.

The original section in the soldier voting act made it unlawful to distribute to the army and navy newspapers, magazines, motion pictures, or literature paid for or sponsored by the federal government if they contained any political propaganda. The war department seized upon the word, "sponsored," and interpreted it to cover the sale of publications in army post exchanges or the purchase with company funds of books or newspapers, or the exhibition of motion pictures in army theaters. A series of nitwit orders barred such books as the biography of the late Justice Holmes, prohibited soldiers from using the company funds they themselves had accumulated to subscribe to American newspapers, forbade the sale of British newspapers in post exchanges, and otherwise operated to shut off the army from any information regarding the campaign.

This was not the purpose of the law and the war department knew it. The obvious purpose was to prevent Mr. Roosevelt from using public money to print and distribute his campaign literature, in whatever form it might be cast, to the army and navy. The war department, by its gag tactics, sought to make the statute ridiculous. Since its motives have been disclosed, congress should be vigilant that the department does not now go to the other extreme, and make the amended statute a basis for distributing the New Deal propaganda that congress intended to forbid.

MR. PEPYS COMES BACK.

19th Aug.—Returned to my grindstone after a furlough, slightly dazed from lack of mental exercise and glad to find occupation to keep my mind off the heat, which has aroused much indignation in this vicinity. Have decided to call this an old fashioned summer, for it is like the long, sultry spells of my childhood, when beds would be moved to windows at night to give sleepers a few breaths of cool air.

Have noted that elm trees are looking sick for lack of water, and even turning yellow as if fall had come, while more humble trees, such as the catalpa and the one that grows in Brooklyn, the ailanthus, are as green as ever. The grass in the parks is tawny, and everywhere are signs that this summer in Chicago has been like the climate of the great arid plains of the far west, where cactus and sagebrush flourish. But it is nearly over, for the other morning a great flock of martins came and perched on a telegraph wire by my window, all facing south, and when these birds act that way it is time to reserve football tickets.

Now to shake off my vacation sloth and prepare for a year of great historical events. The victory mood is in the air, and many people have been saying the war will end soon, yet I fear they do not stop to think that whatever happens in Europe there will be a large job of unfinished business in the Pacific.

MOUNTAIN POPLARS.

The poplars on the Sabine farm were dust
Long centuries ago. For just a few
Brief years these slender, searching boughs are thrust
Into the sky's serene, unsearchable blue!
But there are poplars living still—in song!
And there are poplars, soaring toward the sky
From this green valley, that will not stay long—
But tho they go, they will not wholly die.

Where beauty burns in charactery of bright
And passionate, proud banners waving free
With brave assertion of inherent right,
The poplars still must soar. Altho we see
Them die, in new trees they will live again—
While sentinels of loveliness remain.

Ol' Woman River in the War.

The thing I keep tellin' these folks is that the river is bigger'n any of us. She's been here a long time an' she'll be here long after we're gone. In the last 50 years a lot of smart dudes have tried to pen her up in a narrow channel between two levees, an' she just keeps rollin' along. Ever so often she goes on a bender an' makes monkeys outa all the engineers an' figgerers, guv'mint an' otherwise.

Now they've put her to work. She's helpin' win the war, an' how! From Chicago to the gulf she's a busy river. But everything's diesel—most of 'em twin-screw. Outside of the guv'mint boats—the Warrior an' the Comanche—you rarely see a steamboat any more. All the old packets are gone. Down at St. Louis, just above the old Eads bridge, are tied up a side-wheeler, the Senator, an' two stern-wheelers—the Golden Eagle and the Capitol, her that was the old Dubuque. Below the bridge I saw a long, streamlined, side-wheeler excursion boat called Admiral.

When I got up to Havana I ran into George Colvin, whose paw captained the old Bald Eagle—originally the D. H. Pike—for so many lusty years. He told me the Admiral was the old passenger ferry St. Genevieve, rebuilt. He also told me that the Grey Eagle, the Spread Eagle, an' five other steamboats all burned up at Paducah in 1927. Won't hear those deep bellows of the old Eagle packets whistlin' for the drawbridges no more. Shucks. Buckshot, O. R. S.

SUMMER OF DISCONTENT.

Now is the summer of my discontent
When festive males on carefree frolic bent
Fare forth to outdoor play. Alas! each gent
Parades him to my disillusionment.

The fat, the thin, the hirsute one in shorts
Is everywhere, and shamelessly cavorts,
Perspiring endlessly as he disports
His doubtful charms upon the tennis courts.

And bulbous maids, parboiling on the beaches
In bathing suits devoid of middle reaches;
And dowagers in overalls or breeches. . . .
What is the moral that the summer teaches?

Faith in the Old Home Town.

As he pulled in to the curb he remarked: "Yep, it's great to live in a town where there's no crime. I've lived here all my life and have never even heard of a holdup or a burglary. Why, you could throw your wallet filled with money anywhere in the street, come back a week later and find it untouched. Folks here don't need safety deposit boxes. They just scatter their bonds around on chairs and tables and let it go at that. There isn't a soul here who would think of using an extra lump of sugar as long as there's a shortage."

He stepped out to the pavement: "Yep, it's sure nice to live in a place where you don't have to protect your property from thieves," he added, locking his car. W. L. Hudson.

AUGUST'S SONG.

August sings a golden song
Of ripened corn and burnished noons,
Of black-eyed Susans in the fields,
Of grain in shock and glowing moons.

August sings a golden song
And yet to the attentive ear
Come somber overtones that hint
The dying of the year.

Would I be better off to apply for rehabilitation training under public law 16 or under the G. I. law?"

Assuming that you may qualify under either law, the principal advantage of qualifying under public law 16 [rehabilitation training] would be that the allowances, including subsistence, are much higher, starting at $80 a month, under rehabilitation training as against $50 under the G. I. law. The second possible advantage is that under public law 16 the veterans' administration determines the length of training, whereas the G. I. law sets the maximum according to the length of service. There are other points involved, and we suggest that you write or phone for an appointment so that you have the best understanding of the possibilities.

WATCH THE 8 TO 15 AGE GROUP.

MOST parents will pay strict attention to their offspring for the first four or five years of life. Thereafter, they are allowed to imitate Topsy and "just grow."

Actually, the between-age group [8 to 15] may demand even more attention, particularly if intestinal disturbances are complained of. There is just as much reason to regulate their menus as to safeguard the feeding of infants. True enough, upsets will be less spectacular, less dangerous. But because they are dismissed lightly, all too often, a chronic state of indigestion is given a chance to establish a foothold.

Along with food problems, we must not overlook nervous manifestations, such as the Monday morning headache. The explanation may lie in the fact that the youngster is not doing well in school and dreads to confront his teacher. Obviously he needs help and encouragement.

In a recent report, Lepage calls attention to the girl who vomits just before starting to her classes. Careful examination of these patients ruled out organic difficulty. The whole matter was solved with the banishment of anxiety, dread of being late, concern over unprepared lessons, and the like. In one case, colicky pains, with abdominal distention [due to swallowed air] were traced to a disinterested teacher, who neglected a grand opportunity to assist a timid lad.

Of course, these boys and girls should be given a complete physical inventory. If real trouble is present, the breath may be foul and the tongue coated. Constipation may be exhibited. When asked about symptoms, these children will reel off a classical description of chronic dyspepsia. Some are "picky" eaters, while others appear to be hungry all the time. The wise physician will realize that if the role of the emotions can be ruled out he is probably facing a tangible form of indigestion.

The first procedure in cure is to make certain that the oral cavity, throat, and nasal passages are free from infection. Here gargles and mouth washes will be helpful. But the major attack must be made upon the premise that edibles are not prepared properly for absorption because of a failure on the part of the digestive organs. Nutriment may be rushed along thru the alimentary tract at such speed that assimilation is impossible.

Only occasionally will bed rest be required and that for a very few days. The simplest precautions consist in allowing for plenty of time at the table, thoro mastication, and perhaps smaller but more frequent meals. Emphasis may be placed upon fruits, both raw and cooked; fresh vegetables and salads; a tiny portion of lean meat; bread, and milk. All oily materials, including cream, may be avoided.

The bowel can be regulated with water-drinking one-half hour before breakfast. Well cooked cereal is preferred to dry varieties. This may be taken with plain milk and a little brown sugar. If a beverage is insisted upon, milk will be suitable for many, but undesirable for others. Weak tea is better than coffee.

INFANT VISION.

Mrs. L. H. writes: The mother of a 3 week old child claims that her baby cannot see. I am an aged person but I never heard this statement. Is it true?

REPLY.

Vision in the newborn is feeble. The sight center in the brain is but imperfectly developed. Bright lights should be shunned as, during the first week or more of life, the infant lives in what to us is twilight. Not until the fourth month can the babe perceive color, form, or perspective. Within a week or two, however, he should be attracted by a moderate glow.

Old Order Changeth.

Remember the purely American adage: "From shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations"? We've just heard of a Chicagoan who says he thinks he can make it in two.

Miss WEA Is Fine.

We got to wondering this week what the blast furnace wave had done to our good friend, Miss WEAther 1212, so we called her boss, the telephone company. He said Miss WEA survived the heat beautifully, for on the hottest day, Aug. 11, she received only about a third as many calls as she received on one of the century's coldest days, Jan. 20, 1943. Apparently the public believes it can never get any hotter, but they are sure it can get colder and they want to be prepared, for on that January day, when the lowest temperature was 13 below, 251,494 persons telephoned. On Aug. 11, only 93,700 did.

Even so, Miss WEA's boss is pretty sure that not a single caller thanked her for the information she so sweetly imparted, for it was always bad: it always promised more heat. Fortunately for Miss WEA she didn't hear a word of the backtalk. She never does. Miss WEA is a one way magnetic tape.

Her employer chortled triumphantly when we said we had thought she was a girl all the time. He gave one of those wonder-of-science laughs and said she could more aptly be described as a recording. This is what happens:

Every hour, on the hour, the weather bureau sends the weather forecast including official temperature and official humidity, by teletype. A girl reads it into a microphone, and it is recorded on two steel tapes. The better of the two tapes is placed on a machine connected to the telephone wires. The "message," as the telephone company euphemistically refers to the reading, runs 25 seconds, and is given twice a minute.

No one girl is Miss WEA. No one girl does all the work. It takes place in a room full of telephone operators. Once an hour a girl leaves the switchboard, makes the recording, and goes back to work. But CAThedral 8000, that's another story. There is a Miss CAT. There are many of them, but only one at a time, for the human voice can only take such shenanigans in half hour stretches.

Miss CAT sits at a table. Before her are two large clocks, 14 inches in diameter, with second hands that indicate only each 15 second period; a sound signal; a microphone; and a revolving disk with a face that is half white, half black. When the black side is in front of her, she begins to say: "At the next tone signal the t-i-m-e will beeee eight-ten and one quuuuarter!" She does this every 15 seconds, but the message requires only eight seconds, so she has a seven seconds' respite.

Cathedral 8000 is the only number on the Cathedral exchange, just as Weather 1212 is the only one on Weather. The calls come in on a trunk line. Miss CAT's calls are steady, about 31,000 a day, but Miss WEA's fluctuate, an average day being 43,000 and cold weather always bringing more than hot.

Their boss feels that Miss WEA is the luckier of the two. She has a prefix that means the same thing to all men. Miss CAT does not. Her name was chosen at her founding in 1927 when some one said a lot of cathedrals around the country had clocks in their belfries. They were trying to get a word to denote time, and just why they did not use TIMe is a mystery. Probably too simple.

DID THEY HAVE TO TAKE OUT GUN PERMITS?

Chicago, Aug. 14.—I have just received a letter from my brother in the Aleutians, thanking me for fishing tackle and other fishing supplies, which I sent him because I heard the boys up there were enjoying fishing privileges.

Now it seems that he cannot use these until he buys a fishing license! Because he is a "homesteader," having arrived there in May, 1943, with the invading forces, he will only have to pay $1 but the other boys who have been there less than a year, must pay $2!

Maybe I'm wrong, but it seems to me that the boys who chased the Japs out of our back yard, ought to be able to fish "for free." Do you think they might get personal property tax bills come the first of the year?

NEWS FOR OVERSEAS SOLDIERS.

SOMEWHERE IN CORSICA, Aug. 4.—This is to congratulate THE TRIBUNE on its fine overseas service. I lived on the north side of Chicago all my life before coming into the army and my family always was a Tribune subscriber. I am in the army now 27 months of which 18 months have been overseas. I received the paper regularly while in various camps in the states. In May of 1943 in North Africa I started to keep a check upon the issues I received and you may not believe it, but in 13 months including the middle of June, 1944, I have missed only about 25 issues. Altho the papers arrive from four to seven weeks late, the local news is most welcome. The thing I really must compliment you on is the wonderful colored maps of the various war theaters. We follow the battle line from day to day thru these maps.

THE SERGEANTS' REPLY.

Niles, Mich., Aug. 15.—Those 14 1st. staff, and just plain sergeants, who had the nerve to express their disgust with the efforts of the big city boss to dictate their votes in the fall election should be awarded at least the Purple Heart. If our fighting men in the services don't know what this war is all about, then none of us does. It certainly is the n'th degree of some kind of mental aberration for a politician to attempt to propagandize a man in the fighting forces of a war like this.

As the "sarges" say, they will be returning some day, and it is the hope of every American that they will do as good a job of housecleaning here among the politicians as they are doing with the dictators and burocrats of Europe.

A UNIFORM FOR THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF?

Syracuse, Ind., Aug. 12.—Now that the bid for a fourth term has risen above politics to the level of a win the war slogan, it seems the taxpayers shouldn't object to our good and faithful soldier, the commander in chief, having his tailor fit him out with a military uniform. The first soldier of the reich donned one long ago. Mussolini never seemed to object to wearing his, we never saw a photo of Tojo without one, Stalin works in one, and altho Dear Winnie wears civies or the uniform of Trinity house, King George makes his public appearances in a uniform. WHY THE PAPER DRIVE SUCCEEDED.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Please accept my thanks for the gracious compliment you paid me in your editorial of Aug. 17, entitled "Chicago Leads Again." So that the record may be correct I will greatly appreciate the publication of this letter placing the actual credit for the magnificent showing made by Chicago and 90 surrounding towns and cities in the waste paper pickups of Aug. 12.

Under the general chairmanship of William L. McFetridge the following gentlemen headed various subcommittees handling the many details of the collection. City Commissioner of Streets and Electricity Lloyd M. Johnson, and his assistant, Albert Konefes, routed and maintained control of 600 pickup trucks during the day of the pickup, and because of the tremendous amount of paper placed on the sidewalks, for the following three days.

From the war production board we had William M. Scanlan as coördinator, with John G. Sheldon recruiting more than 3,000 Boy Scouts and other youths to man the trucks, and S. F. Sutton to line up 90 suburban cities and towns for their pickups on the same day. The allocation of the tonnage and all details from a waste paper consuming mill standpoint were handled by William E. Bennett, A. H. Meisterheim, and Andrew Kerns. The 600 trucks procured from the army, navy, private firms, and the waste paper industry came under the direction of Joseph Marcus. The financial details were handled by Harold Shilling. One of the finest radio jobs in history was done by John W. Bennett. The National Periodical Publishers' committee under the direction of William Sittig, Samuel Penfield, and Merlin Weed arranged for the standards on State st. and the various types of advertising sponsored by the State Street council. All the publicity was written by Tom Wilhelm, who also originated many of the pictorial features. The six daily Chicago English language newspapers gave thousands of dollars' worth of space to the pickup, and they were heartily joined in the work by Chicago's foreign language press, our community newspapers, and all of the newspapers of the suburban cities and towns.

I just stood around and looked on and had a wonderful time watching the other people doing the work.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 18.—This northeast corner of Indiana is rated banner Republican territory of the state and strongly nationalist. Fort Wayne, in Allen county, an important industrial center, is strongly unionized, both by the CIO and the American Federation of Labor. Observers and G. O. P. leaders estimate that Sidney Hillman's political action committee is not likely to change much of the labor vote. They say it appears in August that CIO members who are Republicans will probably vote that way, and those who are Democrats will vote Democratic.

Sidney Hillman.

The Hillman group recently made a futile effort to change the method of registering votes to allow CIO workers to be registered by shop stewards and other amateur registrars.

CIO Leader Defeated.

In the primaries this year, Howard Manier, leader of the CIO was defeated for the Democratic nomination for congress. He carried Allen county, but the vote of other seven counties in the 4th district, all rural territory, defeated him. The 4th district in 1942, rolled up a plurality of 22,000 for the Republican congressman, George Gillie.

That same year Mayor Harry W. Baals, who was being attacked for "isolationism" was elected for his third term. He carried 57 of Fort Wayne's 59 precincts, and polled 62 per cent of the votes cast, showing the community's views for nationalists. Politicians say it indicated the rank and file of the CIO cannot be delivered.

More than 40,000 industrial workers, it is figured, are in Allen county. Quite a number are from outside, some from Michigan and Ohio. Labor troubles have been few. Labor is recognized with responsible appointments in the city government which has been Republican for the last 10 years.

The Republicans say Fort Wayne is one place which demonstrates that the G. O. P. is as good a haven for labor as the Democratic party. To illustrate, Arthur Wiegand, head of the AFL is president of the school board. Appointed by Mayor Baals to the board of public safety is E. C. Gallmeier, a machinist and a CIO supporter. A member of the board of public works is David Lewis, of the Bricklayers' union, AFL. All three are lifelong citizens of Fort Wayne.

PAC Threatens Clerk.

Demands were recently made upon Mrs. Dorothy Gardner, county clerk, by Hillman's political action group that she permit a new method of registration, not provided for by law. They demanded that a list of their workers be deputized and sent into plants to register CIO members as voters. Mrs. Gardner declared that if such process were followed it would throw things wide open for any other organization or club to make similar demands, that it was not provided by law, and was without precedent.

Mrs. Gardner resisted the pressure of the group and she reports she was then told, "We'll drive you out of politics."

EASE OF SOLDIER VOTING PROVED, SAYS VURSELL

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.] declared today that the facility with which the army and navy have distributed ballot applications under the soldier vote law belies the charges of New Dealers that the law would prevent millions of service men and women from voting in November.

Vursell said in a statement that the army and navy have informed him postcard applications for state ballots were delivered to every service man and woman overseas by Aug. 15, as provided in the law adopted last spring.

Moreover, he continued, military authorities have assured him ballot applications will be in the hands of service personnel in this country by Aug. 25, or 21 days ahead of the legal deadline.

Impossible, New Dealers Said.

The Illinois congressman, recalling contentions by New Deal congressmen who supported the federal blank ballot bill that the use of state ballots would be impossible, said:

"The efficiency and ease with which the army and navy have completed this first phase of soldier voting belies charges made when the bill was under consideration that it would be too difficult a job. The success with which the plan is now operating should stop carping criticism of the die-hard New Dealers who were defeated in their attempt to cheat the soldiers out of a chance to vote the full ballot by attempting to provide blank "bobtailed" ballots.

Heavy Vote Predicted.

Never before in history, the congressman said, have men in military service been afforded such a complete and simple plan for voting.

Vursell predicted a "rather heavy" absentee vote by Illinois service personnel. The credit for this potential vote, he said, goes to Gov. Green and the Illinois legislature for enacting the state service voting law at a special session this year.

CIO AID DEMANDS FREE TIME FOR UNIONS ON RADIO

Should Be Voluntary, He Tells Hearing.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18. — Radio stations not only should donate time for labor union broadcasts but should offer such time without waiting for unions to ask for it, Ernest Goodman, Detroit, Mich., associate counsel for the United Automobile Workers [CIO] said at a federal communications hearing today.

Goodman's statement came during the cross-examination of Carl M. Everson, vice president and manager of WHKC, Columbus, O., a witness at the hearing on the CIO's petition to the FCC to cancel WHKC's license. The CIO asked the cancellation on the alleged ground that the station censored scripts for a program paid for by the CIO while broadcasting Mutual Broadcasting System programs said by the CIO to be anti-labor.

In Public Interest.

Everson had testified that during 1943 his station had donated time to 186 charitable and civic organizations, but in the last nine years had not been asked by any labor union to donate free time. He said that in his opinion WHKC was operating in the public interest.

"It should be the duty of a radio station to go to unions and offer them free time," Goodman said. "When the UAW-CIO in Columbus asked to buy time for its program, shouldn't you have offered them free time so they could have put on programs free from censorship?"

"No," Everson replied. "When a man offers to buy something you can't very well turn around and offer it to him free."

It had been brought out previously that the CIO contract with WHKC gave the station the right to review all scripts and make changes.

WHKC is not the real target of the UAW-CIO's petition, Richard T. Evans, educational director of the Columbus local of the union, testified. He said the union's aim is to force revision of the National Association of Broadcaster's code which prohibits stations from selling time to present one side of controversial matters. Witnesses for the radio station had said that changes made in the CIO scripts were in accordance with the NAB code.

Other Stations on List.

Philip Loucks, Washington, D. C., attorney representing WHKC at the hearing, told THE TRIBUNE today that the CIO's petition to cancel WHKC's license is only the opening gun in the union's attempt to force radio in general to give the union time on the air. He said he understood at least 45 other stations were on the CIO's list of petitions for license cancellations.

Testifying today, Everson said WHKC will be guided in the future only by legal requirements in granting time for the discussion of controversial issues. He said the NAB code does not give a station any set rules for handling requests for time from labor unions.

The hearing adjourned today until next Wednesday.

What Goes On in Street? These 9 Women Find Out

Houston, Tex., Aug. 18 (AP).—Nine inquisitive women shoppers were wishing today they hadn't been so curious. Noting that a cruising police car had stopped a woman in the middle of a downtown street, the women hastened over to see what was going on. A patrolman was writing out a jay walking ticket—and he obligingly doled out nine additional tickets for them.

32 UNITS MARCH IN LEGION BOND RALLY IN LOOP

Thirty-two units participated in a drum and bugle corps contest and bond rally last night in the loop, which was sponsored by the 1st district of the Illinois department of the American Legion. The parade, which formed at State st. and Wacker dr., moving south along State st. and west on Randolph st., passed a reviewing stand on Randolph st. between Dearborn and State sts.

As the contestants marched, women solicitors circulated among the crowds selling bonds, which purchasers were allowed to credit to the participating posts.

EXPECT LARGE VOTE DECLINE IN NOVEMBER RACE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—The total vote in this year's Presidential election is in for a big drop from the nearly 50 million recorded in 1940 if the aggregate of ballots of both parties in recent state-wide primaries is any indication of the November turnout.

An Associated Press survey of elections for governor and senator in 18 states showed today vote declines in 16 states, ranging up to nearly 50 per cent of 1942 or 1940 primary totals. Primary registrations also were off compared with recent years. Only Ohio and South Carolina polled larger votes.

War Scatters Voters.

Both parties recorded fewer votes in most instances. Some of the decreases were attributed to lack of contest in contrast with former years, but on the whole the 16 states polled over 2¼ million votes less than in the most recent comparative state-wide primaries.

Important factors in the decline include the millions of service men scattered all over the world and the migration of workers to war plant centers. These were apparent two years ago when the off-year congressional elections brought out only about 30 million votes.

Illinois' aggregate Republican and Democratic primary vote for governor was off 36 per cent compared to 1942. Part of this was due to the fact that there was no contest in the Democratic primary. The total vote was 1,252,252, as against 1,963,298 in 1942, a decrease of 711,046.

Pennsylvania Off 41 Per Cent.

Pennsylvania's senatorial primaries drew 876,693 voters, with candidates unopposed in both parties. This compared with the previous state-wide primary vote of 1,499,229 for governor in 1942, a decrease of 622,536, or 41 per cent.

Ohio's two party gubernatorial and South Carolina's Democratic senatorial primaries were the only elections pulling more voters to the polls than two years ago. But these races were unusually lively ones.

The Buckeye state primary vote totaled 794,924, or 125,993 more than that in 1942.

Ohio May Be Exception.

Ohio may prove a November exception to the smaller vote indication this year. The secretary of state's office there estimates a Presidential vote of 3½ million, as against 3,376,239 in 1940.

The total votes in Iowa and Michigan, with comparisons:

Iowa—Senatorial, 200,953; off 113,590 from 1942; governor, 213,200; off 96,736.

Michigan—Governor, 441,006; off 50,824.

OPA SEEKS DAMAGES OF $805,500 FROM LOCAL LUMBER FIRM

A triple damage suit, seeking to collect an estimated $805,500, was filed yesterday by the regional office of price administration against Walter Vanlandingham, Inc., and Walter Vanlandingham, individually, 400 W. Madison st., doing business as a wholesale lumber company, on charges that they violated OPA price ceilings.

The action, filed in federal District court, is the largest in the Chicago area in the amount of possible damages. It charges that the Vanlandingham company from Aug. 18, 1943, to date, shipped in 1,500 car loads of west coast lumber amounting to 50 million board feet, and sold it at an average of $179 per car load in excess of maximum prices.

"This is the first major suit in this area in OPA efforts to obtain compliance with regulations establishing the price for lumber," said Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator. "The majority of lumber dealers comply fully. More suits against the few violators are likely."

Day by Day on the FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

August 18, 1944.

A FEW welcome showers at the farm this week brought a slight measure of relief to parched acres. Rain fell on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and each time the farm received approximately a quarter of an inch of moisture.

First glance would lead one to believe the farm had been saved by the rain. The crops were desperately in need of rain and it is doubtful if they could have lasted much longer without suffering severe damage.

Good, But Not Enough.

Unfortunately the rains were far from being adequate. The soil was dry to a depth of several feet. The surface was so dusty it absorbed the rain as quickly as it fell and little was able to penetrate the ground beyond a quarter of an inch.

The pastures were able to benefit some from the rain as the roots are close to the surface of the ground. Also helped were the struggling new seedings of legumes in the oat fields. The other crops, being more deeply rooted, got little help from the moisture.

Week of Rain Needed.

What the farm really needs is a week of gentle, soaking evening rains. A hard pounding rain likely would do more harm than good. The "gulley washers and trash removers," as farmers term hard rains, wash away the top soil and come down so fast they run off instead of being absorbed into the ground.

The low humidity now being experienced tends to draw moisture from the soil into the air. As a result the rain which fell over the farm may disappear quickly, leaving the farm where it started. A long drouth cannot be dissipated by two thundershowers, and without a generous follow-up the farm will be in danger again in a short time.

Cool Weather Helps.

The cool weather will help to make up for the lack of rain. Hot winds are the farmer's greatest enemy, for they dry the ground and crops more rapidly. The corn at the farm is beginning to fire and some areas show an increasing infestation of chinch bugs.

Good rains would kill the bugs and stop the firing. By now, however, the drouth has gotten in its bad work and the farm corn crop has been reduced. A check of some ears reveals the kernels are not filling properly because of the lack of moisture. If the maturity of the corn continues to be held back the farm may end up with a crop of soft corn as it did last year.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS growing broccoli for the first time may be tempted to destroy or neglect their plants after harvesting the main terminal head, not realizing that lateral sprouts later will be produced by the same plants. The lateral sprouts will be smaller, but just as tender as the main head. Broccoli withstands light frosts, so the lateral sprouts will continue appearing thru early autumn.

Cabbage worms continue to attack broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, and other members of the cabbage family, altho not as persistently as during the earlier part of the growing season. Now that these vegetables are in or near the harvest stage, it is inadvisable to use arsenates or other poisonous sprays to combat the cabbage worms. Rotenone, or commercial insecticides containing rotenone or pyrethrum, are nonpoisonous to humans and are effective against the cabbage worms. As the nights become cooler cabbage worm infestation will diminish.

TOMATO GLOBES

Cut 6 peeled tomatoes into thirds crosswise; sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Spread fish filling on bottom slice of each tomato; cover with middle slice and spread with egg filling. Replace top slice, cut gash in center and insert slice of stuffed olive. Chill well and serve garnished with watercress or other salad greens. Makes 6 servings.

Fish Filling: Combine 1 cup drained flaked tuna fish or salmon, 6 tbsps. mayonnaise, 2 tsps. lemon juice, dash of cayenne; mix well.

Egg Filling: Combine 3 chopped hard-cooked eggs, 3 tbsps. mayonnaise, ¼ cup chopped stuffed olives, 1 tsp. lemon juice, ⅛ tsp. salt, dash of pepper; mix well.

HOT STRING-BEAN SALAD

In a skillet cook ½ lb. bacon, cut in ½" squares, until golden-brown. Pour hot bacon bits and fat over 3 lbs. hot cooked unseasoned string beans. Toss in 1½ cups thinly sliced scallions, 1 tbsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, and ½ cup vinegar. Serve immediately. Serves 6 to 8.

Oatmeal Squares

½ cup butter or vitaminized margarine	2 cups quick-cooking oats
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed	½ tsp. salt
	1 tsp. baking powder

Melt butter in skillet; stir in brown sugar, then remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pack into a greased and floured 8" x 8" x 2" pan. Bake at 350° F. 15 min. While still hot, cut into squares; remove from pan when cool. Makes sixteen 2" squares.

Enjoy summer with your family—plan for an electric range after Victory

In post-war Augusts, you can enjoy summertime with your family instead of spending hours over a kitchen stove. With a miracle-working electric range you'll set a dial—and then go to the beach with the youngsters. Foods will cook while you bask in the summer sun. Automatic electric controls will insure steady, even temperatures—vitamins will be sealed in—heat will turn off when foods are at flavor-peak.

You can be chef in a kitchen that's cooler, and cleaner, too, when you have an electric range. Smoke won't throw "tell tale" grey streaks on your walls; curtains will stay crisp and eye-catchingly bright. You'll save money, too—thanks to Chicago's consistently low electricity rate. So dream today—then have an electric range after Victory bells ring out!

MOTHER ADMITS TRYING TORTURE MURDER OF BABY

Infant She Didn't Like in Critical Condition.

BY JUNE GESERICK.

A 19 year old mother, charged with deliberately injuring her 6 week old son, admitted last night during a lie detector test that she meant to kill the child, according to Assistant State's Atty. Edward H. Grant.

The mother, Mrs. Betty Jane Lindquist Dybicz, of 7102 Lowe av., was arrested yesterday by Englewood police after they learned that the tiny victim, Dennis Wayne Dydicz, was in Englewood hospital with a broken leg, three broken ribs, a double compound fracture of the left arm, a skull fracture, and about 10 other injuries, for which the mother admitted guilt.

Mrs. Dybicz told Acting Capt. Daniel Ahern that she "did not like the baby because his father is not my husband." Her husband is Chester Dybicz, 25, small statured steel worker. They have one other child, Richard, 15 months.

Baby's Condition Critical.

Dennis was moved from Englewood to County hospital, where he was reported to be in a critical condition. His mother, a large woman with honey colored hair, revealed no anxiety about the baby as she was interviewed in the women's quarters of Central Police headquarters.

This is her story:

"The whole thing started last Thursday [Aug. 10] when we first got up. The baby was driving me crazy with his crying so I socked him in the eye. Then I twisted his leg with one of my hands. He became unconscious and Chester tried for an hour to revive him. The inhalator squad came when I called them, but they worked on him only for a few minutes because my husband already had helped him. The baby's eye was discolored.

"Later that night my husband noticed that the baby's leg was getting swollen so he called the doctor. The doctor put a splint on the baby's leg and the next day we took him to Englewood hospital to have it set.

Twists Arm and Breaks It.

"Everything was all right for a couple of days—until Wednesday morning [Aug. 16]. I picked the baby out of his crib and broke the baby's arm. I twisted it. Then I held him in my arms because he was hurt. I wanted to love him, so I squeezed him—not really hard. When I put him down, he had passed out.

"I held him in my arms for awhile, but he was real quiet. He was white as a ghost and he looked like he was dead except that he was breathing, so I just put him in his crib. I left him there until my husband came home at 8 o'clock that night.

Mentions Husband; Weeps.

"Chester looked at the arm," she said, and as she mentioned her husband's name she wept bitterly, pausing only to ask if he was well. Then she went on, "He called the doctor and later they took the baby to the hospital."

Told that her son was near death, the woman stopped talking for a moment. Then she returned to her report of her tortures to the baby:

"I have no excuse. I don't even know what happened. But I do love my husband so much even now that I'd gladly give my life for him."

Reminded again of Dennis' condition, she said, "I didn't hate my baby. I disliked him."

PARENTS AWAY; THREE PLACED IN JUVENILE HOME

Sheffield av. police last night took charge of three young children who, they said, were abandoned and neglected by their parents in a rooming house at 602 Arlington pl., and removed them to the Juvenile home. They are Richard Lancaster, 12; James Lancaster, 7, and their half-sister, Frances Carter, 3, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter.

The children were taken from the house after a report was turned in by the landlady, Mrs. Ethel Tenenbaum, who said she was worried about their condition. Desk Sgt. Martin Mullen said the children's mother had been away since Wednesday and the father was at work in a foundry. Mrs. Carter's first husband, Jack Lancaster, the boy's father, from whom she is divorced, is in the navy.

Mrs. Tenebaum told police that "as soon as Mrs. Carter gets her navy check she disappears from home and buys nothing for the children."

North Suburbs Report Two Paralysis Cases

Two cases of infantile paralysis reported yesterday in the county area outside Chicago brought the number for the year to 20, it was announced by Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, county health director. The latest victims are a 13 year old boy living in Wilmette and a 9 year old Kenilworth boy.

HOME OFFERED TO COUPLE WHO GAVE UP BABY

Mother Can't Accept, for She's in Jail.

Legal technicalities last night stood in the way of acceptance by a destitute young mother of an offer of a temporary home for herself, her husband, and their baby.

The child, Richard Edward Grimm, 9 months old, was left in the care of a stranger in Lincoln park by his parents shortly after midnight Wednesday. When they failed to return, police took the child to St. Vincent's orphanage.

Mother Arrested on Street.

Late yesterday Detective Peter Harlib of the Town Hall station arrested the mother, Mrs. Audrey Grimm, 21, at Grace st. and Broadway. She told police that she, her husband, Richard, 30, and the baby had lived in the park since being evicted from 822 Leland av. for nonpayment of $73 rent.

Not long after her arrest Charles Williams, 65, of 707 Briar pl., and his wife, who had read of the family's plight, telephoned police.

Mother Held for Court Hearing.

"Mrs. Williams and I live alone in this large apartment and we would be happy to give this family shelter and food until they can get settled in a place of their own," Williams said.

Mrs. Grimm, however, had been booked on a charge of contributing to the dependency of a minor. Police said they could not release her pending a hearing in Women's court Monday. The Williamses said they would be in court at that time to renew their offer. Police continued a search for Grimm, who was believed to be looking for work.

GIRL'S DEATH IS 2D TRAGEDY TO STRIKE A HOME

Sorrow struck twice within three days yesterday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Whalen, 1401 Sedgwick st., when their daughter, Eileen, 3, was run down by a truck and killed in front of 338 W. Schiller st., just around the corner from her home. Hudson av., police said the Railway Express truck which killed her was driven by Francis Moser, 30, of 5910 Navarre av.

On Wednesday the Whalen's son, Raymond, 12, disappeared from home and no trace of him has been found.

Mrs. Laura Whalen, the children's mother, collapsed when police told her her daughter was killed. She said she has been searching since Wednesday for her son, who was dressed in a blue green gabardine coat and blue cotton pants. He occasionally worked as a pin setter at the Germania club, 108 W. Germania pl., and police are searching for him in that area.

The Whalen girl was taken to Henrotin hospital by Moser, who then reported to police. She was dead on arrival at the hospital.

REPORT LABELS ARMY HOSPITAL AS 'FIRE TRAP'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—An investigation of the Bolling field station hospital in Washington, an army air forces installation, showed it to be in a run down condition and a fire trap, Rep. Fenton [R., Pa.], a member of the house military affairs committee, reported today to Rep. May [D., Ky.], committee chairman.

Fenton recommended the immediate construction of a modern hospital and in the meantime the removal of the wounded in Bolling hospital to more comfortable quarters. The hospital is a receiving station for wounded men flown from overseas, and more than 600 cases have been processed there since January.

Fenton's report stated that the 250 bed hospital, built in 1940, is a single story wooden building originally intended for use as a dispensary. It asserted that flooring was rotted away in places, as well as being uncovered and unpainted, and that in case of fire, bedridden patients would have little chance to escape.

The principal complaint of the patients was reorted to be the oppressive heat in the wards.

LOOMING MAKES MICHIGAN SHORE VISIBLE HERE

A mass of air from the polar regions moved over Chicago yesterday, clearing away smoke and helping to provide a mirror effect, called looming, over Lake Michigan. As a result, the Michigan shore line was visible from Tribune Tower. O. T. Lay, meteorologist in charge of the Chicago office of the weather bureau, explained the mirror effect was created by a layer of cool air overlaid by warmer air over the lake.

HALL WON'T SIGN A COMPLAINT IN DORSEY BATTLE

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 18 (AP). — Screen Actor Jon Hall, injured in a fight in Bandleader Tommy Dorsey's apartment last Friday night, said thru his attorney today that he will sign no complaint. District Atty. Fred N. Howser, who ordered an investigation of the fracas, has said that if Hall refused to enter charges he would refer the case to the county grand jury. Hall, cut and bruised about the face and head, is back before the cameras.

'No Home, No People'; Vet Takes Life in Hotel Room

Frank J. Foley, 60, recently discharged from the Veterans' hospital at Wood, Wis., was found dead yesterday, his wrists slashed, in his room in the Paxton hotel, 1432 N. La Salle st., where he had registered two days earlier. A note on the dresser stated simply, "No home, no people."

MOTORMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

Elmer Holderbaum, 41, a motorman for the elevated lines, was found dead yesterday in the gas filled basement of his home at 7045 Elizabeth st. He had attached one end of a rubber hose to an open gas jet, and put the other end of the hose into his mouth.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

ESCAPE FROM CASTLE.

The car approached the guards rapidly, giving Carol the same weird feeling she always experienced when a moving picture camera moved too close to some approaching object.

In another instant it was happening. The driver, a snarl on his face, turned to Bright and made an upward motion with his elbow. He was going to try and knock Bright out and jump. His hands were off the wheel and in another instant the car would crash into the heavy wall ahead instead of making the sharp right turn into the street. Both sentries sprang to attention. Carol could not look any longer.

Miraculously the crash did not come. But from the motion of the car she knew they were out in the open street and climbing. She opened her eyes. The chauffeur was pushed far over into his corner and Bright, leaning over him, was driving the car. He was using both hands. It could only mean that his automatic had done its silent job. In another moment they emerged onto the broad level surface of the Lower Corniche road.

It was deserted at the moment and Bright drew the car up in the shadow of the castle's upper wall. With one swift movement he put the German's uniform cap on his own head and pushed the body to the floor of the car.

"Phew! That was close as a jackrabbit's tail!" he said. "Too bad about Jerry here, but he asked for it."

"Chin up, Kansas," he said. "We can't change our minds now!"

The car was moving again, heading for the narrow entrance of the military trail. A long row of German lorries filled with supplies loomed ahead of them, slowing their progress. These were probably bound for Mount Angel, she thought, that last outpost of the Maginot Line.

At length the road was clear and Bright was able to approach the military trail. Carol forgot Mount Angel. What sort of interference would they run into now? There was the sign warning that entry was forbidden, plainly visible in the moonlight. But there was no sentry. More likely there was some sort of patrol system. It might function along the main highways or then again, it might be encountered on the trail itself. Bright spoke for the first time in quite a while.

"I guess we'll just have to make a dash for it," he said. "After all there are no actual military objectives on this cow road. It's just a communications affair."

"All right. Only let's get it over with fast!"

He took her at her word. The big car, of a famous Italian make, had four speeds and he ground it into the trick second gear which was meant for climbing. The long hood made a dive for the hill and they were off at a breakneck pace, the tires slipping on the loose gravel, the heavy body teetering to the dangerous edge on the curves. Bright had the dimmers on as it would have been impossible to negotiate the road in darkness and they both knew that their passage would have been all too visible to any watcher below. Their best chance of safety lay in speed, and Bright was making the car give all it had. Then when they reached the Middle Corniche, he swung left towards Nice and resumed a more normal pace.

Altho they had not spoken during that wild ride, they had been terribly close together. Shared danger had a merging power as strong as shared love, she thought. Silence still held them for several moments as the car, following the billowing curves of the splendid highway, dove thru the little wisps of mist which the cold night air drew out of the sweating granite cliffs. When they came to the deserted stretch beyond Villefranche, thus Bright drew up at the road's outer edge.

"It's about here, isn't it?" he said in a low tone.

Carol's lips framed an answering "yes." Somehow the thing they were about to do seemed unbearably horrid. It had an uncanny, cold-blooded quality. Bright had to help her out onto the grassy cliff edge and she stood with her back to an old wild olive tree, glad of its support while he went back to the car with its grisly passengers. He got into the driver's seat again and in the stillness she could hear the click as he took off the hand brake. Then the heavy vehicle began moving toward the edge of the cliff. There were no trees except the one behind her and far, far below the Mediterranean flashed her treacherous charms under the full moon. Between lay the cruel, boulder-strewn drop which was too steep and barren for even an animal to travel. The car loomed big and black against the sky. It was almost at the edge. It was at the edge!

"Jump, Bright, jump!" she screamed.

But even as the cry left her throat Bright had leaped out to safety. The great car's rear leapt upward in an enormous arc that seemed unending and then the whole thing was gone, pitching over the cliff with a horrid crash and a wild tearing sound as earth and stone were ripped apart in its downward passage. Bright came to her and slipped his arm about her shoulder. He had discarded the military cap and wore his faded beret once more.

"You're shaking!" she said. "I don't wonder. I feel funny, too. But it was the only way."

He put her aside gently, and wiped his face.

"I hated to do that to such a swell car!" he said.

And then they began the long and perilous walk to Nice.

"How far to Brochard's?" he asked.

"About four miles."

Now that it was behind her Carol was trying to shake off the horror of the last hour's experience. But it was not easily done. Fritz had been a drunken little beast and his end was a good thing. But the other, the one who had driven the car—he was just a big, stupid oaf, pathetically grateful for the food she had given him, eagerly responsive to a simple kindness. And it had been necessary to kill him. The part she had played in that made her feel physically ill. But this was all a part of the bargain she had made when she volunteered, so she walked stiffly and in silence, determined that Bright should not know about her moment of weakness.

Bright, too, was apparently busy putting his soul in shape—closing inner doors on the irretrievable, adjusting himself for things to come. He walked near her, but he did not attempt to touch her. She was glad of that, glad to feel that his sensitive mind had its disputes with his strong soldier body. It was his deliberate coördinating of the two which made him so splendid, she thought.

WRIT TO CLEAR WAY FOR GIRL'S WEDDING SOUGHT

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed yesterday in Criminal court in behalf of Edith Demas, 16, of 2646 Jackson blvd., in an effort to free her from the jurisdiction of the Juvenile court and permit her to marry John Carpenter, 19, of 2716 Jackson blvd.

Acting Chief Justice Harold G. Ward continued the hearing until next Monday, when Atty. Ben E. Polowsky, who filed the petition, will argue his claims that Miss Demas, who is scheduled for a Juvenile court hearing Aug. 30, is being held for insufficient reason.

Miss Demas and Carpenter were seized last month in Verda, Ky., at the request of the girl's mother, Mrs. Helen Demas, and brought back to Chicago. Since then the parents of both young people have consented to their marriage, which was to have been performed yesterday in Boys' court by Judge N. J. Bonelli. The judge postponed the ceremony when he learned Edith's case in Juvenile court had been continued until Aug. 30. He continued Carpenter's case, a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, to Aug. 31.

W. J. SMITH, 53, ACTING CAPTAIN OF POLICE, DIES

Acting Capt. William J. Smith, 53, of the Burnside police station, died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital. He was operated on for appendicitis a week ago and pneumonia developed. He resided at 9225 Bishop st. He had been a member of the police force for 24 years, during which time he won 35 citations and 10 extra compensations. He leaves his widow, Pauline Euler Smith; a son, William Jr., in the Coast Guard; a daughter, Paula, a WAVE; two sisters, and five brothers, two of whom are policemen, Edward of Stanton Avenue, and Hugh J. of the detective bureau.

FIVE 'GOOD KIDS' ADMIT SLAYING, POLICE REPORT

Boston, Mass., Aug. 18 (AP).—Five boys, the eldest 16, who were held without bail today on a charge of murder in the death of a recently discharged marine, tonight were described by relatives and neighbors as "good kids." One was an honor student at English High school.

But the five have confessed, Acting Police Capt. John J. Walkins said, that they jumped on John Prunty, 43, threw him down, kicked his head, tied his own belt around his neck until he was unconscious and then robbed him of $128.

In District court today they pleaded innocent to charges of murder in the first degree and robbery. They were booked as John J. Donovan, 16; Thomas D. Durant, 15, high school honor student; Francis X. Mueller, 15; Francis Mulligan, 15, and Gerard Shields, 15.

COUNTRY MEDIC FORSAKES HORSE TO DRIVE A JEEP

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 18 (AP).—Country Dr. J. G. Archer will get his jeep. And no longer will he have to ride horseback over rough roads to treat his patients in isolated mountain communities.

A Louisville business executive, Twyman Humphrey, read of Dr. Archer's appeal for one of the rugged little vehicles. He volunteered to relinquish his own jeep to the doctor.

Dr. Archer, a resident of Prestonsburg, Ky., told the Smaller War Plants corporation in a letter yesterday that he "would like to have a jeep" so he wouldn't have to walk or go horseback to treat the families of 300 miners in isolated sections.

'LOVE SLAYING' PRINCIPAL WED TO MAN IN CASE

Miss Rosalie Walsh, 22, of 725 W. 79th st., who was acquitted last December on a charge of slaying her love rival, and Anthony van Arkel, 27, of 8810 Wallace st., the man in the case, were married Thursday night by Police Magistrate Joseph H. Jozwiak in the Niles courthouse, it was learned yesterday. The couple obtained the marriage license Thursday in the county building but were unable to be married at that time because Van Arkel did not have a ring. They were married by Magistrate Jozwiak at about 10:30 p. m.

Out of Town Weddings of Interest Here

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE best wishes of their many friends here will be with several young Chicagoans who are being married far from home today. In a quiet ceremony at the Meeting House in Fox Point, Wis., Miss Nancy Brown Scribner and Lt. William T. Kirk IV. of the navy, will be married this afternoon, with a reception following in the near-by summer home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert H. Scribner of Winnetka.

Because two of the bride's brothers, Lt. Gilbert Scribner Jr. of the navy and Lt. William Van Dyke Scribner of the army, are overseas, the wedding will be small, limited to the families and close friends. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, rector of Christ church, Winnetka, will read the ceremony.

Lt. Kirk, nephew of Rear Adm. Alan G. Kirk, served as a bombardier on a Flying Fortress overseas and has been awarded the distinguished flying cross and the air medal. His mother, Mrs. William T. Kirk III. of Morristown, N. J., is in Fox Point, for the wedding, but Comdr. Kirk still is overseas. Also missing from the family circle will be one of the bridegroom's brothers, Midshipman Ely Kirk, who was unable to obtain leave from Annapolis.

Another brother, Alan G. Kirk II., will serve as best man, and ushering will be the bridegroom's twin brothers, Richard and Donald; the bride's brother-in-law, Capt. John T. Blossom Jr.; Lt. Comdr. Richard C. Cragg of Evanston, flag secretary to Adm. Kirk, and John H. Van Dyke, a cousin of the bride.

Miss Mary Douglass Scribner and Mrs. Blossom will attend their sister as maid and matron of honor. The bridesmaids include Mrs. Scribner Jr., Miss Bemis Van Dyke, also a cousin of the bride; Miss Anne Johnson of Winnetka, and two of Miss Scribner's Bryn Mawr classmates, Miss Ann Auchincloss Sprague of New York, and Miss Phebe TenBroeck Stevens of Plainfield, N. J.

Other Weddings.

What is certain to be remembered as one of the prettiest weddings of the summer is taking place in Nantucket Island, Mass., where Miss Joan Ralston, daughter of Mrs. John G. Ralston of Chicago and Dixon, Ill., will become the bride of Lt. Joseph Wilson Cochran III. of the marines. The ceremony at high noon will be in St. Paul's Episcopal church, with the bridegroom's father, Dr. Joseph W. Cochran, and the Rev. Richard A. Strong, rector of St. Paul's officiating.

Both the bride and bridegroom will be in white, as he will wear the white dress uniform of the marine corps. For something old, the bride will wear some stunning heirloom duchess lace that belonged to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Henry Martin Ralston, used as trimming on her traditional satin gown.

Naval Air Cadet Douglas G. Harvey Jr. will give his cousin in marriage, and her attendants will include her debutante sister, Lucile, as maid of honor; Mrs. Robert S. Wareham, sister of Lt. Cochran, as matron of honor, and Miss Joan Forgan, daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. Russell Forgan of New York, who will be among the six bridesmaids.

Among the guests at the wedding and reception following in the Nantucket summer home of Mrs. Ralston will be the junior Edward A. Fargos of Madison, Conn., cousins of the bride and former Lake Foresters. Lt. Cochran and his bride will cut their wedding cake with a sword that was presented to a Cochran ancestor by the duke of Wellington. The wedding breakfast will be served at small tables scattered in the garden overlooking the ocean, and there will be music.

Lt. Cochran and his bride, who met at Nantucket five years ago, will leave by boat for the mainland this afternoon to have a short wedding trip before going to Camp Lejeune, N. C., where he has been serving as an instructor since returning from 18 months' active duty in the Southwest Pacific. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Cochran, have

Kitchen Pointers

—By Mary Meade—

"Can you tell me what kind of apples are on the Chicago market now?"

The prevailing varieties are wealthy, duchess, and northwestern greening, all three of which are excellent for applesauce—so now is the time for fresh applesauce often! The wealthy apple is good for all purposes and makes especially good pies. Duchess apples also turn out a delicious pie, while the northwestern greening, being a large, sweet apple, holds its shape well when baked. While it's too early to store apples for winter, there are many other ways of keeping these apples for later use. I'd recommend canning them as applesauce, as apples for pie or cake, or as apple butter.

"Why do some canning instructions specify using cooking salt instead of table salt?"

There are starch fillers, or other driers, in table salt, which may cause a cloudiness in the finished product. This is most often noticeable in pickling solutions, and while it's not a serious problem, it does cause many women to wonder what's wrong. For this reason, it's a good idea to use cooking salt in canning.

"Is it all right to put up chili sauce in jelly glasses with a paraffin seal?"

No, it's much preferred to can chili sauce in narrow mouthed bottles or in regular canning jars, which will have a better seal. The wide mouth of a jelly glass, as well as the use of a paraffin seal, offers greater likelihood of fermentation and spoilage of the sauce. Then, too, it does seem better to use larger jars for a jelly glass of tasty chili sauce wouldn't last long at most dinner tables!

Meat Spoilage Threat Seen in Pepper Hoard

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—The supply of processed meats for American housewives will be reduced by millions of pounds thru spoilage in the next six months because a few New York importers, aided by a New Deal agreement with Great Britain, have cornered the spice market, Rep. Andresen [R., Minn.] charged today in a house floor speech.

Andresen said more than 30 million pounds of black pepper, essential in seasoning sausage and similar meats, is in storage in the United States but the owners refuse to sell at the 6½ cents a pound OPA ceiling price.

Commercial users of pepper are anxious to obtain their supply in the British market, he added, where the price is about 22 cents, but are prohibited from making such purchases under an agreement between the administration and England.

"It looks to me like our government is fostering monopolies and restoring foreign cartels," Rep. Andresen told the house. "There is something rotten in this situation. Both the OPA and the department of justice should take prompt action to protect American consumers and I will urge the special house committee investigating the distribution of food products to determine the responsibility for the inability of the public to secure black pepper."

The Commodity Trading company, of New York, owner of nearly 20 million pounds of the necessary spice, and half a dozen other importers have cornered the supply, Andresen said. Government officials admit that the cost of sausage and processed meats would not increase if the ceiling price of black pepper was raised by several hundred per cent, but refuse to act.

Andresen recommended an increase in the ceiling price to permit the owners to make a fair profit on their holdings.

"Then, if they are not willing to sell, it appears to me the matter warrants attention of the department of justice," he declared. "Many American citizens have been prosecuted for less. The public should not be made to suffer because of greed on the part of a few importers."

Thru the Looking Glass

If you've spent much time out in the blistering sun without taking proper precautions to lubricate the skin you may notice at this point that it's dry and a bit leathery looking. Time then, to get busy with a soothing lotion to smooth and soften the dry epidermis.

One of the nicest means to this end that we can recommend is a lotion, pure white and delicately scented, that does an excellent job of restoring the skin to normalcy in a short time.

The preparation is really a "protective" lotion, intended for use before exposure to wind and sun and as such it's a honey. It helps shield the skin against the elements and prevent painful after effects. However, we think its double duty role as a soother for those who are suffering from dry, flaky skin at this stage of the summer is noteworthy.

It's to be used generously, swished without stinting over face, arms, shoulder, back, and legs. The skin will soak it up readily, a quality that particularly endears the product to us. There is no annoying sensation of having to work like fury to get rid of the stuff; it disappears rapidly and without leaving any traces of greasiness in its wake. And the effects of a single treatment are heartening. The skin that was taut and dry takes on a nice feeling of suppleness and feels wonderfully soothed and relaxed. Just as important, it looks infinitely improved. There's nothing very attractive about even a beautifully tanned skin if it looks parched and baked—it has to have the look of satin smoothness to complete the picture. And this creamy lotion gets our vote to do that job well. LOUISE DOOLEY.

Miss Tuminia Sings Brightly on Chilly Night

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Altho the electric weather signs for today were flashing rescue signs of fair and warmer, winter seemed to be whisking around the corner at Grant park last night when Josephine Tuminia wrapped shivering shoulders in silver fox as she sang with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee. But the little coloratura had a friendly audience to offset the inhospitable climate, and she did a trouper's job with deftness and charm. Sometimes her frail voice took on a warmth that was quite lovely, and if too many of her top notes were frostbitten—well, it was a miracle to me that any singer, tossed out to the wolfish snarl of that cold wind, could achieve anything more musical than the castanet click of chattering teeth.

Perhaps you remember Miss Tuminia from the Chicago Opera night in 1942 when she substituted for Lily Pons in "Lucia," and James Melton, stumbling over a loose board, made an unconventional double somersault entrance, and got up singing on pitch. Then, as now, she had exceptional agility, but no particular color or luster to her voice to make it memorable. If this new tendency to go sour on high notes was not entirely due to the weather, it is a danger signal no ambitious singer could afford to ignore. There is no point in a stratospheric climax when it emerges as an off pitch squeak.

At her best, Miss Tuminia has a dainty dexterity in florid music that can turn a clean and polished phrase as neatly as the attendant flute. Except for those unfortunate climaxes, she sang Dinorah's Shadow Song, the Proch theme and variations, and Benedict's "The Wren" with musicianly skill, and with Robert Macdonald expertly at the piano, she sang "Clavelitos" with a tone suddenly turned opulent and full of color. Some of these things made me suspect that we have not yet heard this girl's voice as it really can be. It is a good voice now, but somewhere in that glint of brilliance, that occasional luster, and that intelligent musicianship is a beautiful voice that can go places. I hope it finds the way.

Mr. Rapee opened his concert with Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, in a confused version quite unlike the Chicago Symphony's usual authoritative performance, and his merry pranks with "Till Eulenspiegel" wreaked havoc with Richard Strauss.

Women in War Work

—By Dorothy Johnson—

Women employes of the Curtiss Candy company do their war work with chocolate and caramel, providing energy required in the diets of fighting men.

Eighty per cent of the candy bars which the women turn out go to post exchanges and canteens both in the United States and overseas and into the refreshment supplies of war workers in plants thruout the Chicago area. Virtually all the hard candy production of the company is packed into army C rations.

The fighting forces also call on the uniformed women candy makers for dextrose tablets and bouillon powder for inclusion in army ration K, which also containns biscuits which the women have wrapped and packaged and granulated sugar which they have parceled into transparent plastic bags.

Most of the Curtiss women war workers have family men serving in uniform and spend a great deal of their leisure time doing volunteer service for various war agencies. Many women put in their free time assisting in Red Cross activities.

The list of women blood donors is long. Florence Wygmans is a 12 time contributor, Rose Dylla has visited the blood bank 10 times, Bernice Legowski has made seven donations, and many have helped the plasma cause with more than one contribution.

Four Curtiss women employes are devoting leisure hours as Red Cross nurses' aids in Chicago hospitals. They are Margaret Dunlop, Miss Wygmans, Miss Dylla, and Lorraine Slyder. Still others serve as volunteers with the office of civilian defense and local war price and rationing boards and as war bond saleswomen.

Barbara Bradley lends her special talent, singing, to treasury department shows and to performances for the navy and the United Service organizations. Gretal Dunsing also has played a role as entertainer for navy men, and Marguerite Licalzi teaches dancing at the Waukegan U. S. O. center.

When the company's honor roll of employes in uniform recently showed 1,000 men and women had joined various branches of service, Lorraine McCarthy sewed the four figures on the large Curtiss service flag.

Aware of the need for paper salvage, women on production lines have a routine system of collecting torn wrappers for waste paper collections and of reusing cartons in which candy bars are packed.

Twenty women work on the company's farms, thus relieving the shortage of men to do the jobs of dressing poultry, assisting in dairy operations, working as attendants in farm residences, and helping with planting.

Teachers Drop Indorsement of Fourth Term

Three hundred delegates, representing 30,000 members of the American Federation of Teachers, yesterday discarded a resolution indorsing the reelection of President Roosevelt and adopted a substitute with only a scattering—estimated as five—negative votes.

The Roosevelt measure, brought to the floor in the Morrison hotel by the resolutions committee, evoked an immediate response from Dr. George S. Counts, Columbia university professor of education and vice president of the federation. He proposed a substitute resolution calling for election of liberal candidates.

"There are many members of the federation who probably are not going to vote for President Roosevelt," he told the meeting.

While delegates might favor the resolution, Dr. Counts said, he did not believe the 30,000 members should be put on record. He asserted that the federation is composed of many small unions and argued that the membership probably would be severely affected by passage of the Roosevelt resolution.

After 10 minutes of lukewarm floor debate the delegates adopted the substitute measure offered by Dr. Counts. This asked the backing of candidates who have demonstrated their support of such principles as control of war profits, curbing of inflation, equitable taxation, nondiscrimination in employment, expansion and promotion of agriculture, fair labor legislation, and social security laws.

Other resolutions recommended that the federation renew its campaign for the repeal or invalidation of the Smith-Connally act as "vicious anti-labor discrimination injurious to the morale of our workers and to the war effort"; that the convention wire approval of Secretary Hull's invitation to other nations to meet in Washington to formulate international plans for abolishing war and establishing a basis for lasting peace; that an international office of education be established to serve as a medium of exchange of teachers and students and as a center of investigation and research for all educational fields; that every possible aid be given "victimized" nations in rebuilding their cultural life, with only such direction as is requested by these nations.

Indorsement of military training for youth, probably after high school graduation, was deferred until the need for action is more apparent. President Joseph F. Landis of Cleveland had urged in his keynote address that the convention indorse such a program.

A resolution prepared by State Teachers' College local, No. 79, urged investigation of the transfer last spring from Chicago Teachers college to Herzl Junior college of Dr. John J. De Boer, but it was not acted on. This resolution, with several others, was referred to the national executive council for disposal.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Festival White Collar Girl.

Tonight is the night of the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival. Those familiar with the event, which attracts 90,000 persons, and with the Music Festival luncheon, attended each year by more than 1,000, must wonder about the mass of preparation and organization, the thousand and one details which must be handled expertly to make a success of so huge an undertaking. They may not know—those 90,000 persons who enjoy the music and the spectacle—that there is a white collar girl behind the scenes. Bessie Vydra, secretary to Philip Maxwell, director of the festival. It is she who handles anything from arranging for the transportation of a 100 piece band to looking after the welfare of the smallest baton twirler. And it is she who can contrive to plan the seating of all those luncheon guests who specify: "Close to the speakers' table, if you please!"

From Czechoslovakia.

Her mother and father came to this country from Czechoslovakia. They met on shipboard and were married, fittingly enough for a couple already in love with their new homeland, on the 4th of July. Bessie shows some of her mother's native interest in needlework. She makes many of her own clothes, sews beautifully, and does fine handwork for trimming—again her love of detail! She can ply a needle and handle a hoe in her war garden . . . can swim . . . make friends . . . work . . . and make more friends.

Work and friends are synonymous, as far as Bessie is concerned. She is an "all out" white collar girl on the job, as any one who has worked with her knows. If she ever said no to any request for a little extra help, it is a secret buried deep in Tribune Tower!

Maid of All Work.

Bessie has been known to oversee the care of the children of one of the Tribune "family" when the parents were vacationing. Looking fresh as a marigold, she met Arch Ward one day in the corridor. She once had served as his secretary, so Mr. Ward asked: "What have you been doing lately, Bessie?" She debated whether she should tell him. She hadn't been busy, not really busy—just the usual secretarial work and helping out here and there—and staying up the entire night before, with one of the Tribune feature writers who was having a baby! Not really busy!

So well known is this smiling willingness—and this immense ability—of Bessie to accommodate herself and her time to any and all requests that on last April Fool's day her coworkers played a joke on her. There were two secretarial positions open on the Tribune, a note on her desk informed her. Could she take them on in her spare time? A solemn conference was arranged, whereupon it was agreed that Bessie's evenings on Monday and Friday were going to waste and should be devoted to this job. It didn't occur to Bessie that there was anything wrong with that! Not until she returned to her desk and found the April Fool memorandum awaiting her. She laughed, and her fellow workers laughed with her. They understood Bessie's creed of not letting any one down.

Ninety thousand spectators at the Chicago Music Festival! One of the reasons they are there in their seats—and the 8,000 performers are in their places—and the show goes on—is Bessie.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 18. — With "Going My Way" breaking box office records all over the country, and quite right, too, Charlie Koerner is happy because R. K. O. has just signed Barry Fitzgerald, who did such a marvelous job as the old priest. That means that R. K. O. now has the same trio that made "Going" such a success — Bing Crosby, Leo McCarey, and Fitzgerald — lined up for "Bar of Music" which Bing does when he gets back this fall. McCarey is already at work on the story with Ketti Frings. . . . Buddy De Sylva is looking for a story for Bing, as one of the three a year he'll make for Paramount under his new deal. Buddy doesn't want a "Going My Way" type of story. Says he, "It takes a Leo McCarey to do that." What he wants is a good musical or dramatic story. . . . Buddy's new deal gives him the No. 1 call on all Paramount's talent — acting, writing, and directing, so he's taking the biggest ones on the lot. He's not saying yet who will star in his other two pictures, but I'd guess that Betty Hutton will do one, and Bob Hope the other.

Tex Gets Around—So Does Jinx.

Jinx Falkenburg's fiance, Tex McCrary, is now lieutenant colonel. He was in Russia for two months with Col. Anatole Litvak. He's now in Italy with Litvak and Lt. Col. Willie Wyler, and they're cutting a picture. Tex is head of public relations in Italy. . . . Jinx begins "Song of Tahiti" Monday, and to date is without a leading man, altho George Holmes, a 6 foot 2er, has been tested for the part. Jinx may go to the army training station at Yuma, Ariz., next week-end with Errol Flynn, Paulette Goddard, and Paul Lukas. The new tennis courts there will be opened up then by Donald Budge. . . . What's this? Cary Grant being seen with one of our youngest singing stars? I didn't know Cary cared about music. . . . Carole Landis is back in San Francisco after her overseas tour.

Recognition at Last—and In a Big Way.

Lloyd Nolan, who's been in so many war pictures, never got above the rank of sergeant in any of them. But this week he worked in an army short, and I'll be darned if the army didn't make him a major right off the bat. . . . In addition to the three pictures Jimmy Cagney has announced, he owns another that he's keeping under wraps till he gets it ready. It's all about intrigue, espionage, and war in North Africa. . . . Mona Freeman, who's under contract to Paramount, has been borrowed by Columbia for the ingenue in "A Woman's Privilege" with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer. . . . Mike Todd, Sophie Tucker, the Bill Goetzes, and the Harry Brands are among friends helping Mr. and Mrs. Arthur X. Elrod of Chicago celebrate their 20th wedding anniversary at the Beverly-Wilshire Thursday night. . . . Pedro Armendariz, Mexican screen star, is in town for conferences with Hunt Stromberg about "Dishonored Lady," which starts in October. He does the Latin lover role in it, and Andre de Toth directs. . . . Mervyn Leroy's going away gift to Betty Hutton was a solid gold bracelet, with Betty's favorite saying engraved inside, "'Thanks a lot'—Merv."

A Gift That May Prove Valuable.

Eddie Goulding has turned over to the department of cinematography at U. S. C. screen tests that he's directed, from Greta Garbo to Eleanor Parker, and is also preparing a treatise on the theory and practice of using this method to discover talent. . . . Belle Baker will be seen on the screen in "Atlantic City" for the first time since 1929, when she made "Song of Love." And she's just closed a deal with a New York publisher to write the story of her life, which will run in a national magazine under the title, "I Remember When." . . . Eddie Robinson's organized five entertainment units for the G. I.s in France. After he finished "The Woman in the Window" with Joan Bennett, Eddie went to England, completed an air force picture, and then to France. . . . The Merry Macs tell about the young actress who quarreled with her husband and went home to mother, only to find that mother had gone home to mother.

West	North	East	South
1 no trump	Double	2 spades	3 clubs
Pass	3 no trump	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	4 clubs
Pass	5 clubs	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's free bid of three clubs was none too good, and he knew it, so when North's three no trump was doubled, South ran to four clubs. He hardly expected his partner to carry him to game, but North refused to hang one trick short.

West opened the spade queen. Declarer was not reassured when the dummy went down. It appeared that two diamonds, as well as a heart and a trump might have to be conceded, but South rolled up his sleeves and went to work. Winning with the spade ace, he cashed the spade king and then ruffed dummy's last card of that suit. Next he led the club queen, quite conscious that a finesse probably would not shut out West's club trick, but still employing the play for its timing effect. The queen held, but of course West's ten forced the ace on the next lead. South then threw West in with the club king.

West made the best of a bad bargain by leading the ace and a low diamond. South won with the king and carefully cashed his two remaining trumps, watching for West's discards. West found the going tough. He had to keep the diamond queen over dummy's jack, and therefore had to reduce to two hearts. Thereupon declarer easily ran off three heart tricks by taking the simple finesse.

MAJESTIC RADIO NEWS

'STANDINGS OF THE STARS'

Mr. D. A. Is Winner!

For the first time, Mr. District Attorney is first in the Hooperatings. Your Hit Parade is second after a fast rise. New "First 15ers" are: Man Called X, Gabriel Heatter, Thanks to the Yanks, Dr. I.Q., Hour of Charm, and Monday Morning Headlines.

Majestic Radio News No. 14

*Phil Harris is substituting for Kay Kyser.

Ratings are based on 2500 telephone calls per hour made from 6 PM to 10:30 PM in 32 cities. Thus, several leading programs heard after 10:30 E.W.T. are not rated.

Better Tubes Coming

The radio tubes you may soon be able to buy will give longer and better service because of higher wartime standards.

But that's still tomorrow. Today's job is making your present tubes l-a-s-t and continue to give good service. You can do this by: (1) Keeping your radio a few inches from the wall to prevent harmful overheating; (2) Switching tubes of the same type around; and (3) Making sure all tubes are securely set in their sockets.

Robert St. John and John W. Vandercook, radio news analysts, are like two peas in a pod. They have similar beards, are the same height, were born in the same year, 1902, and both broadcast for the same sponsor.

Television Forecast

"Unsettled today — clear tomorrow."

That's how a weatherman might describe the present television outlook. "Unsettled today" on account of the current question: Should television be expanded in its present stage of development, or await still further perfection?

But a hearty "Clear tomorrow," reflecting the certainty that high-quality television for the whole U. S. A. is coming—and soon! For once we Americans become enthusiastic about anything new, we have a knack of developing it with startling speed—and interest in television has never been so great as it is right now.

When television broadcasts do become more general, you'll want to hear and see them at their highest possible level of perfection. That's going to call for one of those fine television sets that Majestic will be building, when television time comes, for your listening and your seeing pleasure!

Worm Turns For Bergen

For many a moon Charlie McCarthy has heaped avalanches of abuse on Edgar Bergen, cracking fun at his vanishing hair line.

But it's Bergen's turn to taunt now, for there's a shortage of wigs for Charlie's head. The wigs of real red human hair came from Ireland, and wartime limitations on shipping have made the supply low.

4⅔ BILLION JULY EGGS KEEP WFA WORRIERS BUSY

More Buying Needed to Support Prices.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

While 100 million dollars worth of unwanted surplus eggs worried war food administration officials, the nation's hens last month clicked out the tidy total of nearly 4⅔ billion more eggs for them to worry about.

The officials viewed with gloomy apprehension the news that there were more than 295 million pullets on farms Aug. 1 ready to join the nation's laying flocks this fall.

Burdened with 5 million cases of eggs, many of which are spoiling, WFA officials are faced with the prospect of having to buy more to support the egg price, as they are pledged to do. They have confessed in public testimony that they don't know what to do with the surplus.

Asserts U. S. Was Warned.

In Chicago Arthur Israel, secretary of the National Egg Products association, asserted yesterday that the government was given ample warning it would end up under a pile of eggs if it didn't adopt a workable program.

"This association, as did many more, told federal officials they would be swamped with eggs unless they made it possible for the surplus to be dried or frozen and stored. Our warnings and pleadings went unheeded," he said.

"There are 90 egg drying plants in the country which could handle the surplus. Unfortunately, the government has declared that these plants should work at only 50 per cent capacity after Sept. 1," he added.

The government took this action to make sure only the best quality eggs were processed, Israel said.

Egg Breaking Wage Kept Low.

"The government permits us to pay only 55 cents an hour to experienced girls for egg breaking—a preliminary to drying. The same girls can get from 65 to 80 cents an hour in a radar plant," he said.

If the government will let the drying plants go on full scale operation, the surplus can be handled now and the WFA can be saved from selling them for 5 cents a case when the case alone is worth 50 cents, he said.

The WFA is still buying eggs for 32 to 36½ cents a dozen.

lived in Nantucket since their return five years ago from France, where Dr. Cochran was head of the American church in Paris.

Miss Marian Jeanne Penman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Franklin Penman of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Lt. William Ferry Harvey Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey of Lake Bluff, will be married in a candlelight ceremony tonight in the Episcopal Church of St. James the Less in Scarsdale. After a short wedding trip Lt. Harvey and his bride will live in Cambridge, Mass., where he is stationed at the navy supply corps school at Harvard university.

Week-End Calendar.

Fifty midshipmen from the naval training school at Northwestern university will be the special guests at a gay young party at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Saddle and Cycle club. Miss Joan Van Buren heads the committee of young women who will be present as their partners for swimming, dancing, and a hot dog buffet supper.

The Onwentsia club is expecting 265 guests for tonight's dinner-dance, the only event of its kind to be given this month at the club. Already reservations for the next dance Sept. 2 are nearly full.

Only members of the Knollwood club and their house guests will participate today in Members' day at the club. Golf, swimming, tennis, and a dinner-dance tonight are on the program.

Here and There.

An idea that started early this year in Barrington has evolved into the Barrington play reading group, which meets every third Sunday evening in the home of one of the 16 member couples to "produce" a play. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dilley, who formerly belonged to a similar group on the south side, introduced the idea to Barrington, which accepted it so enthusiastically that the group membership now has grown to a capacity of 32.

The next meeting is set for Aug. 27 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Horne, who according to the group's custom will serve a snack supper after the play reading. Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Fitzpatrick will select, cast, and produce the play to be read that night after one rehearsal. Also members of the group are Mr. and Mrs. D. Wendell Fentress, the Paul M. Corbetts, the Dayton Smiths, the F. Douglas Batemans, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Vanderwicken, the John Bennetts, the Christian Beuhlers, the Newton Nobles, Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton A. Throckmorton, the Harold M. Kneedlers, the Harold Byron Smiths, Mr. and Mrs. Colbernt Uhlemann, and the John Bicks. The Hornes are entertaining at cocktails from 6 p. m. on today to celebrate their 15th wedding anniversary.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Will Install Tomorrow

Beta Sigma Phi sorority will hold formal installation ceremonies for new members at 5 p .m. tomorrow in the Century room of the La Salle hotel. Presiding at the traditional candlelight rites will be Mrs. Ann Nafe of Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Ruby Hopkins of Dayton, O., representing the sorority's international field staff. Miss Miriam Ericson and Miss Esther Bossman, respectively, will be inducted as directors of Epsilon Delta and Delta Tau chapters. The Chicago council is hostess for the meeting.

Boy's Outfit

In the fashion world one has to consider, from time to time, the clothing needs of the little son in the family. This pattern makes for him a blouse and trousers ensemble which may be strictly tailored or trimmed with ruffling, depending on his age. Style No. 2503 is designed for sizes 6 months, 1, 2, and 3 years. Size 2 requires 1¼ yards of 35 inch fabric with ⅝ yard contrasting.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Skelton Movie Offers Several Fancy Tidbits

"BATHING BEAUTY."

A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, directed by George Sidney, starring Red Skelton, with Esther Williams, and presented at the United Artists theater.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Nerts — in technicolor! That's this'un!

But I can't just dismiss "Bathing Beauty" with those three words, tho they speak volumes. For the impossible yarn is lavishly decked with features—such as Harry James' trumpetings, the effervescences of Xavier Cugat and his orchestra, the marvelous organ achievements of Ethel Smith, once of the radio's Hit Parade, whose facile, beautiful hands swoop and dip and skim over the keys of her organ like gulls, and, for the finale, a water pageant that is a fascinating sight. It features lovely Esther Williams, swimming champion, who also is Red Skelton's leading lady in the movie.

Also the piece boasts one roaringly funny episode in which Mr. Skelton, who by hook and crook has succeeded in being admitted to the girls' school where his beloved is a teacher, takes a lesson in eurythmy. . . .

Mr. Skelton is characteristically Skelton-ic. Miss Williams is decorative and able, and other players, according fond special mention to Basil Rathbone, are plenty adequate to their roles. . . . Direction matches up with what needed directing.

See you tomorrow.

Department of Hebrew Opened at Loyola U.

Loyola university has announced the creation this week of a department of Hebrew and has named the Rev. E. G. Goodwin director. Courses in the Hebrew language and literature will be given at the downtown college, 28 N. Franklin st. Pope Pius XII.'s urging that Catholics be encouraged to study the Scriptures led to the inclusion of the Hebrew courses in the curriculum. Father Goodwin, for many years a member of Loyola's faculty, is the author of several scriptural books, including a study on the Book of Ruth and another on the Psalms.

Cause of Vague Misbehavior Often Complex

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: The News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Causes of vague misbehavior we were talking about recently are often complex. It therefore is quite difficult to find the origins of such troubling conduct, and in doing so it is wise for us to look for more than one cause.

So if you will put to use your knowledge of human nature, you will realize that many things may be the cause of intangible moods, like a little girl's sullenness, an older girl's discontentment, or perhaps a boy's apparent aversion to other children. Not one but several things may work together to bring about such a state of mind—a state of mind that is not easy for us to understand at first glance. Perhaps you will see more clearly what I mean if I give you an example of an actual case.

One mother I knew had a young daughter of 11 who rather suddenly developed spells of what seemed like almost melancholy; several times she found this daughter of hers in tears and, in fact, she was seldom during that period her own lively happy self.

Her mother tried in various ways to bring the child out of this state without any real success.

A couple of years later the daughter was once more as she used to be. When this fact dawned on the mother one day, she sat down to think it out. Finally, it looked to her something like this:

Four new things had just happened: The family had just bought an attractive home in the country instead of living in a small new apartment in the city in an unfamiliar neighborhood; they had found a particularly interesting school for their daughter to attend in the country, and the maid whom they had had since the child was born was able to return to them, having previously left them just when their home was broken up several years before. And last but not least, the doctor finally proclaimed the child absolutely free of a depressing chronic physical disability which she had suffered from for about three years.

The mother decided that all these things, not one alone, had added up to produce the emotional low state of her child. She based her conclusion on the fact that with the favorable changes had come the sudden improvement in her daughter's physical and mental state.

However, it can happen, too, that just one unfavorable thing in a child's life will permeate a great deal of her behavior, and if ruled out it will result in an equally far-reaching improvement.

DEWEY ADVISER TO MEET HULL FOR PEACE TALK

Governor Names Dulles for Discussions.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 18 (AP).—The way was cleared tonight for bipartisan consultation on foreign policy when Gov. Dewey named John Foster Dulles, New York attorney, as his agent, and Secretary of State Hull in Washington, D. C., said he would be "delighted" to talk over these problems with the Republican nominee's representative.

John Foster Dulles.

In an exchange of telegrams, Dewey pledged his "fullest coöperation" in efforts to organize the nations temporarily and permanently to keep the peace. Hull, agreeing to meet at a time convenient to Dulles, said he was "immensely gratified" at Dewey's assurances that the consultations would be held on a bipartisan plane.

No Arrangements for Trip.

At the governor's office it was said no arrangements yet had been made for Dulles to go to Washington, but it was assumed the Wall st. attorney and student of foreign affairs would lose no time in beginning conversations with the cabinet member.

[In New York City Dulles said he would "respond gladly to the joint wishes of Gov. Dewey and Mr. Hull." He said he would "wait to be officially informed by Gov. Dewey and make my plans accordingly."]

Hull's invitation was issued yesterday at a press conference in the course of his denial that the four power security conference, which will begin at Washington on Monday, was pointed toward organization of a four power military alliance that would dominate the postwar world.

Dewey had said he was "disturbed" by reports that small nations would be denied a voice in reshaping the world, a result Hull said was not contemplated.

His Personal Confidence.

Urging acceleration of efforts to organize for lasting peace, Dewey in his message to Hull said Dulles, who has been mentioned as a likely choice for secretary of state if the Republicans win in November, "has my personal confidence, which I am happy to say is shared by a number of members of the United States senate of varying political views."

"In view especially of the progress of the war in Europe," Dewey told Hull, "I am convinced that every effort to organize both temporarily and permanently for the establishment of lasting peace should be accelerated, and I am happy to extend my fullest coöperation to the end that the results should be wholly bipartisan and should have the united support of the American people."

Well Known to President.

Dewey said Dulles was well known to Hull and President Roosevelt and had given "a lifetime of study and constructive action in the field of foreign affairs."

The Republican nominee called Dulles "one of the very ablest of American authorities on international relations."

Hull responded with this message:

"I am in receipt of your telegram of Aug. 18 in which you say 'I am happy to accept your proposal for consultation made at your press conference yesterday and to designate Mr. John Foster Dulles as my representative.'

"'I am immensely gratified to receive your assurance of bi-partisan coöperation in the effort to establish lasting peace.

"'I shall be delighted to see Mr. Dulles and to confer with him on any date or dates convenient to him.'"

AVER CIO BOOK SMEARS 6 WHO FOUGHT REDS

Thousands of copies of a pamphlet entitled "The Case Against the Six Expelled Disrupters" have been issued by the CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers union in an attempt to explain its action of expelling the union members who sought to drive Communists out of local 101, which is made up of employes of tractor works of the International Harvester company.

One CIO-UFEMW leader yesterday described the pamphlet as an attempt to "smear" the six unionists because other CIO unions have joined in protest against the action of the international union in expelling the union members over the protest of members of the tractor local union. Another CIO leader said it was a "face saving" gesture by the union.

In discussing "enemies within the union," the pamphlet uses the old Communist strategy of defending the Communists within the Communist dominated UFEMW union by saying: "When you analyze their program, it consists of calling every progressive labor leader 'Communist.'"

Nowhere in the pamphlet is any attempt made to explain away the long Communist record of Joseph Weber, alias Ruic, Ruick, Hudson, Judson, and Ray, an international organizer for the UFEMW who allegedly engineered the expulsion of the six unionists for their anti-Communist activities.

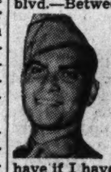
THE QUESTION.

What is your favorite hour of the day?

WHERE ASKED.

Oak Street beach.

THE ANSWERS.



Pvt. Sidney Sircus, 1810 Jackson blvd.—Between 5 and 6 in the afternoon is all mine. I'm thru school and I can do anything I choose. I usually go home, take a shower, shave, and put on clean clothes. That's when I anticipate the good time I'm going to have if I have a special date.

Pete Garlick, apprentice butcher, 1935 Wabansia av.—I always look forward to my lunch hour. I eat my lunch in a hurry and go for a walk along Lake Michigan. It's fun to watch the bathers, see the boats, and smell the fresh wind blowing off the lake. I let my mind drift from one subject to another.

Jean Knapik, wiring assembly line, 1651 Huron st.—My most enjoyable hour starts at 1:30 in the morning. After working in a defense plant, the girls and I always go out "slummin'," roller skating, dancing, or the Y. M. C. A. which stays open until 3 for people who can't indulge in sports in the day. It's good fun.

Maxine Lang, radio actress, 160 N. Menard av.—At 3 in the afternoon I go home then and take a short nap. It relaxes me and gives me renewed energy. I couldn't go without my hour of complete rest. When I wake up I feel as fresh as if I had slept a whole night and enjoy the rest of the day more.

George Pronath, dance director, 1406 Berteau av.—Most of my friends are in show business and at midnight our business is usually buzzing. I think night is much nicer than day and I'd much rather be awake at night and sleep during the day. I see more of my friends between 12 and 1 than at any other time.

Kansas Democrats Name Hill for Senatorial Race

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 18 (AP).—Thurman Hill, 53, Independence attorney and chief counsel of United States treasury procurement, was chosen the Democratic senatorial nominee for Kansas today by the Democratic state committee to oppose Sen. DULLES' FOREIGN POLICY RESTS ON 6 'PEACE PILLARS'

New York, Aug. 18 [Special].—The stage was set today for John Foster Dulles, Gov. Dewey's adviser on international affairs, to present his "six pillars of peace" to Secretary of State Hull. Dulles will confer with Hull on plans for post-war world organization as a result of an exchange of views between Dewey and Hull.

The "six pillars of peace" are the result of a two year study by a commission organized by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. They were first presented on March 18, 1943 in New York, by Dulles, chairman of the commission, and were indorsed by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The points follow:

1. The peace must provide the political framework for a continuing collaboration of all nations.

2. It must provide for agreement on economic and financial acts of national governments which have widespread international repercussions.

Changing Conditions.

3. It must provide for an organization to adapt the treaty structure of the world to changing conditions.

4. It must proclaim the goal of autonomy for subject peoples.

5. It must establish procedures for controlling military establishments everywhere.

6. It must establish in principle and achieve in practice the right of individuals everywhere to religious and intellectual liberty.

Dulles, 56, is a member of the international law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, whose clients have included foreign governments and international banking houses whose foreign investments total billions of dollars. He is known on Wall street as an authority on foreign loans, having made a specialty of arranging American loans abroad.

Pleases British Papers.

British papers have expressed satisfaction that Dulles is Gov. Dewey's adviser. His record of more than a quarter of a century of international financial diplomacy discloses him to be an ardent advocate of world peace thru international intervention.

A report on "long range peace objectives" that he issued in September, 1941, is said to provide the best summary of his viewpoint on international organization.

In this report, issued before this country went to war, Dulles said "It is essential to any just and durable peace that nations like the United States, which disproportionately control the natural resources of the world, develop the will and find the effective way to permit these resources to service the basic economic needs of others."

He conceded that a necessary first step in this direction involved "securing a change of attitude by the congress of the United States."

"The end of the present war, if it is fought thru to military victory, will find an overwhelming concentration of power in one or two nations," he said. "That power, of course, will be a reality, the implications of which we cannot avoid. Our task will be to make it a beneficent reality. This requires that we use our power, not to perpetuate itself, but to create, support and eventually give way to international institutions drawing their vitality from the whole family of nations.

"The easy way will be for the victors to assume that the power they possess is so concentrated that peace can be assured by informal processes, not requiring permanent international machinery. The hard way will be for the victors to create international organs having the power to make decisions in which others will participate as a matter of right. Yet only this latter course can be expected to produce a durable peace."

Adviser to Poland.

Dulles advised Poland on financial stabilization and in 1933 represented American banking houses in Berlin debt conferences at which he tried to "prevent or minimize the loss to American holders" of more than a billion dollars in German bonds sold by financial houses which he had represented.

Dulles, grandson of John W. Foster, secretary of state under President Harrison, was secretary of the second Hague peace conference in 1907, special agent for President Wilson to Central America in 1917, and assistant to the chairman of the war trade board in 1917-'18. He was chief counsel on reparations and financial matters at the Paris peace conference.

He conferred with Chiang Kai-shek on far eastern conditions after the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war and in 1942 made an unofficial mission to Great Britain.

Britain Asks Boys, 15-18, to Help Pick Hop Crop

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The British government tonight appealed to boys 15½ to 18 years old to volunteer for hop picking in Kent to ease the labor shortage. Unless the harvest is gathered, the ministry of agriculture warned last night, Britain faces a serious beer famine. Parents of boys who have scruples against picking hops for beer manufacture may help with fruit picking, potato digging, and other harvest work, it was said.

BREWERY SCION INDUCTED INTO ARMY AS PRIVATE

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Gert Hans Von Gontard, acquitted of draft evasion charges two months ago, became an army private today, six days before his 38th birthday anniversary.

A German born grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, St. Louis brewer, Von Gontard was sworn into the army after passing final physical examinations at Grand Central palace.

Appearing at his local draft board headquarters with other inductees this morning, Von Gontard appeared cheerful, and said:

"I feel fine and I hope the army takes me. I did have a gall stone condition and occasionally it bothers me, but not sufficiently to keep me from military duty."

SEN. BURTON PRAISES DEWEY'S DECISION TO CONFER WITH HULL

Sen. Burton [R., O.], one of the authors of the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution approving post-war collaboration with other nations, issued in Chicago yesterday a statement praising Gov. Dewey's acceptance of a bid to confer with Secretary of State Hull.

"The acceptance by Gov. Dewey of Secretary Hull's invitation to consult with him on international affairs is a constructive and important step that demonstrates Gov. Dewey's clear understanding of the needs of the time," Burton said.

"His designation of John Foster Dulles to represent him in these consultations gives assurance that they will prove valuable to the country.

FEKETE INJURED IN ALL-STAR SCRIMMAGE

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

A KANSAS CITY fan has figured out a sure recipe for winning big league pennants and has the records to back him up. . . . The method is simple: all the club has to do is play an exhibition game in Kansas City. . . . The Cards did it last year and Brooklyn, Cincinnati, and the Yankees all battled the Blues before going on to capture major league titles. . . . The Browns, it should be noted, already have complied with the requirement this season. . . . Joe Devine, the Yankee scout, and Joe Engel, ivory hunter for the Senators, both claim to have discovered Joe Cronin. . . . Devine says he signed the present Red Sox skipper for the Pirates, but that Donie Bush, then manager of the Pittsburgh club, gave up on him and sent him to Kansas City. . . . It was there that Engel grabbed him for the Senators. . . . Bill McGhee, who is doing very well at first base for the Athletics, was considered only an ordinary performer by Little Rock fans this season. . . . On the other hand, when the White Sox recalled Shortstop Cass [Kwietnewski] Michaels from the same club, the customers moaned long and loud. . . . Of the five cities which have two clubs in the big leagues only Chicago and New York have had intra-city world series, the Cubs and White Sox playing in 1906 and the Yankees and Giants five times. . . . This leaves Boston, Philadelphia, and St. Louis and it looks as tho the Browns and Cards will take care of their part of the setup this fall. . . . Gordon Maltzberger, brilliant relief hurler for the White Sox, was barely mediocre with Nashville in the Southern association and the Vols let him drift into the Texas league. . . . After reading that the Russians were continuing their gallop toward east Prussia a Dover [O.] turf fan played a hunch and it paid off at 5 to 1—Red Canter at Washington Park.

Katie Jenkins.

Joe Devine.

Katie Jenkins, divorced wife of Lew Jenkins, the former lightweight champion, has been refused a second's license in New York state. . . . Theodore Roosevelt, the most sportsminded of all the Presidents, once threatened to issue a Presidential decree against college football unless the flying wedge was eliminated and injuries reduced. . . . Mel Ott, who holds the National league home run record with 485, hit only one in his first two seasons with the Giants. . . . Purdue university has 13 gold stars on the service flag in its athletic department.

The Time Is Now.

When boys return within some future day
Can you, with truth, when facing them, then say
"I met the challenge every time, to give My blood that wounded men might live?"
How will you dare to meet their war dimmed eyes
If, now, because you failed them, some boy lies
Within a distant grave? O, don't delay,
The fighting heroes need your blood today!

With a heavier burden than I,
And it usually doesn't take very long
To figure out some one close by.

So I make a call on a shut-in
To whom the hours must seem long,
Or I send a line to some saddened soul
For whom just a few notes make a song;
Or maybe a soldier in some far spot,
Thru the list I hurriedly skim,
Then I set me down, take my pen in hand
And pop off with a letter to him.
On days when I find myself starting to feel
Awfully sorry for me,
I find some one worse off to try to help,
It's an unfailing remedy!

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—The White Sox, who apparently were afraid of the dark, as they lost 15 of their first 18 night games this season, are becoming absolutely owlish. Tonight they made it three straight under the Griffith stadium lights as Johnny Humphries led them to a 2 to 1 victory over the Washington Senators. They now have won eight of their 23 nocturnal matches, six of them from the Senators.

For a time tonight it looked like skimpy foraging against Roger Wolff, who hadn't won a game since he trimmed the Sox, 12 to 2, here on the night of May 13. The White Sox didn't make a hit until Mike Tresh wasted a single with two out in the fifth inning. Guy Curtright wasted a double with two out in the sixth.

Sox Settle for Five Hits.

Then Hal Trosky, with a double, Thurman Tucker and Tresh with singles, and Eddie Carnett with a long pinch fly, produced the two run night's total to wipe out an unearned run which Roberto Ortiz had scored after opening the third inning with a double.

The three essential hits lifted the total off Wolff to five and that proved the total for the evening. Early Wynn retired the Sox in order in the last two innings.

Humphries yielded one hit in each of the first four innings and two in the fifth but he tightened thereafter and a pinch single with which Wynn broke into the game was the only safe one in the last four innings.

Error Lets Senators Score.

Ortiz, who was in the starting lineup for the first time in the series, opened Washington's third with a double to left center and took third on Stan Spence's long fly to Tucker. Curtright made a spectacular diving catch of Torres' liner. The relay to the plate, Curtright to Hodgin to Tresh, had Ortiz beat on a hard slide into the plate but Ortiz kicked the ball out of Tresh's glove and scored.

The White Sox will conclude their 1944 business here tomorrow night. It was announced tonight that Orval Grove and Gordon Maltzberger would accompany the team to Philadelphia. It is expected that Grove who has been suffering from lung congestion, will be released from the hospital tomorrow afternoon. Despite circulation of rumors that Maltzberger's sore arm threatened to become a chronic ailment, he worked out with the team tonight and is expected to be as good as ever with a week's rest. It was said that x-rays showed no bone chips or other handicaps more serious than inflamed ligaments.

GETTING ONE AWAY WITH NOTHING TO SPARE

CUBS WIPE OUT BOSTON MARGIN IN 5-3 VICTORY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Charley Grimm's Cubs fiddled around aimlessly yesterday until 7,048 cash customers and almost as many women guests began to worry, but in the end everything worked out satisfactorily for all concerned. Mr. Grimm's employes couldn't do anything except accumulate a deficit during four innings of work, but from then on put in some tasty wallops with their bats to mow down Boston's Braves, 5 to 3, in the third chapter of the series.

The job of trying to snare the fourth Cub success in their last 13 attempts was entrusted to Claude Passeau and the latter was plenty good once he swung into a normal stride. The Braves treated him to a series of bruises in the first four innings, but his dodging was so artistic that the damage was limited to two runs. Then, once in the lead, he completed the show in a hurry, except for a ninth inning disturbance in which he yielded a run before making his eighth 1944 victory official.

Barrett Is Good, at First.

Charley Barrett, the Braves' starter, who didn't know what the Cubs had in store for him, was slick enough to hold them to a three hit pace thru the first four innings. During this stretch, he fell heir to a 2 to 0 edge that grew from some second inning blasting against Passeau. This was made up of a double by Butch Nieman and a single by Stu Hofferth before anybody was retired and a single by Clarence Etchison with one out. Soon afterward fellows like Don Johnson, Dom Dallessandro, Andy

Wright Entry Tops Beverly Field Today

Beverly Entries

FOURTEEN fillies and mares were entered overnight in the $25,000 added Beverly handicap, to be contested today at Washington Park over a mile and an eighth. The field in post position order follows:

	Wt.	Rider.	Prob. odds.
Big Push	108	D. Dubois	20-1
Traffic Court	115	A. Bodon	15-1
Letmenow	102	F. A. Smith	10-1

Silvestra	106	A. Fischer	15-1

*Calumet farm entry.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Twilight Tear will not grace the ranks of the starters in today's $25,000 added Beverly handicap at Washington Park, but two other Calumet farm speedsters will shoot for the first prize of $21,000 against a field of the best fillies and mares in the middle west.

Trainer Ben Jones decided at the last minute to leave his champion filly in the barn and send out the 3 year old Miss Keeneland, and Mar-Kell, his 5 year old champion race mare of the 1943 season. Top weight of 118 pounds in the prospective field of 14 was allotted the Warren Wright entry.

Gross Value Is $30,100.

The mile and an eighth event, 19th stake race on the Arlington-Washington program, will have a gross value of $30,100 if all 14 start.

Seven of the probable starters are 3 year olds. They include beside Miss Keeneland, winner of the Cleopatra handicap, Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue, winner of the Arlington handicap; Coward and Dupuy's Doggone, Abe Hirschberg's Canina, imported from Detroit for the occasion; Col. C. V. Whitney's Big Push, Hal Price Headley's Letmenow, and Walmac farm's Snack.

Field Includes Stake Winners.

In addition to Mar-Kell, the older entries are Miller and Burger's Traffic Court, Happy Stable's Happy Issue, D. V. McClure's Gold Princess, Mrs. Robert McGarvey's Night Shadow, Happy Hour farm's Rosy Brand, and Woolford farm's Silvestra.

The Calumet entry no doubt will go to the post the favorite, probably at odds of 2½ to 1, while Night Shadow and Letmenow rate secondary backing.

Sylvester Haynes, who rode both winners in Thursday's daily double, came back with the winner in the first race yesterday, whipping Mrs. W. R. Reid's Dark Ship over by two lengths but Tony Skoronski took the honors on W. F. Mannagh's Liberty Flight in the second. The double return was $32. Dark Ship paid $8.20 and Liberty Flight $6.20.

HAMILTON DROPS McSPADEN FROM P. G. A. TOURNEY

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 18 (AP).—Two more favorites tumbled out of the 1944 National P. G. A. golf tournament in 36 hole quarter-final matches today but the one to beat for the title, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., was still very much in the running. He beat Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y., 4 and 3.

One of the two stars who dropped out of the race was Harold McSpaden of Philadelphia, leading money winner of the year and second choice when the event opened Monday.

First P. G. A. Tourney.

McSpaden caught a tartar in Bob Hamilton of Evansville, little known in major tournament play. When the match finished, 2 and 1, Hamilton had shot five under par golf for 35 holes.

The other topnotcher to fall was Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs. He was a victim of the real dark horse, Charles Congdon of Tacoma, Wash., who hung up the stunning decision of six and five.

Congdon will face sterner opposition tomorrow. His semi-final battle will be with Nelson. Nelson's golf thus far has been phenomenal. He clipped the course for a six under par 66 in defeating Goggin and when the match ended he was seven under standard figures.

Bell Is Eliminated.

The other quarter-final saw George Schneiter, Salt Lake City, beat Art Bell, San Francisco, two and one. Schneiter's victory put him into the semi-finals against Hamilton tomorrow with the latter established as the favorite. Nelson, who held the P. G. A. title in 1940, will tee off as the odds-on choice to beat Congdon.

Ann Curtis Wins 2 A. A. U. Titles; Nears One Mark

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 18 (AP).—Ann Curtis dethroned two national title holders tonight to turn the halfway mark in her quest of a history making clean sweep in free-style faces in the National A. A. U. swimming meet under way at the Swope park pool.

First topping Brenda Helser, Portland, Ore., with a tremendous burst of speed at the finish of the 100 meter sprint, the powerful San Francisco girl then won the 1,500 meter contest, coming within one second of the American record. She defeated 13 year old Florence Schmitt in 22:13.1.

Miss Curtis' two triumphs pushed the Crystal Plunge swimmers into the lead for the team championship at the end of the first night's events with 11 points. The defending Riviera club of Indianapolis was a close second with 10.

Joan Fogle, Riviera's all-round star, swam a masterly race to win going away from Nancy Merki.

WRENCHED KNEE BENCHES OHIO BACK; JACOBY RUNS 85 YARDS

Dobbs' Passes Set Up Another Touchdown.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[ALL-STAR ROSTER ON NEXT PAGE.]

The blue shirted college All-Star varsity whipped their white clad team mates yesterday afternoon, 13 to 0, in the first game of three in the intra-squad rivalry but the victory cost the All-Stars the services of Pvt. Gene Fekete, Ohio State full back, for the battle with the Chicago Bears in Dyche stadium, Aug. 30.

Fekete pulled the ligaments in the right knee when he was tackled on a slash at defensive left tackle in the first half of the game. The big back, whose smashes pointed Ohio State's attack leading to the 1942 Western conference championship, was carried from the field. Trainer Carl Erickson applied splints and bound the knee. The injury is not believed to be serious, but it will require several days of complete rest. There is no possibility, according to the Northwestern trainer, that Fekete can play against the professional champions.

Jacoby Runs 85 Yards.

Fekete had started in the scrimmage in a back field which included three Indiana university backs, Lou Saban, Billy Hillenbrand, and Chuck Jacoby, who also starred in 1942. The Blues' assault on this particular march had advanced 52 yards on Fekete's plunges, a reverse by Jacoby for 15 yards, and two runs by Hillenbrand. It was third down and 5 yards to go on the defenders' 23 yard line when Fekete was injured.

Corwin Clatt, Notre Dame full back, replaced Fekete in the Blues' back field. The latter had fumbled when he was injured and by virtue of Red Williams' 35 yard sprint around left end, the Whites immediately threatened. The march ended disastrously, however, when, on third down, Jacoby intercepted Williams' pass and ran 85 yards down the east side line behind perfect interference to score. Saban place kicked the point for the Blues' 7 to 0 lead.

Pass to Grefe Scores.

John Yonakor, Notre Dame end, recovered a fumble by the Whites shortly afterward. The Blues went 30 yards in three plays. After an incomplete pass, Hillenbrand rammed the line for six yards and then passed to Roy Grefe for the score. Saban's try for the point was wide. Lineups:

BLUES [13].		WHITES [0].
Yonakor, N. D.	L. E.	Wooten, Okla.

Fekete, Oh. State	F. B.	Storti, Illinois

Touchdowns—Jacoby, Grefe.
Point after touchdown—Saban.
Substitution—Clatt, Notre Dame, for Fekete.

Another Blue team whipped the Yellows, 7 to 0, in the second game of the afternoon. Glenn Dobbs of Tulsa, at tail back for the victors, was the deciding factor, the Blues scoring in a 65 yard assault.

Van Buren, S. U.	R. H.	De War, Indiana
McKay, Texas	F. B.	Layden, Texas

Touchdown—Van Buren.
Point after touchdown—Dobbs.

Paul Sarringhaus of Ohio State was substituted for Charley Trippi and made the longest run from scrimmage in the series of games, breaking loose for 52 yards around defensive left end.

A third game ended in a scoreless tie and then Dobbs' team, with replacements from other elevens, returned and scored to end the two hour drill. Two practices will be held today. After a drill tomorrow morning the squad will be given a half holiday.

Navy Lifts Ban Against Cornell Star

Ensign Meredith Cushing, captain and center on the 1943 Cornell university football team, yesterday was notified that "he is free to participate in the All-Star football game," against the Chicago Bears in Dyche stadium, Aug. 30. Permission officially was granted in a letter from Capt. C. A. Bailey, chief of staff to Adm. Arthur H. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, to the professor of naval science and tactics, naval reserve officers training corps, Northwestern university.

On Monday Ensign Cushing was notified by telegram he could not participate in the All-Star game. Yesterday's notification rescinded this order explaining that "due to the fact that this officer is in an inactive duty status, it is not considered that he comes within the scope of the secretary of navy's directive dated July 29, 1943."

Cushing Still Must Pass Final Test When He Reports for Duty.

Adm. Carpender's order on Monday also barred the following players who had agreed to use their routine leaves to participate in the All-Star charity game: Bill Godwin of Georgia, Bill Daley of Minnesota-Michigan, Alex Kapter of Northwestern, Vic Schleich of Nebraska, and Jim White and Zygmont Czarobski of Notre Dame.

Cushing, who was graduated recently from Cornell with a degree in electrical engineering, has been sworn in. He has passed his preliminary physical examination, but will be examined again when he reports for active duty next month at Hollywood, Fla.

Yesterday Cushing, who earlier had been informed by telephone that official permission to play would follow, was overjoyed. "During my three years of intercollegiate football competition at Cornell," he said, "I had hoped that some time I would have the chance to play in the All-Star game. I had looked forward to this game with the Bears as the biggest thrill of my football career and I am most happy I will have a part in this great contest."

Letter Says Case Not Covered by Directive of July 29, 1943.

The letter from Capt. Bailey follows:

Aug. 16, 1944.

From: Commandant, 9th naval district.

To: Professor of naval science and tactics, naval reserve officer's training corps, Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.

Subject: Ensign Meredith Cushing, U. S. N. R.; participation in All-Star football game, Aug. 30, 1944.

References: [A] Com. 9, dispatch 141,622. [B] HTS., Hollywood, Fla., Dispatch 152,031 dated Aug. 15, 1944. [C] Telephone conversation between Capt. A. D. Denney, U. S. N. [retired] and Capt. C. A. Bailey, U. S. N., 9th naval district.

1. Confirming reference [C] the commandant requests that subject named officer be informed that he is free to participate in the All-Star football game, Evanston, Ill., on Aug. 30, 1944, as he sees fit.

2. Due to fact that this officer is in an inactive duty status, it is not considered that he comes within the scope of the secretary of navy's directive dated July 29, 1943.

C. A. BAILEY,
Chief of Staff.

Cushing's return to the All-Star roster brings the number of players to 68 exclusive of the six navy men named in Monday's ukase. While Cushing had been assigned to the blocking back position when he reported earlier, there is a possibility he will be used at center, his regular position.

Navy Delays Hemsley's Induction for Check-Up

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Rollie Hemsley, 37 year old catcher of the New York Yankees, reported for induction into the navy today but was held overnight for further physical checking, it was revealed by induction authorities. Hemsley, who passed his preliminary physical examination in June, reported at New York induction headquarters after his papers had been transferred from Vienna, Mo.

REV. M'DONNELL, CATHOLIC PREP CHIEF, RESIGNS

The Rev. James E. McDonnell, C. M., yesterday resigned as president of the Catholic High School league, a position he has held for the last two years, and announced his transfer from the faculty of De Paul academy to St. Vincent High school in Perryville, Mo. The league presidency will be filled at the next official meeting early next month. Father McDonnell has been a member of the De Paul faculty for six years and has been athletic director since 1940.

REDS WIN TWO FROM DODGERS; TIE FOR 2D PLACE

Triumph, 7 to 6, After a 1 to 0 Victory.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 18 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds won both games of a twilight-night double header tonight from the Brooklyn Dodgers. Frank McCormick climaxed a ninth inning rally in the second game with a single that drove in the fourth and winning run for a 7 to 6 score. The Reds won the opener, 1 to 0. The double victory moved the Reds back into a tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates for second place.

HOUSE SPLITS ON SURPLUSES; VOTE DELAYED

Rules Out Special Privilege Clause.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—Prolonged debate over proposals to give soil conservation districts, schools, and public institutions prior access to surplus war property tied the house in such a knot today that Rep. Manasco [D., Ala.], floor manager of the bill for the administration, said the measure creating surplus disposal machinery may not reach a vote until next Tuesday.

Sen. Johnson.

As anticipated, these proposed changes, tho defeated, split house forces wide apart on how to handle the sale of an estimated 100 billion dollars of plants, tanks, jeeps, planes and other equipment. Debate on the bill will be resumed Monday.

Senate Group Favors Board.

In a surprise move, the senate military affairs committee late in the day approved a proposal to substitute an eight member board to direct surplus war property disposal for the single administrator provided in other pending legislation.

By a vote of 7 to 4 it tentatively accepted an amendment by Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] inserting the board provision in the Murray-Taft-Stewart property disposal bill under committee consideration. The committee deferred final action, however, until tomorrow.

Soil Plan Voted Down.

In the house Rep. Poage [D., Tex.] rounded up some support for giving the agriculture department access to surplus equipment for use in soil conservation and flood control, but his amendment was shouted down. Rep. Taber [R., N. Y.] objected it would be "nothing more than an unlimited appropriation" for the department.

Rep. Tarver [D., Ga.] offered the amendment to give schools and institutions some surplus equipment, but Manasco protested it was a "gift" of material that should be sold for as much as the government could get. The Tarver plan was voted down, 69 to 31.

The house then adopted amendments requiring public notice before any surplus property may be destroyed, rewording one section to "guarantee," against "gifts," and prohibiting dumping surplus crops and food at less than parity prices.

Urge Clayton Removal.

The National Farmers' union issued a statement sharply critical of Will L. Clayton, present surplus property administrator. James G. Patton, union president, said President Roosevelt should remove Clayton because of "his demonstrated hostility to the true interests of farmers, small business, and labor."

"He is selling this property off as fast as he can without regard for the views of farmers, small business, and labor," said Patton. "He is too expensive a luxury."

Meanwhile, an amendment by Rep. Voorhis [D., Cal.] was adopted tentatively which would require the administrator to sell in small lots where practical to small operators before big business interests may bid.

RETAIL SALES HIGHER DESPITE WARM WEATHER

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Retail sales volume advanced moderately this week despite the heat, and demand was especially keen for hot weather apparel and available furnishing lines, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Sales were estimated at 4 to 7 per cent above year ago volume. The midwest gain was 4 to 6 per cent.

Merchants reported plentiful stocks for the fall buying season were coming in as expected. Some sections of the country featured August furniture sales, but turnover was below last year because of limited stocks.

People and Events

Ruthraff & Ryan, Inc., advertising agency, yesterday announced the election of new vice presidents in Chicago. They are: Howard B. Ketting, account executive; Haakon Groseth, in charge of merchandising, and Albert R. Callies, head of media department.

F. B. Hufnagel resigned as chairman and president of Crucible Steel Company of America, but will continue to serve as director and executive advisor. W. P. Snyder Jr., chairman of the executive committee, succeeds Hufnagel as chairman.

K. D. Franke has been appointed ice cream sales and advertising manager of Hydrox, Chapell Ice Cream company and Thompson Ice Cream company, operating divisions of National Dairy Products corporation.

Martin L. Cassell Jr. and Eaton Adams have been appointed general attorneys for the Rock Island railroad with headquarters in Chicago.

Hillery M. Harrison has been appointed chief statistician of the National Used Car Market Report. He succeeds the late James M. Eadie.

Automobile Bonding company's name has been changed to Inland Investment corporation. J. F. Rosenthal is the new president.

TVA Program in Missouri Valley Asked

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—A bill for the establishment of a vast new government agency, modeled on the Tennessee Valley authority, for development of the natural resources of the Missouri river valley, was introduced today by Sen. Murray [D., Mont.].

Capitol hill observers viewed the measure as a New Deal bid for votes west of the Mississippi. Murray told the senate he could "safely assume" his bill had the approval of President Roosevelt.

Would Help Seven Million.

Murray asserted the measure was designed to promote the welfare of the seven million persons who live within the Missouri watershed area by harnessing river power, developing navigation, and controlling floods.

The watershed embraces a territory of nearly 530,000 square miles, 17½ per cent of the area of the continental United States, including all or a substantial portion of nine states: North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, and Missouri.

Under Murray's proposal, the MVA, like the TVA, would be empowered to spend large sums on dams, reservoirs, power, and irrigation projects, deepening and widening of channels. It would be independent of existing federal executive departments.

"Improve" on TVA.

Altho the TVA act has been followed in general, "improvements" have been incorporated in the MVA bill, Murray said.

"One of the major objectives is to strengthen the role of state and local agencies in the broad developmental program," he said.

The MVA is directed specifically to "utilize to the fullest possible extent the advice, assistance, and cooperation of the people of the region and their public and private organizations—local, state, and federal," Murray said.

ISSUE APPROVAL FOR PRODUCTION OF 55,562 TRUCKS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—WPB today announced authorization for the manufacture of 55,562 trucks, 39,512 medium, 15,677 heavy, and 373 off-the-highway, in the first quarter of 1945.

Manufacturers authorized to produce trucks, and the number of vehicles allotted to each for production in January, February, and March include:

General Motors, Chevrolet Motor division, Detroit, 13,522 medium; Dodge division, Chrysler works, Detroit, 3,895 medium and 390 heavy; Ford Motor company, Dearborn, Mich., 11,464 medium; General Motors Truck and Coach, Pontiac, Mich., 2,166 medium and 2,209 heavy; International Harvester, Chicago, 3,995 medium and 4,787 heavy; Autocar company, Ardmore, Pa., 1,152 heavy; Mack Manufacturing, New York City, 298 medium and 1,907 heavy; Studebaker, South Bend, 1,200 medium, and White Motor, Cleveland, 374 medium and 2,683 heavy.

LITHOGRAPHERS ARRANGE BROAD RESEARCH PLAN

The Lithographic Technical foundation has arranged with the Armour Research foundation at the Illinois Institute of Technology to conduct an extensive research program intended both to improve lithographic processes and find new fields for its use, E. H. Wadewitz, president of Lithographic, announced yesterday.

The program will supplement an existing one at the University of Cincinnati and was established "to meet the lithographic industry's present and future opportunities," Wade E. Griswold, executive director of the Lithographic foundation said.

Lithography has doubled its scope in less than 10 years and may double it again in the next five, Griswold explained and said the industry has gone beyond its former field of labels, posters, displays and direct mail into production of school texts, books and magazines.

Chicago-Portland, Ore., Direct Air Route Reopens

Direct air service by Northwest Airlines between Chicago and Portland, Ore., suspended in May, 1942, will be resumed tomorrow, J. J. Fauteux, district traffic manager, announced yesterday. The resumption was made possible by the army's return of an unspecified number of planes requisitioned more than two years ago.

STOCKS CLIMB AGAIN DESPITE PROFIT CASHING

921 Issues Traded; Market Active.

MARKETS CLOSED.

The New York Stock and Curb exchanges and the Chicago Stock exchange will be closed today and on the two succeeding Saturdays, Aug. 26 and Sept. 2. The Chicago Board of Trade and other markets will be open.

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—The stock market moved higher again today despite some cashing in on the recent upswing and a little evening up by customers preparing for the full two day week-end. It was a broad market.

Bullishness over the allied sweep in Europe and the possible early fall of the Nazis advanced issues with peace time ratings, altho commitments were conservative. Shares with an armament tinge maintained their balance, as industrial transition apprehension seemed to have waned more.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.1 at 55.7, its third successive advance. Of 921 issues traded, 474 gained, 207 declined, and 240 were unchanged. Transfers totaled 1,151,520 shares, compared with 1,238,225 yesterday.

Briggs Touches New Peak.

Among favorites, Briggs Manufacturing jumped 2¼ to 41, a peak for this year. Also rising were Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Oliver Farm, Douglas Aircraft, Santa Fe, Pullman, Pressed Steel Car, Anaconda, American Smelting, American Can, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Texas company, and Johns-Manville.

Losers included United States Steel, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, American Telephone, J. C. Penney, Dow Chemical, Western Union A, and International Nickel.

BOND MARKET STEADY.

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Selective strength among rails and a few other issues gave the bond market a steady tone today. Most gains and losses were fractional. The few wider movers, all up a point or more, included Hudson Coal 5s, International Hydro Electric convertible 6s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Wabash 4¼s, and New Haven 4s of '55 and '56. Delaware and Hudson 4s and Florida East Coast 5s each lost 1½.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS.

Price gains predominated in yesterday's reduced turnover of 38,000 shares on the Chicago Stock exchange. Active issues included Advance Aluminum, which closed up 1¼ for a new 1944 high of 7⅞; Standard Dredging, unchanged, and Chicago corporation, down ½. Other issues closing at 1944 peaks were Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett, 46½, up 2½; Montgomery Ward, 51⅝, up 1⅛, and United Air Lines, 33⅝, up ⅛.

GLIDDEN DEVELOPMENTS.

Please send information on Glidden company, particularly in regard to newer products.—R. D.

Answer: An important part of the expansion in Glidden company's business in recent years has been in its food division. Vegetable oils are a basic product, and war time sales of certain items, notably margarine and shortening, are reported to have reached peak figures.

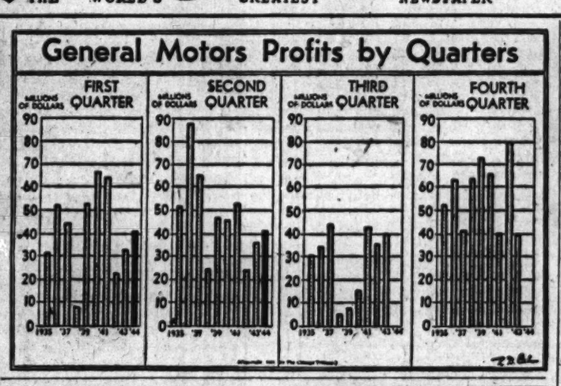
The company employs a patented process for soybean products extraction, from which it obtains oil, meal, flour, lecithin [an emulsifying agent used in the paint and other industries], and protein products which have been developed in recent years.

A relatively new product is Spred, a water paint in which protein is used as a base. Also among newer activities has been extensive work in powdered metallurgy, notably powdered iron.

Altho food products normally account for more than half the company's sales, the other divisions, including paints, varnishes, chemicals, and pigments are understood to make a greater contribution to consolidated profits.

Glidden sales have more than doubled since 1939 but profits have been irregular. Per share net earnings for the common stock in fiscal years ended Oct. 31 were: 1943, $1.88; 1942, $1.70; 1941, $3.08; 1940, $1.56; 1939, $1.70. In 1938 earnings failed to cover preferred dividends.

Common dividends at varying rates have been paid each year since 1933. Three dividends of 30 cents a share each have been paid or declared in 1944, and the 1943 payments totaled 90 cents. There are outstanding 825,443 no par common shares and 199,540 shares ($50 par) of $2.25 cumulative convertible preferred stock. Ten million dollars of serial notes were sold last May for refunding.



Reduce Hog Slaughter as Supplies Fall

Army Takes More

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—The war food administration today ordered federally inspected meat slaughterers to set aside 50 per cent, instead of the present 45 per cent, of their beef meeting army specifications for government procurement beginning Aug. 20.

Packers thruout the country yesterday were forced to reduce their hog slaughtering as supplies diminished. Some plants operated only four days this week and packers said they expected no early improvement. All buyers paid the highest prices permitted by the OPA for nearly all purchases.

Farmers brought to Chicago some of the heaviest of their spring pigs from some areas short of corn and damaged by the drouth, but such shipments were only a small part of the total. These 5 to 6 months old pigs weighed 160 to 190 pounds and all sold at $14.75, the top. Most of the spring pigs weigh less than 160 pounds and will not be marketed in volume for at least six weeks unless they are forced in by a feed shortage.

Good Lights Bring Top.

The $14.75 top was paid for almost all good 160 to 240 pound hogs. Some good 140 to 160 pounders were sold from $14 to $14.50, some common underweights ranged down to $13, and some inferior pigs sold for less.

The 20 leading markets during the first five days of this week received 8 per cent fewer hogs than a week ago and 15 per cent fewer than a year ago. The decrease in tonnage of pork and lard was estimated at more than 6 million pounds from the five day total last week and more than 13 million pounds compared with a year ago.

Cattle Prices Steady.

Steady prices were paid for nearly all classes of cattle. The best steers available averaged 1,040 pounds and sold at $17, with most sales $14 to $16.75.

Lambs were sold steady, mostly $14 to $14.25. Old range ewes rose 25 cents to $5.50.

GRAIN MARKETS END IRREGULAR; WHEAT DECLINES

Grain markets closed irregular yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat reversed its action of Wednesday and developed a weak undertone in sympathy with northwestern markets to close ⅛ to 1¾ cents a bushel lower, distant months leading. Rye was off about 1 cent early, but rallied late in sympathy with a strong upturn in cotton to gain ¼ to ⅝ cent. Oats finished unchanged to ¼ cent lower, the latter on September. Barley was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Reports that a large movement of spring wheat to terminal markets would start next week depressed futures and aggressive support was lacking. Cash No. 1 northern spring wheat at Minneapolis closed at $1.51⅛ or ⅜ cent under the Commodity Credit corporation support price.

MEMBERS OF STOCK EXCHANGE URGED TO END RUMOR TRAFFIC

New York, Aug. 18 [Special].—The New York Stock exchange today asked its members and member firms to take special precautions to prevent their facilities being used unwittingly to circulate rumors and unverified reports to stir speculative interest in securities. The request and warning were made in a letter signed by Emil Schram, president, and John A. Coleman, chairman of the board of governors.

The request was traceable largely to the many rumors accompanying recent spectacular activity in the low priced motor shares. It also tied in with several warnings from Schram in the last six months that the public should scrutinize unverified reports, and not buy securities merely because their prices were low.

The letter said the exchange was seriously concerned because such rumors have fed "a growing public suspicion that manipulative practices again are coming into play." Apart from all exchange rules and securities law against deceptive and fraudulent devices, it urged "ceaseless vigilance" against repeating unsubstantiated reports because "enlightened self-interest dictates an alert sense of responsibility in meeting such a situation." The exchange said it was determined to protect its reputation and progress already made in improving its public position.

REPORT WHITNEY TO GO IN FROZEN FRUIT BUSINESS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 18 (AP).—Richard Whitney, five times president of the New York Stock exchange until sentenced to Sing Sing prison for grand larceny, may organize a new frozen fruit business, the Massachusetts parole board said today.

When paroled in 1938 after serving the minimum of his 10 year sentence Whitney came to Massachusetts to manage a Cape Cod farm. Later he became a clerk in the National Fireworks company plant in Hanover and rose rapidly to executive assistant to a vice president. He resigned a few months ago and is an industrial sales broker in Boston.

Whitney's tentative plans became known when he asked the parole board for its reaction to a possible move to start a frozen fruit business in Florida. He was told to make formal application to the board if and when he decided to leave. Whitney refused to confirm the reported project.

CIVILIAN RADIO MAKING AWAITS NAZI SURRENDER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—Manufacture of civilian radio receiving sets will be resumed after the surrender of Germany, but not before, WPB said today. Output of radio and radar for war purposes must climb thru December to a rate about 16 per cent above July production, the agency added.

ALLIED MILLS PROFIT CUT BY DISTILLER SALE

Other Income Held About Even.

Allied Mills, Chicago manufacturer of live stock and poultry feed and soybean products, had reduced earnings in its fiscal year ended June 30, J. B. De Haven, president, reported to stockholders yesterday. The decline resulted from sale of Century Distilling company, a subsidiary, to National Distillers Products corporation.

Net income was $1,541,796, equal to $1.92 a share, compared with $2,028,445, or $2.53 a share, a year earlier. Earnings of Century in the full 1943 fiscal year amounted to 79 cents a share, but in the 1944 fiscal year such earnings were applicable only from Century's September quarter, and were 16 cents a share.

The sale of Century and some adjacent property in the distilling company's area, however, gave Allied a profit of $12,028,382 and placed the company in a strong position "to carry out any sound expansion plan," De Haven said.

Expansion Is Expected.

Development of the expansion program was expected in the next few years, he said, and would include enlarging present plant facilities for manufacturing live stock feeds as well as Allied's retail feed outlets.

The company also will attempt to obtain priorities for erection of two soybean solvent extraction plants in Taylorville and Peoria, Ill., he said. Expansion activities have been delayed for lack of building materials.

Sales in the fiscal year amounted to $58,905,661, against $63,970,160. Altho business was "substantial," capacity operations were interrupted because of labor shortages.

Allied shareholders will be asked to approve a retirement plan for the company's employes and officers at the annual stockholders' meeting Sept. 6.

ALL-POWERFUL U. S. TRANSPORT RULE PROPOSED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—Formation of a permanent, three member federal transportation authority, charged with coördinating rail, motor, and water transportation thruout the country, was proposed in a bill introduced today by Sen. Hill [D., Ala.].

The bill would assure that all transportation rates and charges "shall be free from discriminations, preferences, prejudices, and inequalities," a provision which was interpreted as directed at the present rail freight rates structure, which the south insists discriminates against its industries.

Farmers See Machines, but Not for Long

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.—American farmers are seeing the farm machinery they need thru the efforts of Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], Sen. Hatch [D., N. M.] told the senate today.

Sen. Langer [R., N. D.] agreed. But they don't see it long enough, he said. It's all going past them on the way to Canada, Russia, New Zealand, Australia, England, and Africa.

And, Langer said, the farmers are being taxed to support lend-lease shipments of tractors, binders, corn pickers, and combines to the foreign lands.

Opening for Lampooning.

Hatch let Lucas in for a lampooning by offering him some praise that Republicans said was intended to help Lucas in the election. Hatch asked senate permission to insert in the Congressional Record laudatory statements on Lucas' farm machinery efforts from Drew Pearson, Washington gossip columnist, War Production Board Chairman Nelson and President Roosevelt.

Langer said he would make no objection but would reply later. He did—with letters from North Dakota farmers complaining that they are unable to buy the farm implements they desperately need.

One of them told of six carloads of combines and three of tractors passing his farm by rail in one week on the way to Canada. Langer said that farm machinery of all types is being withheld from American farmers and shipped to foreign lands despite the work of the senate agriculture committee, in which Lucas is a leading figure.

Refers Farmers to Lucas.

Waving a sheaf of the letters, Langer said he had thousands more, and told the senate:

"I refer all these farmers to the distinguished senior senator from Illinois."

Langer said the whole northwest is being forced to curtail food production by the lack of farm implements.

"The farmers of this country have had a rotten deal from this administration on farm machinery," he said.

UNION REQUESTS U. S. TAKE OVER PLANT IN IOWA

Bettendorf, Ia., Aug. 18 [Special].—The government today was asked to take over operation of the Bettendorf Works of International Harvester company as production remained virtually at a standstill with only about 250 of the 1,100 day workers in the plant. Last night only a sprinkling of the 100 or more regular night workers reported.

Ray Teeple, president of the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers [CIO], said the union sent a telegram to President Roosevelt this morning, urging that the plant be taken over.

L. M. Glidea, acting superintendent of the plant, said, "We are waiting for the men to come back to work so that we can meet with them" on the wage dispute.

WLB TO TOSS MUSICIAN CASE IN VINSON LAP

Union Defies Records Edict by Board.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—The refusal of the AFL American Federation of Musicians to comply with two war labor board decisions will be referred to Economic Stabilizer Fred M. Vinson as soon as the necessary papers can be prepared.

Because of the unusual circumstances, however, WLB officials were doubtful of what penalties, if any, might be invoked against the union.

To Dissenters.

The WLB voted 10 to 2 to refer to Vinson the musicians' union's refusal to lift its ban on playing for Victor and Columbia records and National Broadcasting company transcriptions and to end a strike of musicians at station KSTP, Minneapolis.

The dissenting votes were cast by the AFL members of the board, George Meany and Matthew Woll. This was one of the few cases in which the vote to refer a noncompliance was not unanimous. The AFL members took the position that the war effort is not involved in the cases and the board does not have jurisdiction over them.

Sanctions May Not Work.

The sanctions previously used in cases of union defiance may not prove to be practical in the musicians' disputes.

In many instances the government has taken over nominal control of the employer's property, thereby placing in operation the criminal section of the war labor disputes act. Persons believed to be encouraging an interruption of the war effort then could be prosecuted.

An executive order that Vinson may invoke provides for withholding of checked-off union dues and other union benefits, and the use of penalties under war man power commission regulations. Officials said they did not know offhand how any of these might be effective in the musicians' cases.
